Plunge Kills 49

Times News Services

WILLOW ISLAND, W.Va. — At least 49 workmen were killed today when a scaffolding collapsed inside a huge power plant cooling tower, plunging the men between 150 and 200 feet to their deaths.

State police said as many as 60 others may have been injured.

The workers were buried under tons of bricks and debris inside the cement tower, which measures about 360 feet in diameter at its base.

"They just fell like dominoes," a witness said. "I looked up and men were screaming and hollering."

The Pleasants Power Station, under construction since 1973, had been scheduled to begin operations next year. One huge cement tower, about 430 feet high, had been completed and the second tower where the scaffolding collapsed had reached about the 200 foot level.

AirWest Strike Ends

A strike by employees of AirWest Airlines Ltd., which began Nov. 13, ended Wednesday night with the signing of a back-to-work agreement.

As a result, pickets have been removed from the company's facilities and the process of gearing up for normal operation has begun.

"I feel great," was the reaction of AirWest president Norm Gold to the settlement.

"I am extremely pleased with the back-to-work arrangements."

He said the 95 pilots, mechanics and clerical employees will be called back to work as the company gets more of its planes back in the air.

During the strike, AirWest only used five of its 23 planes, as management personnel flew a reduced schedule.

Gold said it will likely take three or four days to get the first of the out-of-service planes back in action.

Spokesmen for the Teamsters Union were not available for comment this morning nor were details of the agreement released.

The union and AirWest had agreed to some terms of a collective agreement earlier and other outstanding issues are to be subject to arbitration.

The final remaining problem in the dispute was the phasing-in of a return to work by the employees and an agreement was reached with the mediation efforts of the B.C. Labor Relations Board.

The airline would normally come under federal labor code jurisdiction but since the LRB was already investigating picketing activities by the Teamsters, the parties agreed to allow the board to assist in reaching a return-to-work formula.

Canadian Dollar Gaining

Times News Services

The price of gold, meanwhile, rose by more than $2 U.S. an ounce in London and by almost as much in Zurich, Europe's major bullion trading center.

Also at New York, profit takers sent prices skidding on the New York Stock Exchange today as the market's record-setting April rally showed signs of running out of gas.

Pot-Smoking Teachers May Be Fired Says McGeer

Education Minister Pat McGeer said in Vancouver Wednesday that school trustees may be able to fire teachers who smoke marijuana — even those who have not been found guilty — by using an untested misconduct section of the Public Schools Act.

McGeer was commenting on the recent conditional discharge granted to Dennis Hilton, 29, an auto mechanics instructor in Coquitlam. The minister said he believes a court of law would uphold his contention that smoking marijuana, though not proved in court, is an act of misconduct and sufficient condition for dismissal.

"There is no question in my mind at all," he said. "Those who teach our young children should be of the highest moral character.

"People who tinker with drugs should not be tainting the minds of our youngsters. I am sure every parent in the province is behind me on this one."

The act has traditionally been interpreted to mean that teachers with court discharges must be reinstated, though Cliff Adkins, president of the B.C. School Trustees Association, admits that the attitude toward marijuana offences is different from the attitude toward alcohol offences.

"Unless the teacher comes to class drunk, impaired driving charges will have no effect on his students," he said. "Smoking or selling marijuana is a different situation. Students get to know about these things and might pick up the habit."

Greater Victoria school board vice-chairman Peter Dorazio said today he agrees with the McGeer's contention that pot-smoking should be sufficient grounds for teacher dismissal.

"I'm not in favor of teachers who break the law and thereby set an example for children," Dorazio said.

He said the board would have to seek legal advice on the matter, but would probably take action against any teacher who was guilty of the offence.

Victoria School Board chairman Susan Brice said that while she agrees with McGeer that boards should do whatever possible to crack down on teachers smoking marijuana, she is apprehensive about putting the board in a position of judge and jury in such cases.

She felt the board could only act reasonably in cases where guilt is clearly established by the courts

Ferry Cancelled By Bomb Threat

Two youths were detained and later released by Delta police after a bomb threat cancelled the 9 a.m. sailing of the Queen of Esquimalt out of Tsawwassen today.

Police were called after two women riding on a Pacific Stage Line bus reported overhearing two youths talking about a bomb placed in the engine room.

They notified ship's personnel who ordered the vessel evacuated.

Delta police found a cup in the engine room which contained a substance they couldn't identify. They called in the RCMP bomb squad in Vancouver to remove the cup. The unidentified substance proved harmless.

It was the second time this week the Queen of Esquimalt has been delayed because of a bomb threat.

On Sunday a foot passenger turned back from boarding the 3 p.m. sailing out of Swartz Bay said something which a ferry official took to be a threat of a bomb being put aboard the ship.

The boat was searched although the delay in sailing was only seven minutes.

An RCMP spokesman said the man, a 28-year-old resident of Vancouver, was taken to the police station in Sidney where he said the whole thing had been a misunderstanding.

He said he had seen a girl get by the guards and make her way on board and wondered "how come they let a bum like that on."

A police investigation is continuing.

!FINNISH!

Team Canada blew it today.

The Canadian entry — highly touted at the World Hockey championships in Czechoslovakia — played its first game against unranked Finland and lost 6-4.

The stunning loss came after the Canadians beat Sweden twice and beat and tied the Czech national team during pre-tournament exhibition play.

Observers picked the Canadians to get at least a third-place medal in the tournament and perhaps even win the event.

Illness, Not Strikes, Tops for Lost Time

MONTREAL (CP) - Canadian workers lost 93 million work days because of sickness and accidents in 1976, compared with only 11 million days because of strikes, a financial consultant said Wednesday.

He said 10-15 per cent of the days lost were the result of injuries on and off the job. The rest were due to sickness—both real and "pretended."

Reasons for booking off unnecessarily included boredom with the job, protests against an employer for working conditions or unhappiness about shift scheduling.

Martel said employers have tried a variety of schemes in an attempt to reduce unnecessary absenteeism, but with little effect.

One U.S. company decided to give each employee one playing card a day, the one with the best poker hand getting a prize at the end of the week.

"But if you're a good poker player and you get a deuce, a queen and a jack on the first three days you don't bother showing up for the other two," he said.

Employers who notice a high frequency of short-duration absenteeism should try and find the reasons through group discussions with employees, possibly with a third party from outside the company, Martel said.

Often the complaint may be about working conditions, such as a piece of equipment that has not been repaired.

At one firm in suburban Toronto where he conducted a group session, Martel said employees complained that the bus stopped more than a mile away from the plant. Employees with car problems didn't come to work.

The company now is negotiating with public transit officials to have the bus come to the plant, he said.

Large companies should not use their medical staff to check up on employees who are off sick, because this causes resentment.

"The company nurse should not be the policemen," he said. "They shouldn't be investigators."

But a phone call to an ill employee to ask how he is often is appreciated. And supervisors should welcome an employee back after an illness.

AND HIS CHANCES OF ESCAPING . . . ?

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Penitentiary Service is prepared to tell all about one of its prisoners even though you won't find him in a cell.

He's the statistically typical prisoner.

Penitentiary service officials told the Commons committee Wednesday the typical prisoner is 29, is serving five years for robbery, and in two of three cases, is in a federal institution for the first time.

He's already served 16 months of his sentence.

If he's paroled he will have served two years, if not he'll be in for 3½ years.

If he receives parole, there is a one-in-three chance he'll return to jail. If he doesn't get parole he is released after serving three-quarters of his term under mandatory supervision. In that case, there's a 50-per-cent likelihood he will wind up back behind bars.

Blais Sidesteps On Surveillance

OTTAWA (CP) - Opposition MPs Wednesday expressed indignation after Solicitor-General Jean-Jacques Blais refused to confirm or deny that the RCMP was issued instructions in the early 1970s on political surveillance and reporting on election candidates.

Under questioning by former Conservative leader Robert Stanfield in the Commons, Blais refused to confirm the existence of political surveillance instructions said in a published report to be contained in an RCMP operations manual.

His refusal prompted a string of Progressive Conservative and New Democratic Party MPs to rise after the daily question period and criticize Blais for mishandling a serious question affecting politicians and using a royal commission into RCMP actities as a dumping ground for hot issues.

Blais had told the Commons the commission, headed by Mr. Justice David McDonald, has access to current and former RCMP operations manuals but their examination might take place behind closed doors.

Stanfield (PC-Halifax) said Blais had no right telling him or other MPs that RCMP surveillance of political candidates "is none of my business." He said it is the MP's business to know "what kind of surveillance is exercised on candidates for this House."

Davis Report Bouncing

The report which led to the dismissal of Jack Davis as minister of energy and transport is bouncing back and forth between Attorney-General Garde Gardom and outside counsel.

Gardom is expected to make a statement Friday at the latest.

An unidentified lawyer independent of the ministry was first asked to study an RCMP report into the airline ticket dealings of Davis on April 13 — 10 days after Davis was removed from the cabinet because of the investigation.

The lawyer returned the report likely containing his additional recommendations to Gardom Tuesday but the attorney-general sent it back to the lawyer because it was incomplete.

Apparently difficulties with an Air Canada computer in Winnipeg are holding up the last bit of information needed to complete the report.

Davis has admitted to keeping refunds he received after reducing first class airline tickets to offset out-of-pocket expenses on his numerous trips for the government.

The RCMP investigation began in mid-January after police got a tip from a private citizen who has never been identified.

Double-Cross Claim By Indian Lawyer

VANCOUVER (CP) — An assault charge laid against Myrtle Russ in a pre-dawn RCMP raid at the Indian village of Old Massett was stayed by the Crown Wednesday and Mrs. Russ's lawyer, Carey Linde, says he has been double-crossed.

"The defence admits the assault," said Linde in a telephone interview from Masset in the Queen Charlotte Islands. "But we don't admit that the officer in question was acting in the line of duty."

He said staying the charge is a tacit admission that the officer was not acting in the line of duty when he and nine other officers, carrying six shotguns and hand guns, raided five houses at Old Massett Feb. 17.

Linde said he received a commitment from a high official in the provincial attorney-general's office that the assault charge would go ahead "and if I wanted to make fools of the police I would have my opportunity."

But the official told him Tuesday that the charge would be stayed. Linde refused to name the man but said he was not Attorney-General Garde Gardom.

"I can only surmise that police pressure was brought to bear on the persons concerned and they stayed a charge which shouldn't have been laid in the first place."

Crown counsel Rick Miller, who stayed the charge, told Judge Robert Graham in provincial court that the British Columbia police commission would investigate police-community relations at Old Massett and a report would be filed.

Meanwhile, said Linde, Mrs. Russ' name has not been cleared and she has not been given a chance to be acquitted. The stayed charge could be revived any time in the next year.

"What this community demands is an apology from the attorney-general, not from the local police," said Linde.

RCMP Superintendent Howard Gillard of the Prince Rupert subdivision confirmed last week that the police—several of them auxiliary constables—were apparently searching for handguns when they carried out the raid. The only weapon seized was a starter's pistol.

Gillard said RCMP Sergeant Ken Buck, who led the raid, was later transferred. He said the transfer was decided upon before the raid.

"That may be true," said Linde. "But from the community's point of view they see that he (Buck) is out, the charge is stayed, but there's no admission of wrongdoing on the part of the police."

"The thing is, there's no way those police would have done something like that in a white community. It was simply racist, the most blatant example of the racism that police have to Indians."

Israelis Looted Jewels?

BEIRUT (AP) — The Lebanese government is investigating reports that the Israeli army made off with ancient treasures from archeological digs near the biblical port city of Tyre and that the loot offset the entire cost of last month's invasion.

Lebanese reporters wrote that Israeli helicopters bore off at least three burial caskets, five clay jars of jewelry and two gold statues from the era of Phoenician King Hiram, who ruled from 969 to 935 BC.

The reports said the relics were taken from Hannawiye, eight kilometres southeast of Tyre.

The government antiquities department said if the theft is proved, it would ask the UN Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization to help it recover the relics.

A spokesman for the department said the UN peacekeeping force in south Lebanon will also be asked to help in any "permissible aspect within its jurisdiction."

Now Parental Malpractice

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — A 24-year-old man has filed suit in district court seeking $350,000 in damages from his mother and father on grounds of parental malpractice.

Tom Hansen alleges in the suit that his parents inflicted emotional distress by neglecting his needs for food, clothing, shelter and psychological support.

Hansen's lawyer, John Taussig Jr., says the issue in the case is not whether parents make mistakes in raising their children, but whether parents should be held responsible for any serious damage to the physical and mental health of their children.

Hansen's parents, Shirley Hansen of Boulder and Richard Hansen of Hilo, Hawaii, were unavailable for comment on the suit filed here Wednesday.

Hansen's suit states he will be in need of psychiatric care throughout his life because of the "intentional infliction of emotional distress" by his parents.

He states in the suit that at the age of 14 he was punished for being suspended from school by "being forced to work long hours at menial labor on little food."

He alleges his father treated him as a social outcast and subjected him to humiliation, ridicule and physical attack.

Goyer Appeals 'Libel'

OTTAWA (CP) — Supply Minister Jean-Pierre Goyer announced Wednesday he will appeal an Ontario Supreme Court decision ordering him to pay $10,000 in libel damages to senior public servant Lawrence Stopforth.

Goyer made the announcement in a two-paragraph news release. The statement also said Justice Minister General Ron Basford, acting as attorney-general, has appointed Goyer's lawyer as an agent of the government for the purpose of the appeal.

This means the federal government will pay the cost of Goyer's legal counsel, as it did during the original trial.

More ABC Flights

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian transport commission announced Wednesday it has approved plans for 604 more domestic advanced booking charter (ABC) flights, meaning that 120,986 travellers will be able to fly at the new cheaper rates.

The commission also announced it is considering reducing the requirements of booking 45 days in advance for a domestic ABC flight.

At last count, the commission said, the following round-trip ABC flights had been approved:

—276 flights between Vancouver and Edmonton or Calgary.

ELECTRIC BILLS TOP MORTGAGES

OTTAWA (CP) — Some monthly power bills for Northwest Territories residents now exceed their home mortgage payments, Wally Firth (NDP—Northwest Territories) said in the Commons Wednesday.

Yet, he said, residents in Yellowknife, Fort Smith, Pine Point and Fort Resolution are being subjected to another rate increase of 10.5 per cent.

Power in the N.W.T. and Yukon is supplied by the Northern Canada Power Commission (NCPC) and rates vary dramatically across the North. Its rates are high because federal law requires it to operate on a cost-of-service basis, meaning all expenditures must be recovered through rates.

Firth suggested changes in the NCPC, including turning over responsibility for the commission to the Yuko and N.W.T. legislative councils.

Sources say Northern Development Minister Hugh Faulkner is to announce some NCPC policy changes today.

Search Organized For 2 More Aircraft

A concentrated air search was organized by the Pacific Rescue Co-ordination Centre at CFB Esquimalt today in an effort to find two aircraft reported missing Wednesday night.

Augmenting two Buffalo fixed-wing aircraft and two Labrador helicopters from CFB Comox are four helicopters and two Twin Otters from Edmonton.

An American Cessna carrying three persons left Bella Coola Monday morning en route to Seattle via Nanaimo. It was supposed to make a radio check at Cassidy Airport near Nanaimo but failed to do so.

A Hercules aircraft was despatched to make an electronic locator transmitter check Wednesday night after the plane was reported missing.

It left Prince George at noon Wednesday and was flying via The Trench to Whitehorse. It was due to arrive at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

The helicopter did not have an automatic ELT aboard, an armed forces spokesman said today, but there was a hand-operated one in the aircraft.

The U.S. Coast Guard has also asked that radio checks be made in efforts to find a missing fishing vessel that was travelling from Seattle to the Hoona River via Port Hardy. The vessel has not been sighted since she left Port Hardy April 19.

Meanwhile, the search continues for another helicopter missing on a flight from Delta to Queen Charlotte City. It was last sighted 6 p.m. on Friday when it refueled at Powell River. Aboard were pilot David Steel, 35, of Mission, and the owner Keith Humpherville, 38, a resident of Queen Charlotte City.

ISRAELI peace campaigners formed a 20-kilometre human chain through Jerusalem Wednesday to pass along, hand-to-hand, a petition urging Prime Minister Menachem Begin to modify his hardline peace policies. Men, women and children of the Peace Now movement joined the line stretching from the Judean hills outside the city to the gates of Begin's office. Organizers claimed up to 4,000 people took part in the demonstration.

Silence Shrouds Moro

Times News Services

ROME — A crank caller sent police on another wild goose chase in search of kidnapped ex-premier Aldo Moro today but his Red Brigades abductors maintained their unnerving silence on his fate.

Another anonymous "tip" from a crank caller — the second in two days — sent hundreds of police to Moro's home in search of a "big blue car" in which Moro's body had supposedly been placed.

The caller told police that the car was parked within a 500-yard radius of Moro's Rome home.

Meanwhile, two men and a woman shot a Fiat executive in the legs today, and an anonymous caller said the attackers were members of the Red Brigades.

It was the second leg shooting done in the name of the Red Brigades in two days.

Police said Sergio Palmieri, 41, was shot as he left his home in Turin, where 15 Red Brigades members are on trial. Shortly afterward, a telephone caller told an Italian news agency: "This is the Red Brigades. We have hit Sergio Palmieri."

U.S. Asylum Bid By Top UN Red

Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Arkady Shevchenko, the high-ranking Soviet official at the United Nations who recently defected from his country, is seeking political asylum in the United States, it was disclosed here Wednesday.

The 47-year-old career diplomat contacted State Department and Immigration and Naturalization Service officials through his New York lawyer before he announced Wesnesday that he intended to take "the necessary legal steps to establish residence in the United States."

U.S. officials, however, were exceptionally reluctant to discuss the case, which involves the highest ranking Soviet official ever to defect to the West.

Privately, they said that Shevchenko would be granted asylum irrespective of his decision whether or not to cooperate with U.S. intelligence officials.

Shevchenko, in a carefully worded statement issued Wednesday, said his decision to remain in the United States was prompted by "serious differences of political philosophy and conviction with the present Soviet system."

It was issued shortly after the United Nations announced that Shevchenko had quit his $76,000-a-year job as UN undersecretary general for political and security affairs, effective Wednesday.

Shevchenko will receive more than $76,000 in severance pay under an agreement he reached with UN Secretary General Kurt Waldheim during their hour-long private meeting Tuesday night.

Nuremberg Defence Given by Mounties

MONTREAL (CP) — A reference to the Nuremberg war crimes trials was made Wednesday as two more Mounties testified that they believed Operation Ham was legal because superiors had authorized it.

Operation Ham involved the removal, copying and return of computer tapes containing Parti Quebecois membership lists.

Staff Sgt. Gerard Boucher and Sgt. Dale Boire, who took part in the Jan. 9, 1973, operation, were both questioned by royal commissioners into RCMP wrongdoing about the legality of the operation.

At Nuremberg, Nazis said they had only been obeying orders when they committed atrocities during the Second World War. An allusion to this defence was made by lawyer Pierre Lamontagne as he objected to the line of questioning.

Boire said he felt Operation Ham was legal because it had been authorized by the deputy director-general of the RCMP Security Service, at that time Howard Draper.

RCMP Lawyer Pierre Lamontagne objected to the line of questioning as "really embarrassing" too the RCMP.

"We'll wait and see what the newspaper headlines say tomorrow morning," Lamontagne said.

His objection came as Guy Gilbert of Montreal, one of the three royal commissioners, asked Boucher whether he felt a superior could ask Boucher to do things which were illegal.

"This is really asking for a legal opinion," Lamontagne said. "It comes from the Nuremburg jurisprudence, whether under other circumstances the decision would have been taken by the martial courts there in the way it was I don't know. I'm not ready to make an argument . . ."

Referring to Boucher, who was an infant when the Nuremburg trials took place in the 1940s, Lamontagne said: "He probably doesn't know at his age what Nuremburg was."

Mr. Justice David C. McDonald of Alberta, the royal commission chairman, said that no one should interpret what the commissioners were saying as a statement of the law.

"Quite apart from international law, the military law of this country (Canada) does not make it clear what the right to resist orders is," Mr. Justice McDonald said.

Gilbert told Boucher that the fact that a superior had given an order is not "a guarantee of legality."

Boucher, who picked the locks to get into the quarters in which the computer tapes were held, said he agreed. He added that in the last five or six years, it has become possible "to question orders a little more." Before that, he said, RCMP orders were law.

BRUSSELS STATUE RETURNED

An anonymous caller had told the Belgian news agency the statuette was "in good hands" and would be returned in good shape within 48 hours. The caller said the theft was only a students' joke.

Because it had been stolen or damaged so many times throughout the years, the original statuette, dating from the beginning of the 17th century, is kept at the Brussels municipal museum. The one exhibited on the street corner is only a replica.

Now here – an affordable way to move up to radials.

ATLAS MK. IV THE AFFORDABLE RADIAL

Many people would like to move up from conventional belted tires to the smoother ride and improved handling given by radial tires, but, our steel-belted Mark V was too much tire for the kind of driving they did.

So, we found a solution to the problem.

MK. IV: THE AFFORDABLE RADIAL

It's the Mark IV — a new radial in the Atlas line. Mark IV is built with 2 tough Polyester body plies and 2 glass belts. The Atlas Mark IV radial gives you better cornering, ride and safety than conventional belted tires — at a price that makes it easier for you to move up to radials.

That's why we call it the affordable radial.

SUGGESTED RETAIL PRICES*

TIRE TYPE	FROM (each)	TO (each)
RADIAL MK. IV	42.25	55.15
RADIAL (Steel) MK. V	49.34	73.47
BELTED MK. II	33.95	50.69
BIAS MK. I	29.17	41.13

MK. V: "STEEL BELTED" RADIAL

It's the king of the Atlas line. If you're into heavy mileage, highway driving, trailer hauling, country road-driving, the Mark V steel-belted radial is for you. It has all the great radial features. And the extra margin of excellence you expect from premium quality radials.

CHOOSE AN ATLAS RADIAL FOR THE KIND OF DRIVING YOU DO

Mark IV or Mark V — the name Atlas on a tire is your guarantee of quality. What kind of tires should your car have? For the answer, it pays to see your Esso dealer, compare prices and talk radial tires. He's got the choice you need to fit your kind of driving.

A Principle Violated

At first it seemed a trivial matter, Premier Bill Bennett's refusal to tell the legislature the salary of David Helliwell, the chairman of the new B.C. Resources Investment Corp. to which the government has assigned its interests in CanCel, Plateau Mills, Kootenay Forest Products and Westcoast Transmission.

But as the affair has unfolded under the questioning of Victoria MLA Charles Barber, a serious violation of an important principle of parliamentary government has been uncovered. At first the premier only refused to answer questions concerning Helliwell's pay and fringe benefits, but now it has broadened into a blanket refusal to provide the legislature with any information at all concerning the operation of the BCRIC.

His justification is that the new corporation is not a Crown corporation, but a public company operating in the private sector like thousands of other private corporations. Any questions about its operations should be asked at its annual meeting, when shareholders will receive an accounting of their investments.

This is a fiction, and a silly one at that. A businessman like Bennett knows that the BCRIC is not a corporation like any other, the same as B.C. Tel or Westcoast Transmission. Its special status is enshrined in Bill 87 which established the company last year.

Some very special dispensations are contained in the legislation, presumably at the specific direction of Bennett and his cabinet. For example, the BCRIC may not wind up its affairs under section nine of the Companies Act without specific approval of the cabinet.

That certainly places it in a special category. Bill 87 also takes precedence over the Companies Act — the omnibus statute which sets out the law for all other provincial corporations — if there is a conflict between the act and the BCRIC's very own legislation. Bill 87 is riddled with special exemptions from the Companies Act. If it is, as the premier claims, just another corporation, why so?

The provincial cabinet may also make regulations under Bill 87 concerning the BCRIC, a special authority of the government which extends to no other private company in the province.

At the moment, the government is still the sole shareholder in BCRIC. No shares have yet been offered for sale to the public. And it is unlikely that they will be for some time. The government will also be for many years the principal shareholder in the corporation.

This year, will Bennett refuse to answer any questions about CanCel, Plateau Mills and Kootenay Forest Products, all of which are wholly owned, or nearly so, by the government, because their shares have been assigned to the BCRIC?

Bennett continues to stonewall. He said sarcastically on Wednesday that during debate of his spending estimates he would patiently try to educate the opposition about the various clauses of Bill 87. That is not good enough. The government cannot evade ultimate responsibility for its acts.

By legislative act, Bennett's administration established the BCRIC, gave it special protection and dispensation from laws which apply to its competitors, and handed over at the stroke of a pen government assets worth probably $150 million.

Premier Bennett's refusal to answer seems to be part of a disquieting pattern. Finance Minister has clammed up about B.C. Hydro, although he is a director. Premier Bennett won't say anything about the BCRIC. What are they hiding? These are pertinent questions being posed and the premier — if he really believes those fine words he has repeated so often about his party's commitment to freedom and democracy — must answer them.

A Little Praise

It is so rare that B.C. Hydro pays any attention to the wishes of the citizens that are theoretically its shareholders that some notice should be taken when the Crown corporation actually tries to listen to public opinion.

Let us therefore offer a little praise to Hydro for its decision to hold off on spraying power line rights-of-way on Vancouver Island with the strong chemical 2,4-D for at least a year. The decision is particularly appropriate now that the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has initiated a full study into 2,4-D because of growing suspicions that it may cause cancer.

Within a year that study should be complete, meaning that far better information should be available on the effects of the chemical on humans and on the environment.

At the same time Hydro is going to experiment with other methods of keeping down the growth of alder and maple trees along its power lines; with luck it may discover a way to handle the problem so that the chemical will not be needed by 1979.

Hydro's decision therefore seems to be a reasonable one. It should go far towards meeting the objections of Island residents who had expressed grave concerns that the chemical would seriously damage the ecology of the area.

Most encouraging of all, it should show those residents, and also the rest of the province, that Hydro can listen to the concerns of the public and find ways of handling them, rather than dismissing them with the arrogance that all too often has been its attitude.

It is to be hoped that this reasonableness and sensitivity on Hydro's part will carry over into the many other decisions the Crown corporation will make in the upcoming months and years.

Blockbusting in Reverse

WASHINGTON — It was just turning dusk as the cab wheeled over to the curb in front of the National Press Building. "How are ya," said the driver as I yanked open the back door and crawled inside. I proudly recited the address of my newly-purchased (1916 model) house on Capitol Hill, placing special emphasis on the fact that it was located in the southeast quadrant.

The driver, a middle aged white man, repeated the address as though asking for verification. "Fifteenth Southeast?" he said.

"Yes," I said, "Fifteenth Southeast."

"Afraid not," he said. I thought I must have misheard, but the driver made it clear there had been no mistake. "Can't take you," he said, offering no further explanation.

Nothing Wrong

With great restraint I climbed silently out of the car, managing, of course, to slam the door with extra vigor.

The pleasant young cabbie who eventually picked me up was extremely sympathetic. "No ma'am," he said, "there's nothing wrong with your neighborhood."

He could have added, as well, that there was nothing particularly novel about my story. The same script is acted out probably several hundred times every day on the streets of Washington. Even in broad daylight there are areas of the city where a young black male would have about as good a prospect for hailing a cab as being invited to the White House for lunch.

It is not that Washington cab drivers are bigots. Rather, as one veteran cabbie put it: "You play the odds."

Though it is of little immediate consolation to us residents of the so-called "transition neighborhoods," the medium-term prospects are good. The District of Columbia is in the throes of what can be called, without exaggeration, a real estate revolution.

The members of the middle class, both black and white, who fled the district in droves after the race riots a decade ago are literally elbowing each other in the scramble to get back in. The boom, if it lasts, could be the biggest thing since the California gold rush.

A friend who is a real estate agent says the average property in Washington (which in 1977 sold for $68,000) now is appreciating at the dizzying rate of $1,000 a month. The real estate firm for which he works doesn't even advertise. The customers walk in off the street.

What is happening in effect is a complete reversal of the blockbusting phenomenon of the 1960s. It is now the whites who are the blockbusters.

In some neighborhoods the white influx has been greeted with some hostility, particularly by poorer black families who rent. As the renovation moves through these neighborhoods, prices escalate and the slum landlords begin selling the buildings, putting the renters out on the street.

MOOSE JAW
. . . who'd rather live here?

The District of Columbia council, concerned about the speculators, only three weeks ago passed legislation designed to curb this profiteering, with its accompanying social upheaval. Now, a rundown property cannot be "turned over" in less than seven months without payment of an onerous speculation tax.

In general, however, the renovation revolution has been an orderly and civil one. My neighborhood is, I suppose, quite typical. My neighbors, all of whom are black, have provided a kind of welcome one would expect in a small prairie town.

The former owners of my house, a civil service couple who have retired to California, think the situation is quite amusing. They have just purchased a home in Sacramento, where they will be the first blacks on the block.

I do suspect, though, that some of my neighbors think I'm a bit peculiar, although they are far too polite to say so. All of the main floor windows in my house have heavy metal bars sunk into the brick.

On advice of well-meaning friends, however, I decided to have an electronic security system installed. All the doors and windows are now "wired" with electromagnets, which I must "arm" each time I enter or leave. From the time I enter or leave I have precisely 45 seconds in which to "arm" or "disarm" the alarm system.

Failure to do so, as I discovered by accident, sets into motion a simulation of a small military invasion. Alarms both inside and outside the house howl like air raid sirens. When the alarm is tripped it also alerts an operator at a downtown switchboard, who makes a quick attempt to ascertain whether it is a false alarm before alerting the police.

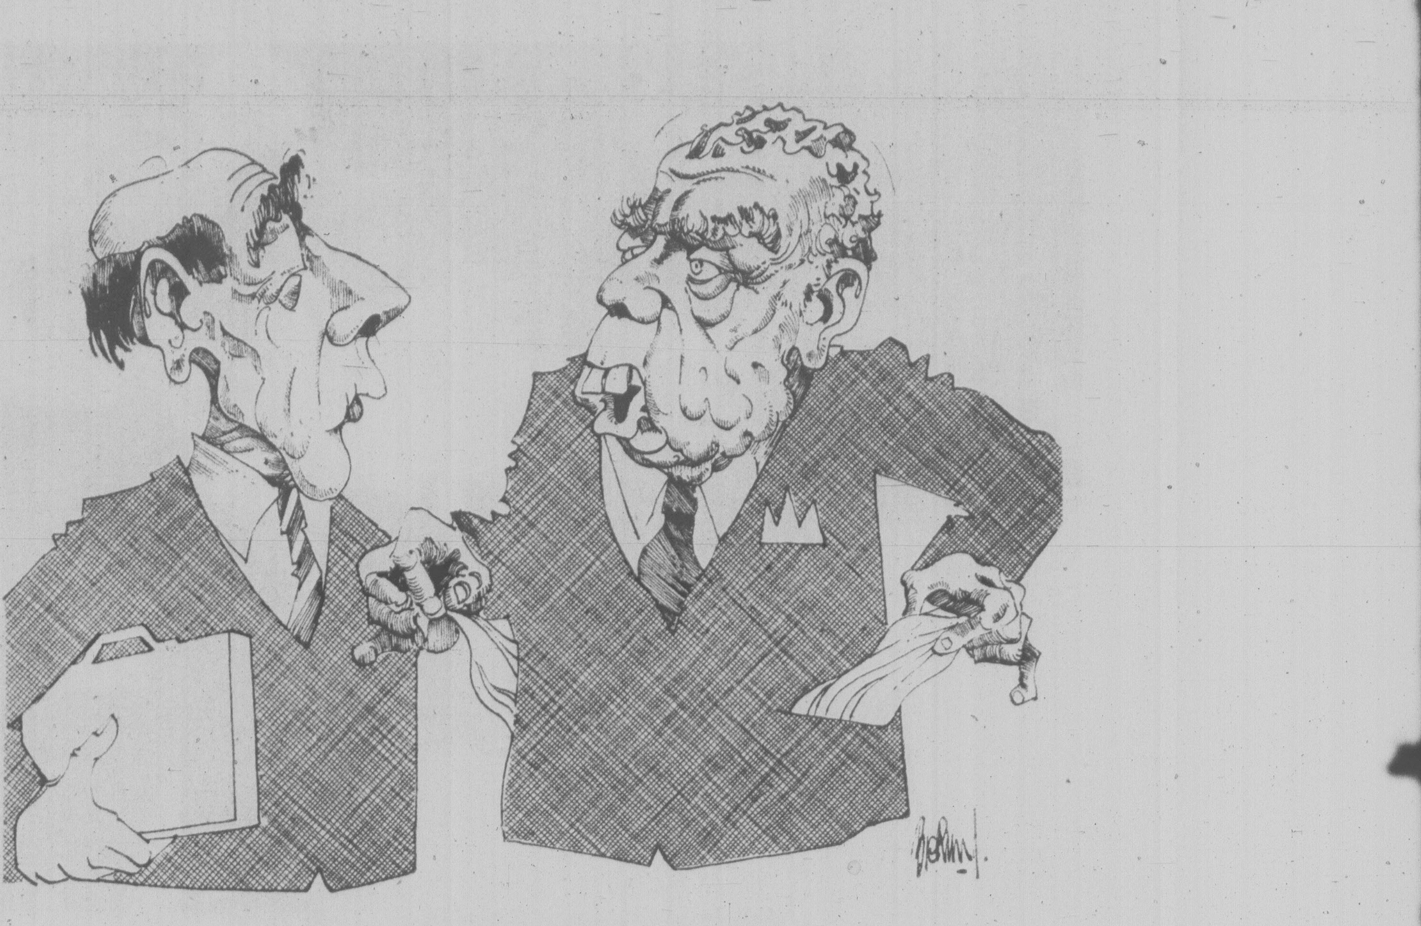
Peace of Mind

The one problem with the system, as I see it, is that the alarm is transmitted on my telephone line, meaning that in the event of a false alarm I am forced to leap a fence and borrow the neighbor's telephone to call the alarm company to inform them that it is a false alarm.

Ah well, as the salesman said, it does provide peace of mind. One of the neighbors did drop by the other day to report that in the 25 years she has lived on the street she has never locked her door.

Reassuring to be sure, unfortunately the same cannot be said for the liquor store and hamburger stand located at the end of the block. Both establishments are decorated floor to ceiling with plexiglass, which separates customer from clerk and goods. After one slips one's money through a narrow tray in the plexiglass wall, the booze or food, as the case may be, is placed in a plexiglass drum with a window in one side and spun so that the customer can reach in and fetch the merchandise, while the clerk remains protected.

On the other hand, given the choice, who would want to live in Moose Jaw?



". . . darn . . . I seem to have misplaced the party again . . ."

FRANK RUTTER

End of the British Tunnel?

LONDON — Two years ago Britain was in the depths and Milton Friedman was public enemy number one. The Chicago economist had told the British that they were near to collapse.

Today Friedman has not quite been elevated to the peerage, but he is a prime candidate for rehabilitation. This is not because he was right, if he was right. It is because he has changed his tune slightly.

Perhaps it is only a shift of key, but the change is notable. Today, Friedman confesses to perceiving a chink of light at the end of the tunnel.

Path to Freedom

He has even suggested that Britain might be able to lead the world back down the path to freedom and away from the collectivism which he characterizes as the great bogey of our times.

Looking immensely pleased with himself as he delivered, in his apocalyptic tone, the Hoover Foundation lecture at Strathclyde University in Glasgow recently, Friedman might have almost become carried away by rhetoric when he offered that suggestion.

However, things have changed for Britain, and Friedman, to do him justice, did qualify his optimism with a big "maybe."

Maybe Britain can hold down government spending.

Maybe it can contain inflation. And unemployment.

Maybe it can demonstrate responsible monetary management.

It was a bit difficult to tell whether Friedman was beaming benignly on the Labor government or looking for a silver lining in the rise of conservatism since the 1974 election, and the prospect of a Conservative victory at the next election.

"What I said then," said the professor looking back to the dark days of 1976, "is what I would say now: that if Britain continues along the collectivist line, and if the role of government continues to expand, as it had been doing very rapidly before 1976, that would sooner or later become incompatible with the continuation of democracy."

One tide-turning breeze which refreshes Friedman is his detection of a growing taxpayer revolt in the western democracies. This is evident, he declared, both in the U.S. and in Britain, where tax-fiddling is a national pastime — it has to be because the rates are so high — although this might not be precisely what he was advocating.

Indecision by British voters in the two national elections of 1974 tempered the socialist mandate for government and, in truth, the regime of Prime Minister James Callaghan, has become what would be considered anywhere else and at any other time a moderate small-c conservative administration.

It has become increasingly cautious as its term of office diminishes and it prepares to face the people at the polls. This was reflected in its last budget and in its approach to spending the spoils of North Sea oil.

The main indicators of the economy are not all that brilliant. Inflation is down: from 20 to nine per cent. Unemployment has been falling over the last seven months to 5.8 per cent. The balance of payments, after some good months in 1977, has dropped back into deficit. Over-all growth has been only slightly above zero.

The last is the most troublesome of the indicators and at the heart of the British approach to the forthcoming economic summit at Bonn this summer: a plea for growth (except in the exports of its competitors).

Some Ironies

Robin Marris, a Cambridge economist now teaching in Maryland, put his finger on this at the recent Is Britain Finished? conference at Cornell. Only when you compare Britain's performance with that of her trade competitors does it look awful.

Ironically for Friedman, a great deal of the improvement in the British economy can be credited to the very collectivism he despises. There is no doubt that the greatest single contributing factor has been the agreement of the trade unions to limit their wage demands and their collective discipline in doing so.

But the unions can also undo it all; so can a dogmatic government. Friedman cautioned his Scottish students that there will be trouble ahead, that inflation might climb again in the next year or two.

Unfortunately what Friedman called "the brute force of events" can shove both ways and even he cannot foresee all the future.

Long Memories

Further to the outbursts of Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair relative to the real estate industry:

Mr. Mair has stated that "the industry must police itself more strictly or the government will do it." This statement is laughable to the bitterly experienced people who have been "taken" in many dishonest developments within the province and without, over the past 40 years.

The "politically oriented" threat of cleaning up the real estate business methods within the province has been made so many times over the last 30 years, without result, that it has become a standing public joke.

I am reminded of one property development in Central America, approved by the then and I am told now, superintendent of insurance, who approves all real estate developments. The development to which I refer was sold primarily through a well-known Vancouver real estate broker of that time (1964-1970), and later through the promoter himself who blandly operated a real estate sales pertinent to the aforesaid development without a license of any kind.

The promoter left the development to deteriorate in 1972, owing in the neighborhood of $100,000 to the merchants and a bank in that country, and owing to the property owners close to $800,000 being money put into the property in the belief that the services existing and promised to continue would do so.

There is today one property owner of the close to three hundred who purchased lots still living on the property. The present real estate controls are just as farcical as they were in the W.A.C. Bennett regime.

I would also put a question to your readers concerning the actions of the civil servant previously mentioned in regard to the person who initiated the Commonwealth fiasco, in allowing said person back into the real estate business.

You may be sure there is a great deal of bitterness in regard to this action among the ordinary people of this province, many of whom lost all or a large part of their savings in the Commonwealth mess. I can assure Mr. Mair, his government by this action has lost a considerable number of votes. Controls? The memories of the public are not as short as some naive politicians believe. — W. C. Ditmars, Prince George.

Men in White

I read with interest the report of the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce April 19, at which Conservative Leader Vic Stephens was the guest speaker. Mr. Stephens was reported to have said that the policy-destitute Socred coalition was formed to ensure the defeat of the NDP government. It is apparent from the questions raised at the meeting that there are still those who are afraid of an NDP victory in the next provincial election. After reading the following extract from the NDP constitution I can readily understand the apprehension of at least one member of the Chamber of Commerce.

"The production and distribution of goods and services shall be directed to meeting the social and individual needs of people and not for profit. To modify and control the operations of monopolistic productive and distributive organizations through economic and social planning and, where necessary, the extension of the principle of social ownership. The New Democratic Party holds firm to the belief that the dignity and freedom of the individual is a basic right and must be maintained and extended."

How terrible! Who would want a society as espoused by the NDP constitution? Oh, excuse me, I have to go. There are two fellows here in white coats with a straitjacket ready to take me away. — W. Stott, 258 Portsmouth Drive.

Holocausts

While we are on the subject of holocausts we should acknowledge that the white man treated the native Indians as something to be cleared from the land along with trees, rocks and wild animals.

In Brazil the Indians of the Amazon jungle, which is being "cleared" are currently suffering their personal holocaust.

The unsavory truth is that we in the western hemisphere while condemning one holocaust are enjoying the fruits of another.—Joe Percival, 511 Trutch Street.

No Development

We understand that consideration is being given to placing an information booth in Goldstream Park to promote commercial enterprises.

Parks should be completely divorced from any type of commercialism. A booth of this nature would set a precedent and make it extremely difficult to turn down other commercial requests. There has been no lack of visitors to this park, and since all ferries arriving on Vancouver Island carry a large selection of tourist literature, we are at a loss to understand the necessity for any further information in the park.

We hope that everyone who is concerned about the parks will protest this encroachment by commercial interests. — George Kelly, President, Outdoor Club of Victoria.

Who'll Save Rene From His Friends?

By JAMES A. STEWART
Montreal Star

Premier Levesque complains a lot about the English media as the enemy of his government. Perhaps he should begin worrying about damages inflicted by some of his well-intentioned friends in the French media who are suffocating him with kindness, killing him softly with their songs.

His picture, for example, appeared 28 times in a recent issue of Le Courrier du Sud, a weekly distributed free to South Shore homes. The newspaper was obviously giving blanket coverage to the premier's tour of his Taillon riding.

Anti-semitism

As modest a man as Premier Levesque may have found such exposure a little over-enthusiastic but there was, after all, no great harm done.

Much more damaging to the PQ government are upstart magazines like Ici Quebec and Lundi, which force their affections on the premier or the PQ to the point of embarrassment.

Lundi raises the delicate matter of Levesque's private life in the guise of an obsequious article which compares the premier to the great men of history. Ici Quebec clasps the entire independence movement in its unsavory embrace, emphasizing the contradictions within the PQ and forcing ministers to dissociate themselves from the magazine's views and objectives.

Ici Quebec purveys a blend of rigid, old-line nationalism, unconditional separatism and anti-semitism. It calls itself the only organ fighting for Quebec sovereignty and runs an ad inviting readers to join, for $100, its Club of 250 Lifetime Subscribers.

The ad is surrounded by scores of pictures of well-known Quebecers, implying that notables such as Education Minister Jacques-Yvan Morin, Finance Minister Jacques Parizeau and Red Fisher have already joined the Ici Quebec Lifetime Club.

This is not so, at least for Fisher. He is not an unconditional separatist. He is the sports editor of The Montreal Star. His picture — and probably most of the others in the ad — was used without his consent and he intends to make sure it does not go on being used.

The magazine, identified with the independence movement, embarrassed the movement by its vicious attacks on Zionism, Israel and Jews.

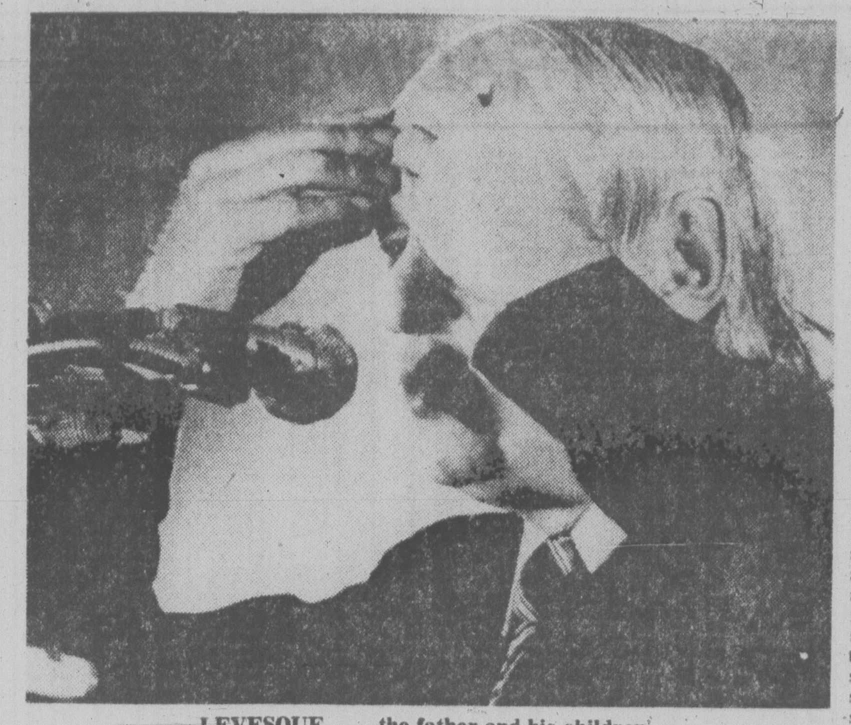
It also embarrassed the government, while performing a service for the public, by carrying a long interview with Cultural Development Minister Camille Laurin. The interview confirmed everything Maclean's magazine had published the week before about the coming white paper on culture and which both Levesque and Laurin had denounced as part of an English media plot to blacken the government.

Laurin told Ici Quebec that his government intended to intervene to expand French and diminish English . . . "to help what is French in the cultural field and to regulate what is not."

There is a fundamental difference between what Levesque says the government intends to do about these matters, and what Mr. Laurin says. There should be no question about whose view will prevail, but there is. And the question is — who is the real leader of the government, the real premier of Quebec?

Love Life

Lundi, the weekly pop magazine, is embarrassing the government in a more personal way, by reviving the sensitive matter of Premier Levesque's love life and his auto accident of a year ago in which he struck and killed a man named Edgar Trottier. In the car with the premier at the time of the middle-of-the-night accident was a member of his staff, Corinne Cote.



LEVESQUE . . . the father and his children

The Lundi writer, Denis Monette, approaches the matter by denouncing a recent article in Weekend magazine which identified Mlle Cote as Levesque's girlfriend and the woman who replaced his estranged wife.

Monette describes these statements as "gratuitous affirmations . . . without foundation" (which does not speak well for the quality of his information). As far as he is concerned, Mlle Cote is no more than a brilliant secretary.

But even if she were more than that to the premier, asks Monette, what of it? Is there not a woman behind every great man? Petrarch, Ronsard, Moliere, Diderot had their feminine confidantes, why shouldn't Rene Levesque?

Monette writes that the premier's private life should belong to him, but that Mr. Levesque knows he cannot be the leader of six million Quebecers without belonging to them entirely.

"He has become the 'Point de Mire' of a province which has faith in him," writes Monette, "as a child towards its father . . . day and night."

Public attention to private lives is the "ransom of glory," says Monette. All great men, like the Bourbon kings, Napoleon, the Duke of Windsor, Pierre Elliott Trudeau and Rene Levesque must pay that ransom.

"Mr. Levesque has nothing to hide from those who consider him a father," writes Monette. "He belongs to his children, to this people whom he has won so well."

The author explains why he thought it necessary to revive the Levesque affair (and perhaps why the magazine saw fit to use pictures of the couple on its cover).

The matter had to be exposed clearly and thoroughly, he wrote, as Mr. Levesque would have done it himself.

"Rene Levesque does not like detours. He hates long speeches which leave question marks. He himself will put the final period in place, for if one day Rene — as he is called by those who have faith in him, his people, his friends — decides to remake his life, he will not do it behind a cover. The way he is, the way we know him, he will open the doors of parliament so that all of Quebec can be there . . .

A Big Heart

"His heart, he gave it to the province. If part of it remains for a woman, it is because it is immeasurably large . . ."

Can the premier read that kind of stuff without blushing in embarrassment? Is servile adulation any more welcome to him than hostile criticism?

With friends like Lundi and Ici Quebec, the premier must be asking himself, who needs the English media?

The Double Bind of Aged Women

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

Women and Aging, a report by the federal Advisory Council on the Status of Women, confirms what most of us already knew and what none of us has any cause to be proud of — life for many among the elderly is a lonely, unhappy and often bewildering affair.

Perhaps this should not be so very surprising. Women, after all, live an average of seven years longer than do men; this, combined with the social custom that women for the most part marry men somewhat older than themselves and combined with the social perception that older women are not nearly so remarriagable as are older men, ensures that for the elderly widow old age will often be both long and lonely. Ironically, as the Council observes, both middle-aged and elderly women are less well-prepared (or are given less chance to prepare) for life on their own than men generally are.

* * *

"Women who are barely 35 are told they are too 'mature' for jobs such as bank teller, airline hostess or receptionist," says the report. For women who have not worked outside the home, social and financial problems may be even more severe: "Their poverty is not the result of an accident. Women are poor in old age because most of them have devoted their lives without pay to their husbands and families and were led to believe that if anything happened, they would be taken care of."

The report quotes census statistics which indicate that one of three women between the ages of 50 and 65 is below the poverty line — left with little money to cope on her own with unfamiliar affairs. She is no longer young or beautiful (which our society has determined is far more a handicap for women than for men), no longer with children or family to provide her with some sense of purpose, no longer likely to remarry.

The report advocates improvements in both pension benefits and social services for the elderly — improvements which may well be necessary, although there is much than can be accomplished simply by making better use of existing programs.

* * *

If the elderly, and particularly women, are hard-pressed to cope with old age, this is at least partly so because the elderly, and particularly women, receive almost no preparation for old age. We educate young people for their careers and their adulthood, but we do not often educate adults for their retirement and their old age, for a period of their lives during which they may well have to manage for the first time on their own to feed, shelter, support and amuse themselves.

But not entirely on their own. We already provide a wide range of medical, recreational and support services for the elderly. We do not, however, take sufficient pains to ensure that elderly people, particularly those who live alone in urban areas, are aware of what services exist or of how to go about using them.

Improvements are essential on both these fronts. People must be encouraged, through the education system and through the news media, to plan for their retirement, to make arrangements in advance. We must also ensure that those services to the elderly that we do provide are well publicized and effectively deployed.

Chinese Food and Television Too

By RICHARD COHEN
The Washington Post

The exact moment becomes frozen in my mind. It happened in a restaurant where a group of us had gone to eat, as they used to say, Chinese. Someone mentioned that the Nutcracker was on television that night and all the ballet buffs at the table groaned about missing it. There was a woman there, blonde, in case that's important, eating Moo Shi pork, which is important, and she said, "We're taping it." Then she threw her husband a let-them-eat-cake look and said, "We'll see it later tonight." I had the urge to kill.

* * *

Forget envy. I was not envious. It was something else and it had to do with the fact that some pretty fundamental laws of nature were being tampered with that night — laws having to do with how you can't be two places at the same time, how you can't have your cake and eat it, too.

At any rate, ever since that night, I've been obsessed with videotape recorders. I read all the ads and I go stare at them in the stores, thinking, in my own way, that they are somewhat magical. I wonder what they will mean in the long run, whether they will change the way children are raised, whether they will alter the rules we live by, the notion that life, for instance, is a series of options — that you can't have it all.

Now, with television, you can and there is something about that that offends the Cotton Mather in me. That Puritan streak that holds that deprivation strengthens character. You can have your ballet or your Moo Shi pork but not, I submit, both.

I have to tell you, though, that I react with panic to most technological innovations. When I first heard of automatic dialing machines, I couldn't sleep. I kept thinking about what would happen if one of them called an automatic answering machine. Do you come home to find that you now subscribe to 32 magazines and the food-of-the-month club?

But I digress. It is videotape machines that set me off and so what I did is call a friend and discuss the subject with her. She said that the people who bought these machines to replay the programs they were too busy to watch would also be too busy to watch the tapes. They would always be behind, the tapes stacking up somewhere near the machine — mounds and mounds of sporting events, maybe all of I Claudius and an episode or two of Upstairs, Downstairs.

That's the notion the people who make these machines want to get across — that you can watch more television. Maybe you can, but the people I talk to who own these gizmos say that's not the case at all. The woman who taped the ballet, for instance, works nights and tapes shows that she misses. I called her in the afternoon and she had just finished watching the Lou Grant Show, taped the night before. That told me something. I called another friend and he told me that he tapes nothing but old movies that play in the afternoon. He watches them late at night and he watches them without commercials — putting the machine on fast forward when it comes time to sell something.

I continued to gather information. I learned of a guy who pays his kids to tape shows without the commercials. Apparently, they get up and turn off the tape machine when a commercial comes on, and then turn it on when the program resumes. I learned lots of people fast-forward the commercials and what I got, all in all, was a picture of people not using the machine to watch everything that was on television, but people using the machine to watch television for them — people who were knocking the concept of prime time into a cocked hat and who were ripping off television by not watching the commercials. How interesting. How delicious.

* * *

And then I remembered something. I remembered all those talk shows where they tell you that they have taped it the day before. What I'm talking about is the feeling you get that they were making you watch what they wanted you to watch when they wanted you to watch it and the feeling you get now that the day is coming when one night there will be nothing in front of the nation's television screens but videotape recorders.

The rest of us will be at Chinese restaurants.

Mrs. Gresham's Law

katharine whitehorn

LONDON — Murphy's Law states that if it can go wrong it will; Gallagher's Law asserts that we all of us have terrible friends, we are all of us somebody's terrible friends; the original Gresham's Law stated that bad currency drives out good: for if someone has been chipping pieces off the gold sovereigns, if the dollar's all but devalued, everyone will hang on to their good whole coins (or Deutsche Marks) until the dud stuff has been rounded up or got back its value.

What is less well known is Mrs. Gresham's Law, which she never got to state in public because of the law itself: which is that bad men drive out good women. Her findings have only recently been given an airing, since their workings are mainly seen when trades or professions in which the sexes have been kept apart are suddenly blended together like oil and water. The men float to the top, like oil; the women, like water, self-effacingly downwards.

Ask any football player whether beer is a male thing or a female thing, and he'll tell you it's male — if he can still speak, that is. Yet Brewster, the surname, is all that remains of the fact that in medieval England beer-making was done by women: -ster and stre were feminine endings; there were women burghers who were respected ale-wives in their own right. As beer more and more moved out of the kitchen and into the brewery, it became a job with status and pay; guess who wanted the pay — and got it. No more top women brewers.

In nursing, there used to be a formidable structure more or less founded in Britain by Florence Nightingale; it was tougher and a lot more competent than the parallel Germanic one, in which the nurses were just the handmaids of doctors. Or the southern European one, where they were nuns of greater or less skill at doing anything to the patient other than pray over him.

In the Nightingale tradition, you started as a trembling probationer, gradually travelled up the ladder of Nurse and Sister and finally, with a figure like a battleship and corsets to match, indomitable, starched and in total control, emerged as Matron, in charge of a whole hospital. Such a woman would have enough guts and competence and experience to stand up to any number of mere doctors; male nurses might exist, and indeed did, but they were poor fish compared to the women and nobody took much notice of them.

But then, in Britain, came the great reorganization which was designed to give a Proper Career Structure to the profession — i.e. it was supposed to take administration as a separate and serious entity and so of course a majority of these new hospital administrators are men. There's no way in which they are likely actually to be better than the women, since any half-way competent man who's interested in medicine sets his sights on being a doctor; but if a job is supposed to be important and administrative, it's just taken for granted that a man should get it.

And the same with education. Bedford College, in London, used to have a brilliant reputation — and only women. It admitted men; so it now has a male principal. Blend two schools, a girls' and a boys', and anyone will give you betting odds of 10-1 the male head will displace the female.

They've got a unified police force now, so there's no indomitable tough figure at the head of the women's police — but Scotland Yard's top dining room has still had only three women eat there in its whole history — and two of them were relations of the Commissioner.

Say it is the inevitable inheritance of your genes, if you're a sentimental male chauvinist; say it's the women's damn tendency not to push hard enough, if you're a feminist. But don't ever let go of an all-female institution, ladies, until you've got a signed, sealed, written confirmation that the top jobs will be divided equally by sex, and that the actual boss figure will be alternatively male and female.

As Michael Korda said in his book Success!, if a woman ever did get to be president of the United States, it would suddenly be the vice-presidency that was considered really important.

A Bouquet of Diamonds.
•
An Utterly Feminine Ring
– A FANTASTIC BUY
at $395.

What a beautiful Ring!

This is a dreamy, love-at-first-sight ring!
A discreet cluster of Birks diamonds, sparkling in a classic setting of 14kt. yellow or white gold . . . creating a ring that is stunning yet delicate . . . that has flash without flamboyance.

What a Beautiful Price!

We bought the diamonds in this ring last year at what were then very good prices—thanks to our buying power. In fact, the ring would be excellent value even at last year's prices.
But since then, world diamond prices have gone up very substantially—making this ring now an even more fantastic value!
Very white diamonds, well cut and of above average quality, set in a lovely gold mounting. And at $395. far below its present market value!

Toronto

Westeel-Rosco Ltd. climbed 5⅝ to $21⅝ a share on the sale of 10,638 shares following its resumption at the opening after Jannock Ltd. reported its offer of all remaining shares at $21¾ a share.

Y and R Properties Ltd. was untraded following a one-hour opening delay for dissemination of news that Oxford Development Group Ltd. will offer $25 a share for all outstanding Y and ½ shares beyond the 52 per cent it now holds.

Among other industrials, Pacific Petroleums declined 1¼ to $37¼, Imperial General Properties 1 to $19, Home Oil A ¾ to $39¾, Canadian Imperial Bank ¼ to $28 and Northern Telecom ⅝ to $30¼.

D. H. Howden gained 1⅛ to $11, Argus Corp. 1 to $35, Alcan ⅛ to $31½, Dome Petroleum ⅝ to $63¼ and Alberta Energy ¼ to $16⅛.

Rio Algom dropped ⅝ to $30⅛, Roman Corp. ⅜ to $26¾ and Orchan Mines A 15 cents to $2.65.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were generally lower in moderate trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange. Pancanadian Petroleum lost ¼ at $32¾, Imperial Oil A ⅜ at $18⅞, Alcan ⅜ at $31¼, Simpson's Ltd. ⅛ at $5¼, Oshawa A ⅛ at $5⅝ and Inco A ⅛ at $18. B.C. Telephone gained ⅛ at $15⅛ and Cominco ½ at $27. Among speculative issues, Mount Pleasant Mines Ltd. advanced 1½ cents to 23½ cents on a volume of 15,000 shares traded.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market ran into some selling today and pulled back a bit after the explosive rally of the past two weeks.

That downturn seemed to encourage further selling by traders who believed the market had reached at least a short-term peak.

Brokers also noted that the dollar declined in foreign-exchange trading, helping to diminish buying interest among overseas investors.

British Petroleum topped the active list, up ¼ to $14½. A 105,500-share block traded at $14⅜.

Blue chip issues losing ground in active trading included General Motors, down ⅞ to $65⅝; Exxon, off ⅜ to $47¾, and Sears Roebuck, ⅜ lower to $25⅜.

London

LONDON (CP) — The London stock market was sharply higher near the close of light trading. The Financial Times index was up 8.4 to 466.2 an hour before the close. Leading equities climbed, while oils slipped back from earlier highs. Mining issues gained.

$ EXCHANGE

In Victoria today purchase of U.S. funds in terms of Canadian dollars is 1.1220 for cash, 1.1250 for cheques and 1.0900 for coins. Selling rates are 1.1380 for cash and 1.1375 for cheques.

MONTREAL (CP) — U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds at noon today was down 1-25 at $1.1320. Pound sterling was up 1.39 at $2.0766.

N.Y. Times

A strong surge by affiliated companies contributed almost 70 per cent of the New York Times Co.'s first quarter operating profit, chairman Arthur Ochs Sulzberger told shareholders at the annual meeting.

The company reported a first quarter profit of $7,099,000 or 61 cents a share, up from $5,378,000 or 47 cents a share in the 1977 quarter. Sales rose to $138.3 million from $116.5 million.

It said affiliated papers recorded a 31-per-cent increase in operating profits to $2,069,000, up from $1,585,000 in the 1977 quarter. The magazine group's operating profit rose 65 per cent to $4.97 million from $3.01 million a year earlier.

Sulzberger said the New York Times' first quarter advertising sales increased nine per cent to $64.5 million from $59.4 million a year earlier.

He said circulation for weekday issues climbed 12,000 copies while Sunday circulation advanced 7,000 copies.

Texaco Inc.

Texaco Incorporated profits slumped to $187.3 million or 69 cents a share for the first quarter, from $242.6 million or 89 cents a share, a year ago. Texaco said profits were reduced by $26.8 million from foreign currency translations. Sales declined to $6.99 billion from $7.08 billion.

IBM

The head of the giant International Business Machine Corp. gave shareholders a glowing report on the firm's business prospects but squashed speculation about a possible stock split.

IBM chairman Frank Cary told the annual meeting, that IBM often has considered splitting its stock but does not feel the time was appropriate.

He said the company is expanding its worldwide manufacturing capacity to meet record demand for its products and now has the "largest order backlogs" in its history.

He said the company has increased investment worldwide in manufacturing equipment and is in the process of adding 10,000 more workers between 1977 and 1978.

He declined to make any profit forecasts for IBM this year but said the company has a "tremendous backlog" that would have an impact on future business.

Shell Oil

Shell Oil Company reported a five-per-cent rise in profits for the March quarter, and said capital and exploration spending for the year likely will rise six per cent to $2.1 billion.

Profits at Shell climbed to $193 million or $1.3 a share, from $184 million or $1.2 a share in the 1977 quarter. Sales rose to $2.6 billion from 2.4 billion.

Dam Builder Admits Queries on Bidding

VANCOUVER (CP) - The president of the company that built the $150 million Mica Dam powerhouse for British Columbia Hydro says his company obtained no unfair advantage through contacting Hydro officials before and after bidding for the contract.

C. L. Robertson, president of Loram International of Calgary, was commenting in an interview published today by the Province on a Hydro lawyer's diary which records efforts by Robertson and others to query Hydro spokesmen for information and advice related to the bidding.

The contract was put to tender twice—once on a fixed-price basis and the second time as a target-price, cost-plus form of contract. Mannix Co. Ltd., as Loram International was known at the time of the bidding in October, 1972, lost the first time.

William Mitchell, head of Hydro's legal division, wrote in his diary before the tenders were opened that he was told by Keith Kidd, head of Hydro's gas division that Robertson wanted to discuss different types of bids with him.

The diaries also disclose that Derril Warren, who was then B.C.'s Progressive Conservative leader but not an MLA, also acted as an emissary for the winning contractor in the early stages of the bidding.

Warren wanted to know Mitchell's views on conditional tendering, Mitchell wrote.

Mitchell wrote that in the first round of bidding, Atkinson-Harney Corp. and Dravo of Canada Ltd. and Arundel Mica Contstruction and Dixon Canada Inc., and Commonwealth Construction were low bidders at $155,909,975—beating Mannix by $121,620. Further negotiations reduced the low bid by another $6 million.

Two weeks after the bids were opened, Mannix wrote to Bob Williams, minister of lands, forests and water resources in the former New Democratic Party government and a Hydro director, saying Mannix should be the low bidder and that it made no qualifications in its tender.

In January, 1973, the three original bidders were told they would be invited to submit bids on the new target-price basis. Mannix bid $72,152,945, about $31 million less than the Atkinson group.

A Hydro estimate in 1974 said the final cost of the project would be about $151 million but Hydro officials will not say what it actually cost.

Asked about his efforts to obtain bidding information from Mitchell, Robertson said there was "no attempt to obtain an unfair advantage in this sort of thing at all, just efforts to get information . . . there was no lobbying or pressure."

How Your Garden Grows

Keeping evergreens healthy

Evergreens are divided into two main groups:

Coniferous evergreens. There are 6 main families of these needle-bearing evergreens: cypress, juniper, pines, firs, spruce and yews. All of these trees and shrubs require a slightly acid soil, high humidity and good drainage. They also need a fertilizer high in nitrogen—Green Valley 10-6-4 Evergreen Food is an ideal choice.

Broadleaved evergreens. These vary greatly in size, shape, bloom, etc. Included in this group are rhododendron, azaleas, aucubas, skimmias, camellias, viburnums and laurels. Generally, these plants need an acid soil, ample moisture and partial shade. They require a slow-acting plant food, comparatively high in phosphorous and potash. Green Valley Rhododendron & Azalea Food meets these requirements perfectly. Broadleaved evergreens should be fed in early spring, and again after blooming.

Lost Hand Back in Place

VANCOUVER (CP) — Manuel Medeiros, 20, of Vancouver had his left hand severed in an industrial accident April 19, but the next day it was back in place following an operation at Vancouver General Hospital's hand-injury clinic.

Dr. Peter Gropper, director of the hospital's hand surgical service, said Mederios's reattached hand is the first operation of its kind in British Columbia and one of the few successful hand replants in Canada.

It took two surgeons and their assistants 13 hours to reconnect the bones, tendons, nerves, arteries and veins in Medeiros's hand.

Gropper said Tuesday he hopes Medeiros can begin hand-movement exercises within four weeks, although he cautioned that it will take a year to fully assess the effect of the operation.

Medeiros, who had worked for only one week at his furniture factory job, was trying to remove a piece of wood from a hand saw when the accident occurred.

"I went to move it and my buddy working beside me . . . pressed the button . . . I yelled out for help," he said. "But by the time I yelled out, the plate already had my hand.

He said when he opened his eyes, "somebody was holding my hand right in front of my face — man, did I freak out."

A co-worker took the hand from the machinery and kept it cold, until the doctors could operate.

Gropper said the success of replantation operations is due to microsurgery, magnifying tiny vessels and nerves by more than 20 times their actual size.

He said the two major arteries in Medeiros's hand to be reconnected were about two millimetres in diameter and a special thread so small it could not be seen with the naked eye had to be used.

Medeiros said that he moves the hand every day, and although doctors tell him it will never have the same strength he plans to go back to work at the same job.

"I've got to do it to prove I'm not afraid," he said.

Oil Exploration Planned In Queen Charlottes

VANCOUVER (CP) — Intercoast Resources Corp. said Wednesday that it will begin exploration of 50,000 acres of oil shale property in the Queen Charlotte Islands this summer.

Intercoast, formerly Skaist Mines Ltd., said it has received permits from the provincial government to explore and develop the property and under an option agreement Link Oil and Gas Ltd., of Calgary, will spend $150,000 in exploration during the next 12 months.

Intercoast president John Robertson said a crew will go into the area next week to begin preliminary prospecting and mapping.

Laboratory tests on the shale previously conducted by the company showed oil content of up to 40 United States gallons a ton of shale.

Robertson said it could cost about $8.55 to extract a barrel of oil. However, U.S. experts have said that oil shale extraction in that country would cost a great deal more than the current Middle East market price of $12.71 a barrel.

Intercoast entered into an option agreement in 1974 for 10,000 acres of property on Graham Island near Queen Charlotte City. However, the New Democratic Party government placed the shale under the control of the Petroleum Act, instead of the Mineral Act, and the company terminated its research and took legal action against the province.

When the Social Credit government was elected, a settlement was reached whereby Intercoast increased its interest to 50,000 acres.

Widow Forced Out of Home

BURNABY (CP) — After raising a family in the house granted to her disabled husband 24 years ago, Lillian Mann of Burnaby is fighting to save her property from expropriation.

Council in this municipality adjacent to Vancouver wants to add Mrs. Mann's green half-acre to property it already owns in order to build a library and recreational development.

Mrs. Mann said Tuesday she isn't interested in council's offer of $87,000 and rent-free accommodation until May 31 because she can't afford to live elsewhere with her two children on a widow's pension of $447 a month.

Council has taken steps to expropriate the land if it cannot negotiate a deal, but it will have to wait for permission from the federal cabinet in Ottawa because the land was deeded to Mrs. Mann's husband, a navy-veteran, under the Veterans' Land Act.

"They (council) told me my house was worthless because it's over 50 years old" said Mrs. Mann as she pointed out the solid woodwork of the two-storey house and the blossoming fruit trees on the land.

Mrs. Mann says she was surprised by council's preparations to expropriate because she had been informed in December that council was not interested in her property.

"They seem to have tacked my property on at the last minute" she said.

Former B.C. Telephone Employee Fined $500

VANCOUVER (CP) — Graeme Joseph Apps, 28, of Vancouver, the only employee not rehired after an 81-day strike-lockout at the British Columbia Telephone Co., was fined $500 Wednesday in provincial court on a charge of false pretences.

Apps pleaded guilty April 12.

Apps appeared between Nov. 25 to 27, at Moore Business Forms in Vancouver and posed as B.C. Tel management representative who was to pick up $3,200 worth of billing forms. The firm had been unable to deliver the forms because of picket lines, and B.C. Tel management had agreed to pick them up.

The Telecommunication Workers Union has filed a grievance which is going to arbitration. Apps has paid restitution for the billing forms.

Court Backs Tax Revision

VANCOUVER (CP) — A British Columbia Court of Appeal judgment has dismissed an appeal by the City of Prince Rupert against an assessment reduction ordered by the assessment appeal board for Canadian Cellulose Co. Ltd.'s sulphite pulp plant on Watson Island at Prince Rupert.

Justices A. B. B. Carrothers and E. E. Hinkson upheld a B.C. Supreme Court ruling that the assessment appeal board was right in holding that CanCel's sulphite operation no longer existed.

The pollution control branch earlier had ordered CanCel to install pollution control devices, which would have cost $80 million, or shut the mill down by Dec. 31, 1979. However, the company decided to convert the sulphite mill into a kraft pulp mill.

Justice Carrothers said this decision "was a credit to the resilience and resourcefulness of the CanCel directors."

The judge said that instead of spending the $80 million on pollution control or alternatively shutting down the mill permanently, the directors decided to modify the mill to the manufacture of bleached kraft, and by employing slightly more capital, achieved a mill of greater capacity and able to meet the required levels of pollution control.

The judge held that in law both the pollution control order and the conversion were the subject of an enforceable government order which limited the life of the 25-year-old sulphite mill and would improve the character and quality of the industrial climate of Prince Rupert.

He said he thought the city of Prince Rupert "would have been the last to argue" that the conversion was a retrograde step and not new development.

Third member of the appeal court, Justice W. A. Craig dissented and would have allowed the appeal.

Murder Charge Laid

PORT ALBERNI (CP) — Peter Douglas Creagh, 22, of Port Alberni, will appear in court next Wednesday on a charge of second-degree murder laid after a man was kicked to death.

Terrence Francis Tobin, 19, of Fort McMurray, Alta., died Sunday in hospital in Victoria from severe injuries suffered in a fight early Friday in this Vancouver Island city.

Witnesses said Tobin was outside a discotheque when he was knocked down by a man and was kicked repeatedly in the head.

Creagh, originally charged with attempted murder, appeared in court Tuesday and was remanded for a week.

$60,000 To CNIB

The provincial government has given the B.C. division of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind a grant of $60,000.

"This is a special one-time grant because of a deficit incurred by the CNIB during the last fiscal year, primarily in the operation of their talking book service," said Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy in a news release.

She also announced that the Social Planning and Review Council of B.C. has been given a grant of $2,450 to develop identification decals for vehicles used by handicapped drivers.

L.A. Quivers

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — A weak earthquake shook the southern Los Angeles area late Tuesday night, but apparently did no damage and caused no injuries.

Lawyer No Surety of Big Award

VANCOUVER (CP) — Hiring the smartest lawyer in town is no guarantee an accident victim will be awarded the largest amount of damages, a spokesman for British Columbia legal profession said Wednesday.

James J. Camp, of Vancouver, insurance spokesman for the B.C. branch of the Canadian Bar Association, said it is untrue that courts are greatly influenced by the ability of counsel when awarding damages.

Camp was responding to a statement from Education Minister Pat McGeer, the minisr responsible for the Insurance Corporation of B.C., who has called for a major reform of B.C.'s automobile insurance system.

McGeer said he would like a set scale of benefits for those injured in road accidents instead of the present system where decisions are thrashed out in lengthy court trials with the smartest lawyers winning the biggest awards for their clients.

"I have to admit there are some differences in the ability of counsel," said Camp. "But it is not a fact to say that good lawyers will give you the largest recovery in an action.

"Judges are bound by previous cases and they have a pretty good idea of what awards will be regardless of counsel," he said. "Judges do ensure there is a considerable degree of uniformity in damage awards."

Camp also said that losses resulting from accidents can only be assessed on an individual basis, and disagreed with McGeer's view that a person wishing to ensure higher benefits than those contained in the set scale should be required to purchase additional insurance.

"The loss of a finger to a concert pianist would likely destroy his career while it may hardly affect another person's employment," said Camp. "But just because a person is a concert pianist doesn't necessarily mean he is wealthy and can afford to pay the extra insurance."

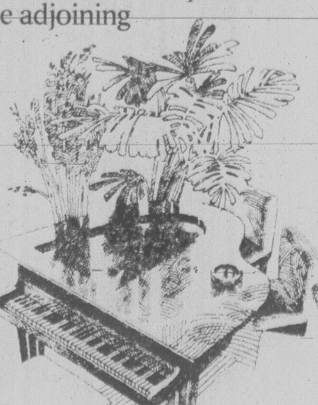
The Four Seasons is at the corner of Georgia and Howe, right downtown.

The shopping is great – lots of boutiques and specialty shops in the adjoining Pacific Centre Mall. The theatre district and Gastown are close, too. It's all very handy. Right in the heart of things in Vancouver.



As for me – well, the hotel itself is my ideal, of course. The service is impeccable. The atmosphere, restrained elegance. My wife and I love to dine in Le Pavillon and relax together later in the recreational spa. I like being there – because I feel they like my being there, too.

We think the Four Seasons is the best hotel in Vancouver.

Blais Won't Confirm Surveillance

Andrew Brewin (NDP-Toronto Greenwood) said Blais' response to Stanfield's queries were "weak-kneed, foolish, misleading and thoroughly unsound."

Blais said the RCMP has complied with Prime Minister Trudeau's March, 1975, directives to stop systematic surveillance of political parties. But he said no individual suspected of terrorism, espionage or subversion is exempt from RCMP surveillance despite their membership in any organization, political or otherwise.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for RCMP headquarters said in an interview it has never been policy to discuss internal communication but "we've not seen the one (instructions manual) you're alluding to."

Elmer MacKay (PC-Central Nova) urged Blais to tell MPs how far he will go in refusing to answer questions on grounds the activities in question are being examined by the RCMP.

"The solicitor-general should definitively say to what limit he will go in apologizing, covering up or condoning lack of information which surely he must know as minister and was entitled to receive before this time," MacKay said.

He said Blais ought to tell MPs "whether he is in fact satisfied with the attitutudes and truthfulness of some of the top officials of the RCMP on which he has to depend for information which in turn he s to give to the House."

MacKay said he believes this was necessary in light of answers Supt. J. P. Nowlan gave to McDonald commission counsel Bruno Pateras who asked if there is a limit in giving false information. MacKay said Nowlan replied that it depended on the situation.

Blais also confirmed Wednesday 24 RCMP reports to former solicitor-general Jean-Pierre Goyer concerning electronic surveillance are missing and probably were destroyed—although he's not sure.

Blais gave the Commons several versions of what happened to the 1971 and 1972 documents, sought by the McDonald commission investigating RCMP wrongdoing, before admitting that they were "presumed destroyed."

Outside the Commons, opposition MPs accused the government of covering up potentially embarrassing documents which could show how much Goyer knew of the RCMP's illegal activities.

Goyer told the Commons that any reports to him when he was solicitor-generalwere in the hands of the RCMP and he never ordered them destroyed.

Bill Jarvis (Perth Wilmot), Conservative critic of the solicitor-general, told reporters he does not believe the files were destroyed, because "I believe the solicitor-general to be incompetent, I believe him to be uninformed, and I believe him to be stonewalling me."

Questioned by the opposition about reports of the loss of the documents, Blais stumbled through a series of long answers about the RCMP's practice of destroying reports after three years.

He said there was evidence before the McDonald commission that the monthly reports from the criminal investigation division to Goyer were destroyed in accordance with normal force policy.

"The documents are not there, they have not been found and they are presumed destroyed," he said moments later.

Political Plugs Curbed

OTTAWA (CP) — Limits on the amount of advertising time registered political parties can buy during the next federal election campaign were announced Wednesday by the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC).

The CRTC also announced the allocation of free time radio and TV networks will have to make available to the parties during the campaign.

The broadcasting rule changes result from amendments last year to the Election Expenses Act, which among other things limited the amount of money that can be spent on federal election campaigns.

Under the new limits, the Liberals will be able to purchase up to 155 minutes of prime time on each radio and TV station, the Progressive Conservatives 134 minutes, the New Democratic Party 63 minutes, the Social Credit party 22 minutes and both the Communist Party of Canada and the Marxist-Leninist Party of Canada can purchase up to eight minutes each.

The CRTC said in a news release that the limits were set following discussions with the parties. It also said that under no circumstances could the parties purchase more than the allotted time.

Sinn Fein Swoop Nets 15

BELFAST (Reuter) — Police and troops in Northern Ireland arrested 15 leading members of the Sinn Fein, the political wing of the Irish Republican Army (IRA), today in a series of raids.

The 300 uniformed police and 30 detectives also raided the headquarters of the Sinn Fein and confiscated hundreds of documents.

Informed sources said police were investigating links between the Sinn Fein, a legal political party, and the outlawed IRA. Detectives also were looking for links with groups in the Middle East, West Germany and France, they said.

Sinn Fein officials said police took away books, pamphlets, posters and lists of the organization's international contacts.

Coup Topples Kabul Regime

ISLAMABAD (Reuter) — The armed forces in Afghanistan said today they had toppled the government of President Mohammad Daoud, the country's ruler for the last five years, after heavy fighting in the capital city of Kabul.

The coup was apparently sparked by an earlier Kabul Radio announcement that seven Communist leaders had been arrested.

One of Afghanistan's most prominent Communists, Mir Akbar Khaibir, was shot to death on April 17. Two days later 15,000 people bearing his body marched past the U.S. Embassy denouncing the U. S. Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) and fought with security police.

In announcements broadcast by Kabul Radio and monitored here, the rebels said Gen. Dagarwal Abdul Khadir had been named head of the military Revolutionary Council.

The fighting in Kabul broke out around noon local time. Tanks and automatic weapons raked central sections of the city with concentrated fire and Soviet-built MiG—21 jet planes strafed and bombed Kabul Airport.

The armed forces announced a curfew for tonight and said anyone violating the Revolutionary Council's orders would be dealt with.

Daoud took control of the country in July, 1973, after leading a successful coup against his cousin, King Zahir Shah, and establishing a republic.

Daoud, 68, had drawn criticism for his attempts to establish a one-party state and his way of instituting land reforms in the mountainous country, which borders the Soviet Union, Pakistan, Iran and China.

No word on the whereabouts of Daoud had reached the Pakistan capital of Islamabad by tonight.

Mountainous Afghanistan has been fought over for centuries because of its strategic location at the crossroads of central Asia. Estimates of its population vary from 17 million to 20 million, mostly illiterate peasants or nomadic tribesmen.

Miners Trapped

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Twenty-three gold miners were still trapped underground today following an earth tremor Wednesday, and officials said 13 of them were known to be alive.

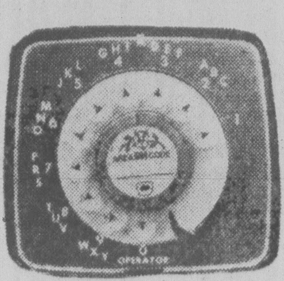
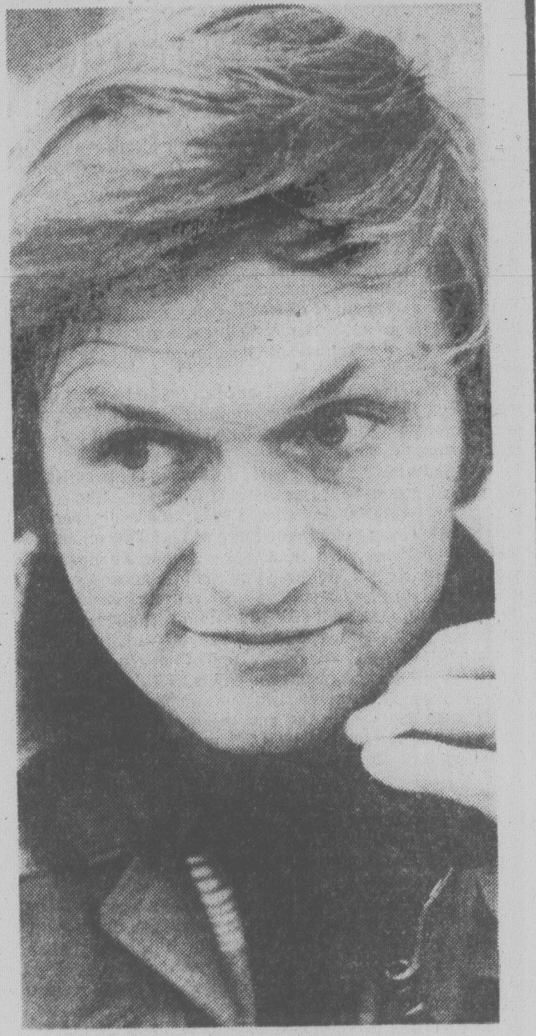
Now It's a Divorce





LAWYER JACK JAMES

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

The brainchild of Jack James, a 34-year-old lawyer and publisher of self-counsel books, dial-a-divorce is a new concept in legal services in Canada.

His company, International Self-Counsel Press Ltd. of North Vancouver, started the service, modelled after a similar operation in California, last month.

All a person has to do is phone the toll-free number 800-663-3007 and James and his team of legal secretaries and lawyers swing into action, completing all the paperwork necessary for anyone seeking an uncontested divorce.

They'll also handle over-the-phone requests to form companies and help prepare simple wills.

It's fast and easy, James said in an interview, and customers can even pay by Mastercharge or Chargex.

Despite widespread advertising (he was a guest on five radio and TV shows during a recent one-day visit to Victoria promoting the service), he hasn't received any flak yet from the Law Society.

"I understand they're looking pretty seriously at what we're doing," he says.

But he's all set to defend the operation.

"We're really not practising law in the strict sense of the word," he says. "We don't go into court, we don't handle the negotiations nor do we do anything that could result in irreconcilable harm.

"All we do is the paperwork. That's it.

"Sure there's a certain element of risk. But with anything worthwhile there's risk. And if it works, well, it'll give the people another option."

James, who graduated from University of B.C. with a law degree in 1970, says the majority of the 10,000-plus divorces in B.C. each year are uncontested and relatively simple to process from a legal standpoint.

Persons can save hundreds of dollars by doing some, if not all, of the work themselves.

Providing the person files the proper papers and is able to prove the grounds for divorce, a divorce application can't be refused by the court, he says. The actual court costs amount to only $30 in B.C., $20 in Alberta and $50 in Ontario.

His fee for over-the-phone incorporations is a flat $100, excluding registration costs which run about $130. It takes him only about an hour to complete the documentation. The normal tariff for incorporations is $250 or more.

And he provides a money-back guarantee.

"The worst thing that can happen in a divorce is it being turned down," he says. "If it's our fault we'll return the fee."

On an average day he gets about eight calls. In divorce matters, the majority are woman.

He says he's surprised by the number of callers who are still living in the same house as their spouses at the time of initiating the divorce.

The most frequently asked question is "Can we do the divorce ourselves?" The reply is, of course, "Yes."

He says the biggest problem, aside from people not knowing the permissable grounds for divorce, are people who have married under unusual circumstances and want the marriage annulled.

There are also situations where one spouse hasn't seen the other for years and wonders if it's okay to remarry.

Judging by the calls he's received, he says bigamy is probably far more widespread than people might think.

He won't touch complex cases involving property settlement and child custody matters. Those he refers to the person's own lawyer or a lawyer experienced in family law.

The types of calls reflect the social mix and mores in each community. For instance, there are more calls concerning divorces coming from Edmonton than, say, Toronto. Not surprising, James says, Edmonton has the highest per capita divorce rate in Canada, while conservative Ontario has one of the lowest.

In Victoria, wills are always popular, he says. That's not surprising either. Senior citizens account for 15 per cent of Victoria's population compared with 10 per cent for the country as a whole.

James says people who make their own wills commonly make several kinds of mistakes — like having a beneficiary act as witness, or neglecting to state the reason for disinheriting a family member, or selecting as executor someone older who dies first.

Realtors Will Join In Qualified Study

The Victoria Real Estate Board will accept a challenge from Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf to organize a task force to study the need for a third department store downtown.

But there's a proviso — the study must include the need for a convention centre as well, board president Bev Highton said today.

"I understand Mr. Bawlf has asked businessmen to form a task force but nothing has been done. We would be pleased to get the ball rolling. All Mr. Bawlf has to do is ask."

This would be in line with a decision by the Victoria Real Estate board Wednesday to take a more active role in community affairs, Highton said.

He made the comments after releasing a statement from the board as a result of Wednesday's meeting. The board defended Highton's comments — which were cool to a third department store but urged a convention centre be constructed downtown — and added the board planned to make similar comments about Victoria's needs in the near future.

"It is our hope that personal slights will not be cast on each such occasion," the board said in its press release.

This was apparently a reference to a statement by Bawlf that Highton was ignorant of Victoria's needs if he opposed a third department store downtown. Highton had not specifically opposed it but had said it was a low priority.

The board said the top priorities for the district are:

—A convention, civic and arts centre;

—An industrial park in Saanich;

—The retention of present industries in the Victoria area.

"We believe that if these items are looked after and supported, then the rest will follow as a matter of course in response to a viable community," the board said.

"We know the minister (Bawlf) is interested in the revitalization of the downtown core. So is the Victoria Real Estate Board and so is everyone who has the best interest of the community at heart."

Controversy erupted after Bawlf told the annual meeting of the Victoria Downtown Business Association April 19 that businessmen should immediately form a task force to obtain a third department store or shopping complex in the downtown core or the city would wither while the suburbs grow.

No group has accepted the challenge until today when Highton said he was certain the Victoria Real Estate board would be willing to get the ball rolling if invited to do so by Bawlf.

Highton said the board's Industrial, Commercial and Investment committee would be the ideal group to begin the study.

"We would hope that the Victoria Downtown Business Association, the Victoria Chamber of Commerce and any other interested organization would participate in the study."

Highton stressed that the task force should deal with all the needs of the downtown core and not just the possibility of establishing a third department store.

He said the task force should gather together the many reports on a convention centre as a first step. Most of the studying has been done and all a committee would need to do is co-ordinate all the work, he said.

Highton said he hopes the debate with Bawlf will come to an end with the present statement by the board because there is little to be gained by prolonged argument.

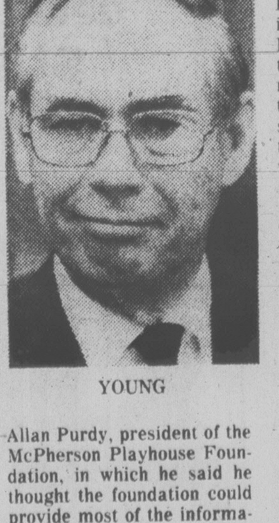
FIRST STEP ON CENTRE



YOUNG

The argument over who should get the credit if a convention-civic centre is built cooled to some polite posturing Wednesday and Capital Regional District directors decided to take the first step.

Executive-director Dennis Young will prepare terms of reference for a proposed feasibility study on the centre.

The centre is still in the discussion stage but would include two halls, one to hold 1,500 delegates and another one suitable for the performing arts. This second hall in the building would mainly benefit Victorians, according to the concept.

In taking the step Wednesday, the directors ratified a recommendation by Murray Glazier's regional planning and economic development committee. They received and filed a recommendation by Shirley Dowell's regional grants committee.

Earlier this month Dowell and regional board chairman Jim Campbell had clashed over whether her committee or Glazier's should take the initiative.

At Wednesday's meeting a carefully-worded letter from Campbell was read, outlining the reason why he felt the matter should be brought to the board as quickly as possible and dealt with, basically, as an economic development matter.

Then Dowell quoted minutes of meetings held Jan. 26 and Feb. 26 which stated Campbell had considered changing the terms of reference of Dowell's committee to include work on the centre.

She also read a letter from Allan Purdy, president of the McPherson Playhouse Foundation, in which he said he thought the foundation could provide most of the information needed for a feasibility study. He suggested a joint committee be struck, chaired by Dowell.

Nor did they take action on an announcement by Dowell that she had been told Tuesday night that the West Coast Savings Credit Union is willing to donate $20,000 for a feasibility study, providing a committee is struck with representatives from Victoria, the regional district and the provincial governent and including Purdy as an adviser.

Campbell said he presumed West Coast would make its offer in writing and, after the meeting, Dowell said she would ask that this be done.

Hallmark Society Unhappy

A vote of non-confidence in present heritage legislation and the city of Victoria's ability to interpret it was passed Wednesday night at a meeting of the Hallmark Society.

The move was promted by the lack of action both at city hall and from Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf's office to protect two houses on Belleville Street from possible demolition.

In a letter to city council last month Hallmark president Kandy Wyatt said: "These homes . . . are both over 100 years old and are fine examples of Italianate and Eclectic Italianate styles.

"We feel that it is imperative that these fine examples of architecture be preserved as part of Victoria's heritage . . . It seems contradictory that we could honor our heritage in the Captain Cook bicentennial year by spending millions of dollars to promote our history only to allow a considerable part of that history to be demolished before our very eyes."

Wyatt urged council to do everything in its power to have the homes designated Heritage and to prevent their destruction.

The houses in question operate as the Land of the Little People and Judge Hunter's Haunted House.

Council has taken no action to designate the building, but neither has it issued any demolition permits.

The matter was last brought up at city hall in a land use planning committee meeting April 4 but no decisions were made.

The province has taken no action either.

Hallmark vice-president Carolyn Smyly said: "Each one is saying it's the other's responsibility, but when the buck-passing is finished the houses will be in splinters."

Ald. Bob Wright, head of council's heritage advisory committee, was out of town today and could not be reached for comment.

Ask The Times

Q. Does the word Pasha mean military commander? T.R.M.

A. Yes. It applied to commanders of high rank in the Turkish Empire, but at one time it was limited to the princes of blood. The title is derived from the Persian.

Tall Ships too Much For the Inner Harbor

HELMCKEN

There won't be any shortage of sail in the Inner Harbor this summer but the towering masts of the Tall Ships won't be among them.

Every inch of wharf space will be jammed with sailing vessels July 20-24, with eight of them measuring over 100 feet in length, but the Tall Ships will be berthed at Ogden Point.

At a press conference called by the Greater Victoria Captain Cook Bicentenary Committee Wednesday, city archivist Ainslie Helmcken explained that since sailing vessels began to call on the port of Victoria the shallow water at Shoal Point has kept the big ones from entering the Inner Harbor.

Helmcken said when Fort Victoria was built in 1843 ships had to drop anchor outside the harbor.

That wasn't the only bad news released by the committee. It was also revealed that the Tall Ships race from Honolulu to Victoria will end well out at sea, off Cape Flattery, as it would be hazardous to mix the sailing vessels with commercial traffic in Juan de Fuca Strait.

And as the race from Hawaii is a long one, it's unlikely that the ships will arrive together July 20, but will probably be widely separated.

The only time Victorians will get to see the biggest vessels together, other than when they are berthed at Ogden Point, will be when they leave for Vancouver at 6 a.m. July 24.

It is not known whether or not the ships will unfurl their sails for their departure, or merely leave under power.

The two largest sailing ships to visit Victoria, the Japanese Nippon Maru and Kaiwo Maru, will be here June 16-20, well ahead of the main fleet. The vessels are both 318 feet in length and draw 22 feet of water.

The mass of sailing and naval vessels participating in the city's Captain Cook festivities will be manned by 5,000 sailors, but the number of visitors the ships will attract is anybody's guess.

City deputy manager Colin Crisp said that the bicentennial committee is working on a number of contingency plans that would provide emergency accommodation if it is needed.

He said additional space for recreational vehicles, covered areas for camping and possible hostel locations have all been identified.

Crisp also urged any members of the public interested in providing supplemental accommodations to come forward.

He said the city cannot make any accurate projections on the likely number of visitors but is planning for a massive influx.

Crisp added that the Victoria police department will be brought up to maximum strength for the summer and would be assisted by RCMP craft in the Inner Harbor.

Military police are also gearing up for the summer.

Other preparations being made by the city include:

—Plans to drape the flags of all participating nations from standards along the harbor;

—Placing banners depicting Capt. Cook themes on 200 street lights throughout Victoria, on the highway at Royal Oak and at ferry terminals;

-Reservation of all Inner Harbor floats for vessels taking part in the Hawaii-Victoria race. (Some 40 Class B ships, which measure from 100 to 150 feet, are expected to require accommodation in the harbor.) Private visiting ships will have to berth at Fisherman's Wharf, West Bay Marina or other locations;

—Plans for an extensive fireworks display, including rockets and flares, to be fired from a barge in the harbor;

—Competitions between the crews of visiting ships and local sports teams;

Trees Down the Drain? Never, Vows Gorge Group

More than 100 stately trees will be destroyed along the Gorge if the city approves installation of sewers along the bank of the waterway.

But area residents say they won't let it happen.

Mrs. Ivy Upton, chairman of a Lotus Street property owners group, said Wednesday members have submitted a petition to city council demanding that no action be taken until property owners have been heard and aldermen have viewed the area.

The sewer line would run through private property between the Gorge and Lotus street and the Gorge Hospital property, connecting up with the Saanich system.

The city would have to expropriate the properties .

A 30-foot swath of trees would have to be cut for the trench and to provide room for equipment, city engineers say.

The trees include large arbutus, Garry Oak and Douglas firs.

Mrs. Upton said tree experts have informed property owners the remaining trees left standing will die within seven to 10 years, mainly due to changes in the water table caused by the sewer trench.

"Soil experts also won't guarantee there won't be bank erosion after the trees are cut," Mrs. Upton said.

"This certainly could happen. A resident across the Gorge lost 30 feet of waterfrontage after cutting down some trees."

Bank slides have occurred in two other areas due to tree cutting, she added.

Mrs. Upton said the same sewer line proposal was submitted to city council last year.

It was turned down then because of the damage it would cause to the privately-owned scenic area of the Gorge.

"I don't know why it is suddenly being revived," she said.

"We were informed the matter is again scheduled to come up before council."

She said there are alternatives to running the sewer line along the waterway. One is to install the sewers along Gorge Road.

"It may be more costly but it's worth the extra cost to preserve the beauty of the Gorge."

Rocks and Burrards: Boxla's Best Seller

It's lacrosse time again; and watch it: The Western Lacrosse Association gives promise of being the most contentious in years if last year's nail-biter final wasn't tense enough.

Don't take my word for it. The authority is a man who will have to glory, or suffer, whichever, through it all. And that is coach Nirmal Dillon of Victoria Shamrocks.

It was a suffering finish last season for Dillon and the Shamrocks as Vanouver Burrards came from behind a 3-1 deficit in games to beat the Shamrocks for the western championship in a tremendous seven-game final that won't soon be forgotten.

And now those two rivals appear ready to start over right where they left off. They are matched in the season's opener here on Wednesday and, both clubs, to put it bluntly, feel they are "loaded".

The Shamrocks are, for sure, if they can get permission from the Ontario Lacrosse Association to use their two imports, Art Webster and Gord Lyons; and everyone else falls into step as expected. And there will be some other new fancy steppers as well. Rick Baker is one although not exactly new. He is a Victorian and son of a former general manager of the Shamrocks. He played for Nanaimo in the past and played well enough to tie for league honors in power-play goals last year with his teammate Jim Lynch. Each had 27. And, according to Dillon, "he'll fit in; he's just a great shooter and you can bet I'll put him on the odd-man play. Then there's Jim Gow, an Easterner by way of Nanaimo two years ago and the classy Peterborough junior club before that. "He's a defenceman, and good, and the left-handed shot we have needed," says Dillon.

* * *

There is also a new goalie in camp to got with a couple of good ones who were about the best there could be last year. Scott Marshall comes to the Rocks from Fergus and Dillon says in his non-commital way: "I just might use three goalies this season." The others, of course, are Larry Smeltzer and George Grover who divided duties so well last season they led the entire league in almost everything. Dillon knows what they can do, but he would like a look at Marshall before making up his mind. Jim Poelzer, who was drafted from the junior Salmonbellies, has decided not to come to Victoria and will sit out the season.

Many of the other old hands will be back, 25 players have been attending training camp and the league limit is 21 for a club to sign. All of which sounds great on the surface, but then's there's the news that's not so good.

For the Rocks really won't be a peak strength for their opener and a tough opening schedule that sees them hit the road for four games after the test here against Burrards. Besides the question of the eligibility of the Eastern players (which soon should be resolved) Ranjit Dillon isn't ready to play, and that's a blow. Steve Buckley, as previously announced, is out for the season with a broken leg. Dave Lowden will be on course in the East for the first two months of the year, and Joe McCrea is suffering from a pulled muscle.

Ranjit, who suffered a shoulder injury in the playoffs last year, has hurt the shoulder again, and is not about to take any unnecessary risks. And why should he? At 34, he's the oldest Shamrock in point of years, points and all that. This will be his 13th season with goalkeeper George Grover not far behind at 12.

* * *

Then there is the other side of the coin. Returning to the club after a year's absence are Jerry Kustaski and Jeevan Dillon, while Dan Green, who had a chest injury and played in only eight games last season, is also ready to resume full-time duties.

A clever lot, but move over for some of the tried and true. There's always room for the likes of Ivan Thompson — and it's great to see him back for another year —; Ron MacNeil, another clever veteran and a new father; Chris Hall, Charn Dhillon, Dave Thomson, Norm Baker, Bill Marachek and Larry Bell. Those some of the Rocks and coach Dillon isn't holding back either when he says.

"I think the club will be pretty good. Yes, better than last year; but then so will all the other teams. New Westminster has strengthened and they got some good juniors in the draft. Burrards are always tough and they've got Pat Differ back again; and I think Nanaimo will be a surprise this year. The players we traded to them —Jack Kasteline, Pete Rushton and Kenny King — will help; and they had a good offense last year. If they have a problem, it might be goalkeeping. Give them that and they will be rough."

So Dillon didn't mention Coquitlam because he wasn't asked; but the recollection is that the Adanacs were trouble for the Irish most of last season and their younger playes should improve off that.

And as for the hated Burrards, Mann Cup champions, and worthy ones to be sure, the latest press release pretty well sums up what to expect.

The story is in the lead paragraph:

"The Vancouver Burrard Lacrosse Club announce today the signing of four Most Valuable Players. They are: Dave Tasker, MVP during the regular season; Dave Evans, the MVP in the playoffs; and Doug Hayes and Mike Smith, who shared the MVP award in the Mann Cup final."

Finns Shock Team Canada

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (CP) — Final period goals by Juhani Tamminen and Pekka Marjamaeki capped a rally that lifted Finland from a three-goal deficit to a 6-4 upset over Canada in the World hockey championships today.

The loss in the first tournament game for both teams stunned the Canadians, billed as one of the powers among the eight teams in the three-week championship which opened Wednesday.

In losing to the Finns, Canada blew a 3-0 lead which it began building 37 seconds into the game on a goal by Jean Pronovost of Pittsburgh Penguins.

Team Canada added two more goals from Cleveland Baron's Dennis Maruk and another by Robert Picard of Washington Capitols while Finland, plagued by early poor shooting and sluggish puck control, could muster only unassisted marker by Matti Hagman, whose professional rights are owned by Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League although he played this past season with Quebec Nordiques of the World Hockey Association.

But the end of the first period saw the last of Canada's scoring—Maruk's second. It was just the beginning for the Finns.

After Tapio Levo's goal early in the second period, the Finns scored again on a power-play shot by Pekka Rautakallio.

With Canada's Pat Hickey in the penalty box for too many players on the ice, Finland scored a power-play goal by Tamminen to tie the Canadians 4-4 by the end of the second period.

Despite three spectacular saves by Canadian goalie Daniel Bouchard, Finland went ahead midway of the final period on Tamminen's second goal and put the game away some three minutes later on an unassisted shot by Marjamaeki on a power play.

Sweden, with three members of the Minnesota team in its lineup, defeated West Germany 6-2. And the United States, with four North Stars, lost 9-5 to the Soviet Union.

In Wednesday's other game, Czechoslovakia beat East Germany 8-0 with two goals by Peter Stastny and one each from Ivan Hlinka, Milan Chalupa, Marian Stastny, Jaroslav Pouzar, Milan Novy and Frantisek Kaberle.

Kent Erik Andersson, Roland Eriksson and Per-Olov Brasar, all members of the North Stars, each scored a goal in Sweden's relatively easy win over the West Germans.

Defenceman Bob Murray, a former University of Calgary player who plays for the West German champion Garmisch-Partenkirchen club and was given his citizenship papers two weeks ago, scored a goal for the West Germans on his only shot.

Goalkeeper Pete LoPresti was the most prominent North Star in a surprising showing by the U.S. against the tough Soviet team, favored here after two barren years in which the world title was won by Czechoslovakia.

Minnesota forwards Tom Younghans, Harvey Bennett and Steve Jensen did not figure in the scoring but they helped keep the U.S. in the game for two periods before it ran out of steam in the third.

Boris Mikhailov scored three goals for the Russians who also got two each from Helmut Balderis and Alexander Golikov and one each from Alexander Maltsev and Vladimor Golikov.

American goals were scored by Craig Norwich of Cincinnati Stingers of the World Hockey Association, Glen Patrick of Hershey Bears of the American Hockey League, Dave Debol, a university of Michigan graduate who turned pro with Cincinnati two weeks ago, and Jim Warner of Colorado College.

The Russians were ahead 3-2 after the first period but were outplayed in the second as the Americans outshot them 14-10 and left the ice with a 4-4 tie.

Injuries to Mike Fidler of Cleveland Barons, Steve Alley of Birmingham Bulls and Dick Lamby of Boston University took their toll in the third period as the Russians scored five times before the Americans got their final goal.

Goalkeeper Vladislav Tretiak, who has performed miracles against Canadian teams in recent years, turned in a shaky performance, especially in the first two periods, although he didn't receive much help from his defence.

"We played absolutely terrible hockey in our exhibition games," said Mariucci. "We should have gone home after the second period today."

Although the U.S. team is dominated by professionals, Mariucci said it is trying to work in some amateurs whom, he hopes, will still be eligible for the 1980 Olympic Games in Lake Placid, N.Y.

Simka Paces Sonics

SEATTLE (AP) — Rookie Jack Sikma scored Seattle's last seven points, including a baseline jumper with nine seconds left to lift SuperSonics to a 100-98 victory over Portland Trail Blazers and into a 3-1 lead in their National Basketball Association playoff series Wednesday.

The SuperSonics can win the best-of-seven quarter-final series with a victory in Portland on Sunday.

Following Sikma's basket, the Blazers got the ball to Lionel Hollins, whose acrobatic shooting accounted for a game-high 35 points. Hollins launched a 25-footer over the guard of Dennis Johnson, with five seconds left that bounced off the rim and out of bounds to Portland.

After a time out, Willie Norwood passed inbounds once again to Hollins, whose short baseline jumper at the buzzer bounded off the rim.

The SuperSonics, who trailed by as many as 14 points three times in the third quarter, tied the game 93-93 on Paul Silas' free throw with 2:56 remaining. Maurice Lucas followed with a basket for Portland before Sikma, who tied his season-high of 28 points, converted a three-point play for a 96-95 Sonics lead with 2:25 left.

Hollins' 13 points helped the Blazers to an 81-73 advantage after three quarters.

Portland, playing without regulars Bill Walton and Bob Gross and reserve forward-centre Lloyd Neal because of injuries, ran off a 27-13 spurt at the outset of the second quarter for a 55-41 lead with 1:19 left in the half. Calhoun came off the bench to score 11 points for the Blazers in the second quarter, including nine in that streak.

Gus Williams added 19 points and Fred Brown 17 for Seattle, which won its 16th straight game at home.

Lucas added 20 and Calhoun 16 for Portland.

Cardinals Turn On Power To Impress New Manager

By Canadian Press

St. Louis Cardinals won interim manager Jack Krol's first outing at the helm of the National League baseball club, embarrassing Montreal Expos' pitching staff with a 12-2 victory Wednesday in Montreal.

Krol, a 41-year-old coach with the club, assumed the reins of the Cardinals, now 7-10 and still last in the East Division, on Tuesday night after second-year skipper Vern Rapp was fired.

Krol's debut was an eminently enjoyable one, affording him a view from the dugout as the Cardinals pounded out 19 hits against a succession of five Montreal pitchers.

Ken Reitz had a two-run home run and drove in another run with a single, and Jim Dwyer belted a solo homer.

It was the Cardinals' second victory in a row and gave them a 2-1 edge in the three-game series. The Expos had won five consecutive games to assume first place in the East and now have a 9-7 record.

Meanwhile, in another National League game, Tom Seaver, the former Cy Young Award winner, made his fifth start of the season for Cincinnati Reds and gave up eight hits and five earned runs in four innings as Los Angeles Dodgers whipped the Reds, 14-4.

Seaver has three no-decisions and two losses to show for his 1978 efforts, plus an earned-run average of 5.00.

When reporters tried to find him after the game to ask about his problems, Seaver had disappeared and Red's manager Sparky Anderson declined to say where he had gone.

Elsewhere, Chicago Cubs defeated Philadelphia Phillies 4-2, Pittsburgh Pirates defeated New York Mets 1-0, San Diego Padres edged Houston Astros 2-1 and Atlanta Braves beat San Francisco Giants, 6-1.

In the American League, Toronto Blue Jays defeated Kansas City Royals 3-1, Chicago White Sox beat Detroit Tigers 7-2, Milwaukee Brewers defeated Boston Red Sox 6-4, Texas Rangers beat Cleveland Indians 3-0, Seattle Mariners defeated California Angels 5-4 and Oakland A's defeated Minnesota Twins 9-8 in 12 innings.

'Pansy Series' Says Williams

TORONTO (CP) — Dave (Tiger) Williams, the scuffed-up left winger of Toronto Maple Leafs, says New York Islanders are "crying" too much over rough play and they'd better be ready for more of the same in tonight's sixth game of their Stanley Cup quarter-final.

Williams, who is the series leader in penalties with 47 minutes, has been handing out more than his share of bone-rattling checks in this hard-hitting series and in the process collected his share of bumps and bruises. And he's still looking for the Islander who bit him on the cheek in Sunday night's game in Toronto.

The Islanders lead the best-of-seven National Hockey League series 3-2 after winning in overtime 2-1 on Bobby Nystrom's unassisted goal Tuesday.

The Maple Leafs must win tonight to tie the series and send it back to Uniondale for the seventh and deciding game Saturday night.

Although a total of 255 minutes in penalties has been called in five games so far—139 minutes against the Leafs—Williams calls it a "pansy series" compared with last season's donnybrook playoff against Philadelphia.

"You know, the Islanders are crying," Williams said. "They know that if we hit them, we'll beat them. Back in our building we'll probably hit them as we did in our last two times at home.

"I don't go around crying about getting hit or getting stuck. That's the game out there and everybody's playing to win. The only guys who don't cry on their team are their two best players, Bryan Trottier and Clark Gillies."

CAHA STEPS IN

MERRITT (CP) — The long-delayed Centennial Cup semi-final series between Prince Albert Raiders and Merritt Centennials begins tonight following a controversial decision by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

The CAHA ordered Prince Albert to play Merritt after the Centennials obtained an injunction in British Columbia Supreme Court lifting their suspension by the B.C. Amateur Hockey Association.

The BCAHA had suspended the Centennials after Merritt played Calgary Canucks, who earlier had been suspended by the Alberta Amateur Hockey Association.

Merritt applied for the injunction in Kamloops on the basis that the BCAHA didn't have the right to prevent inter-provincial playoffs.

NASL Must Change

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The United States was warned Wednesday its soccer players may be barred from all international competitions, including the World Cup, unless the North American Soccer League (NASL) changes its rules of play.

The warning was issued by the International Federation of Football Associations (FIFA), the world body of soccer with 145 member associations.

Rene Courte, FIFA press chief, said the organization would consider suspending the NASL unless it adjusted internal rules of play to comply with world-wide standards laid down by FIFA.

"The United States is the only country with its own terms of play. We have told the United States Soccer Federation that these terms are illegal under FIFA statutes and we will certainly consider disciplinary action if they are not changed. This action may well constitute a suspension from FIFA," Courte said in a telephone interview from FIFA's Zurich headquarters.

Such a suspension, he said, would include a ban on U.S. participation in the World Cup, the Olympic soccer tournament and the World Youth competition.

Among U.S. deviations from FIFA rules of play is a contentious "offside" system, beginning at a line 30 yards from the opponent's goal line instead of the standard concept which says a player can be offside anywhere within his opponent's half of the field.

Another internal rule unacceptable to FIFA is the NASL's refusal to allow drawn league matches, decided instead by a period of extra time followed if necessary by the controversial contest of penalty kicks, known as a "shoot-out." This system is widely used in European Cup competitions, but is dropped in national league games.

Courte said that if the U.S. continued with its own regulations, American players would never match the ability of their South American and European counterparts.

Ballastero Leads

MADRID (AP) — Severiano Ballastero of Spain shot a six-under-par 66 Wednesday to take a three-stroke lead in the opening round of the four-day Madrid Open golf tournament. J. Morgan and S. Lyle, both of Britain, each carded 69s to share second.

Spectacular 63 By Japanese Pro

TOKYO (AP) — Isao Aoki of Japan fired a spectacular seven-under-par 63 with an eagle and five birdies today and took a five-stroke first-round lead in the Chunichi Crowns golf tourpament.

Bobby Watkins of the United States and Japanese players Kikuo Arai, Takaaki Kono, Yoshitaka Yamamoto and Shigeru Uchida followed with 68s.

A Move to Mediocrity Or a Road to Fairness

RUGBY

Well, the Bays have done it again — to absolutely no one's surprise.

With an almost embarrassing surplus of fitness and knowhow, James Bay Athletic Association chalked up 85 points (while conceding only 10) in two Vancouver Island Rugby Union finals at Macdonald Park last Saturday.

The Bays deserved their wins — no doubt about it. But there was a lot of grumbling and mumbling by fans and supporters of the other clubs and it leaves one wondering what's going to happen next season.

It's all been so one-sided here rugby-wise for so long (this was the sixth year in a row that James Bay has won the Barnard Cup for the first division playoffs and on May 6 the Bays will take on the Mainland champions in the provincial club final here in a bid to win the Rounsfel Cup for the fifth straight year) that no really expects anything else.

Despite a brave first-half effort in which the Green Piggies of Cowichan held the Bays out and actually led 7-4 at half time and coaches Ivor Ford's and Pat Simmons' vows that they'd win with sheer guts and pressure, Tillman Briggs' Bays turned the tables in the second half and, once ahead, turned the whole thing into a massacre. Brilliant performances by Ken Wilke and Gary Johnstone and classic tries by Chris Mills, Chuck Shergold and Paul Mulholm and others, left the Bays victors, 39-7.

Forced to play without their injured and very experienced centre Simmons, Cowichan had plucky 17-year-old Brentwood College schoolboy Kyle Marsh at scrumhalf, 18-year-old Brad Pettinger at fullback and 17-year-old Cowichan Valley High School student John McCulloch on one of the wings. It was a tough game for them and they stood up to it well.

The Bays' second-half surge has become their trademark. It was expected and most rugby fans could have pretty well guessed the score before the kickoff. But what seemed to upset a lot of the fans was the ease with which the Bays' second division side crushed Oak Bay 46-3 to win the Times Cup.

"This was clearly not a second division side," Don Burgess of Oak Bay said after the second-division final. "We're going to ask James Bay to enter two teams in the first division next season to balance things lower down," he added.

James Bay has been against this, Burgess said.

"They claim it's the road to mediocrity. We claim it's the road to fairness. It's been done before. From 1959 to 1964 Oak Bay Wanderers entered two teams in the first division and so did the UVic Vikings and Norsemen a few years ago."

There were even rumors floating around Macdonald Park that, if the Bays rejected the idea of entering two teams from their club in the first division, the other clubs might consider dropping out "and leaving them to themselves."

Burgess was serious about it.

"Oh sure," he said. "If they won't accept this, then it's quite conceivable that some of the first division clubs will drop down to second division."

Bruins Take Series Lead

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — New Westminster Bruins defeated Billings Bighorns 7-5 in the first game of the Western Canada Hockey League final series before 3,779 fans Wednesday.

The second game of the best-of-seven final is scheduled for tonight in Vancouver, with the next three games to be played in Billings beginning Saturday.

The teams were tied 2-2 at the end of the first period but the Bruins scored three unanswered goals in the first half of the second period to take a lead they never relinquished.

CRICKET RESULTS

LONDON (CP) — No play was possible Wednesday in the following cricket matches because of rain:

At Oxford: Oxford University vs. Warwickshire.

Owen Sparks St. Michael's

Glen Owen scored two tries Wednesday to lead St. Michael's University School to a 25-0 victory over Claremont in a playoff for the south Island junior high school rugby title.

Paul Dressell kicked two penalty goals and two converts for St. Michael's and Mick Barber and Don Fennerty each added a try.

St. Michael's now meets Mount Prevost in Duncan in a battle for the Island championship.

HOME RUN RECORD TIED

TOKYO (AP) — Adrian Garrett, formerly of California Angels and Chicago Cubs, tied the Japanese record of 15 home runs in one month Wednesday as his Hiroshima Toyo Carp fought nine innings to a 7-7 tie with Hanshin Tigers. Sadaharu Oh, who passed Hank Aaron's lifetime record of 755 home runs last year, and two other players also have accomplished the feat.

Rudy Hartono Joins Racquet Aces

NEW YORK (AP) — Rudy Hartono of Indonesia, the most successful badminton player in history, has joined the field for the May 6 World Racquets Tournament, a five-sport event also involving tennis, squash, racquetball and table tennis. Also in the $40,000 tournament are highly ranked tennis star Guillermo Vilas, squash star Sharif Khan of Toronto who won last year's event, racquetball aces Marty Hogan and Hilary Hilton and a table tennis champion not yet selected. Each competitor will play in every sport but his or her own in the chase for the $15,000 first prize.

SOCCER FANS SUED BY THEIR OWN CLUB

BRUSSELS (Reuter) — Five fans of the Standard Liege soccer club, who threw empty beer cans on the pitch at a UEFA Cup match against Carl Zeiss Jena of East Germany last December, have been sued by the club and fined by a Liege court.

The club based its claim for damages on the decision of the UEFA that it must play its next UEFA match at least 150 kiometres away from Liege and will accordingly lose money.

The court fined each of the five 25,000 Belgian francs (about $775) pending assessment of the actual damage, which Standard has said could be as much as one million francs ($31,000) each.

Athletics Setting Sights Higher

Victoria Athletics, who defeated Victoria West 2-0 in the first division playoff final of the Vancouver Island Soccer League on Wednesday night at Royal Athletic Park, have their sights set on higher things.

On Saturday, Athletics meet Cosmopolitan Royals in the final for the prestigeous Jackson Cup at the same site.

Last fall a record total of 48 teams entered the single-loss elimination tournament for the 63-year-old cup and berths in playdowns leading to the Canadian championship.

Athletics had a bye in the first round of the competition but had to work hard from then on to get by Cosmo Royals (Division II) 4-1, Prospect Lake (I) 4-1, Powell River Villas (I) 1-0 and Gorge Molsons (I) 4-2 in the semifinals.

Royals also had a bye in the first round and advanced with wins over Croatia (IV) 8-1, Oak Bay Reserves (III) 1-0, Port Alberni (IV) 3-1 and Castaways (II) 6-0 in the semis.

Both teams have been successful so far in their only appearances in the Jackson Cup final.

Athletics defeated Vic West 3-0 in both the 1975 and 1977 finals while Royals topped Wests 1-0 in 1972.

Athletics are under the wing of playing-coach Brian Robinson, a former Vancouver Whitecaps star, and manager Jack Evans while Royals are coached by former Pacific Coast League player Russ Ball and managed by Ian Harris.

A definite advantage goes to the team winning the Jackson Cup. The winner has home-field advantage in the first-round Province Cup matches, playing host to Fraser Valley champion Bradner Red Shirts on May 6 while the loser must travel to the Mainland the following day to face the winner of a challenge game between the Vancouver League and the Fraser Valley League.

On Wednesday, Athletics took the Price Cup, emblematic of the playoff title, for the second straight season.

Striker Dan Hood, who went in alone on goalkeeper Jim DeGoede, opened scoring at 10 minutes and defender Gordie Manzini added the insurance tally six minutes later, bashing the ball through a maze of players in the penalty area.

A's, who started slowly but finished with a rush to place second to Wests in the regular season, haven't lost a match since the Christmas break.

Bolton Collects Division I Berth

LONDON (Reuter) — Bolton, edged out of promotion from the Second Division two straight years, beat Blackburn 1-0 Wednesday night and so made sure of First Division soccer next season.

Southampton is already assured of promotion. The third place remains open after Tottenham beat Hull 1-0.

Skipper Steve Perryman scored the goal nine minutes from the end. It was the season's first for Perryman, the sweeper, and was fiercely disputed by Hull which claimed their goalkeeper had been impeded.

Tottenham travels to Southampton Saturday knowing that a draw would be enough to shrug off a late challenge of Brighton. Tottenham was relegated from the First Division last season at the same time that Brighton was promoted from the Third Division.

Chelsea won 2-0 at Leicester and needs two points from its last three matches to make certain of retaining its newly-regained First Division status.

Murdoch Gets $400 Fine

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Don Murdoch, right-winger for New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, has been fined $400 after pleading guilty in provincial court to possession of 4.8 grams of cocaine.

Murdoch, 21, a native of Cranbrook, B.C., was arrested at nearby Toronto International Airport last Aug. 12 and charged with two counts of possession of cocaine for the purpose of trafficking and possession of cocaine. The trafficking charges were withdrawn earlier this month.

Shamrock Discards Have Place to Play

Four teams are in the fold and the South Island Senior "B" Lacrosse League opens its inaugural season with two games Sunday at Pearkes Arena.

Esquimalt Universal Sheet Metal faces Saanich Lacrosse Association at 6 p.m. and Victoria Athletics take on Hampton Park Hustlers at 8.

Each team will play 12 games in the regular season at the same times and site, with the exception of two games on Monday, July 3. Playoffs begin July 23.

League commissioner Hugh Reston, a former B.C. Lacrosse Association president, said Wednesday teams have until 4 p.m. Saturday to register players.

"We're waiting for the Shamrocks (Western Lacrosse Association) to make their final cuts," he said. "These player will be distributed by the league to avoid problems of recruiting."

The playoff champion from the league will advance to the British Columbia tournament Aug. 17-20 in New Westminster and the national championship will be staged the week following the Labor Day weekend in Vernon.

Most of the teams in the league still have openings for players and Reston said further information may be obtained by telephoning 479-3340.

April 30 - Esquimalt vs. Saanich; Victoria vs. Hampton Park
May 7 - Hampton Park vs. Esquimalt; Saanich vs. Victoria
May 14 - Hampton Park vs. Saanich; Victoria vs. Esquimalt

7,128 FANS WELCOME BASEBALL'S RETURN

VANCOUVER (CP) — Catcher Bruce Robinson and shortstop Rob Picciolo led a 13-hit attack as Vancouver Canadians defeated San Jose Missions 9-4 Wednesday night in the return of Pacific Coast League baseball here.

Robinson tripled twice as Canadians improved their record to 6-5 before a crowd of 7,128. First baseman Jerry Tabb also had three hits while designated hitter Tim Hosley and Picciolo had two hits. Picciolo also drove in three runs, to increase his RBI total to a club-leading 13.

Nordiques Drub Aeros

QUEBEC (CP) — Although he scored four goals to lead Quebec Nordiques to an 11-2 drubbing of Houston Aeros Wednesday to wrap up a best-of-seven quarter-final series in the World Hockey Association playoffs, Real Cloutier feels he will have to play more defensively in the semi-finals.

The Nordiques meet New England Whalers Friday in Springfield. The series will determine which team will face Winnipeg Jets in the Avco Trophy final.

"One thing I never do is make predictions," said Quebec coach Maurice Filion. "But I'm sure the Nordiques will win the series."

Quebec defencemen played a key role in the game against Houston, with four of them—Garry Lariviere, Jean Bernier, Wally Weir and Paul Baxter scoring. Baxter also set up a goal by Curt Brackenbury.

"I told my defencemen to shoot lower," said Filion. "They practised at it for about half-an-hour after the regular practice.

"Tonight it paid off," he said.

Other Quebec scorers were forwards Paulin Bordeleau and Normand Dube. Houston's goals were scored by Steve West and Terry Ruskowski.

Lariviere, Bernier and Brackenbury—deflecting a slapshot from Baxter—scored Quebec's first three goals, converting slapshots from the points into goals in the first period.

"We didn't get good point coverage," said Houston coach Bill Dineen. "When we were behind I started gambling. At that point you don't have any other choice."

Dineen pulled goalie Wayne Rutledge, replacing him with Lynn Zimmerman, after the third goal, but to no avail.

HEAR YOU BOUGHT YOUR WIFE A NEW CAR.
NO, I LEASED.
COME ON, LEASING'S JUST FOR BUSINESSES.

No way. I checked this ideaLease by Chrysler and they made a lot of sense for us.

But your wife doesn't drive enough.

It depends upon the kind of lease you choose. The Chrysler Leasing System people showed me the differences and worked out a lease that I can afford to pay each month.

And how long did you have to lease for?

Three years. But I could have had any length of lease I wanted

I don't get it.

You will if you talk to the Chrysler Leasing System people. They make it so simple.

A Tough Task In Island Open

The Vancouver Island Open golf spotlight will focus on Stu Holroyd and Alec Forward next Sunday.

Holroyd and Forward have drawn the unenviable task of playing against Cec Ferguson and John Morgan — the co-medallists, the favorites and the only surviving professionals — in the second round of the CFAX-sponsored match-play competition.

The second round will be played at Gorge Vale.

It will be Holroyd, a member of the Gorge, against Ferguson while Forward, who plays out of Cowichan, meets Morgan.

HANDICAP DIVISION

9:08 — Al Senior (U) vs Bill Germaine (GV), Rick Truman (U) vs Dave Anderson (V).

CHAMPIONSHIP

9:32 — Cec Ferguson (U) vs Stu Holroyd (GV), Grant Milliken (GV) vs Rick Gibson (CH).

Otis Signs New Contract

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League have matched an offer from Washington Redskins and have signed Jim Otis to a new five-year contract.

Bill Bidwell, owner of the team, said they had reappraised their position after Otis brought in the Redskin offer.

"The free agent status in the NFL allows a player to test the market. Jim tested it and got a higher offer," Bidwell said.

CONNORS PULLS OUT

DALLAS (AP) — The World Championship of Tennis has announced that defending champion Jimmy Connors would not play in the tournament May 9-14 "due to other commitments." The WCT said Connors, who defeated Dick Stockton for the title last year, and Sandy Mayer were "no longer contending for positions."

Grexton, Willis Seeking Repeats

SHELDON NIPP

LYLE FERRIE
. . . second highest

Two former champions will be bidding to become the first two-time winner of Bowler-of-the-Year honors when men's tenpin rolloffs get underway Sunday at Mayfair Lanes.

Both the men and women tenpin qualifiers, who earned weekly awards in the 26-week long 15th annual Times Bowler-of-the-Week contest, will go gunning for trophies and cash at 1 p.m.

Ken Grexton, who won the rolloff crown in 1976, and Bob Willis, the 1970 rolloff champ, are back in the running this season after qualifying in the 5th and 6th weeks, respectively.

Harold Melville led the qualifying list this season with a 682 series rolled in the 19th week of competition while second and third highest series were fired by Lyle Ferrie (672) and Sheldon Nipp (671).

Bowlers earned weekly awards and qualified for the rolloffs in each of four divisions — men's and women's tenpins and men's and women's fivepins — by rolling the highest three-game scratch series each week on southern Vancouver Island lanes. The rolloffs also follow a three-game scratch format.

Fivepin rolloffs will be held at 1 p.m. May 7 at Town and Country Lanes.

The rolloff winner in each division will receive a Times Trophy and any rolloff champion who is a daily subscriber to the Victoria Times will collect a bonus prize of $150, up $50 from previous seasons.

Through the co-operation of lane managers Iver Hansen of Mayfair and Ken Jones of Town and Country, rolloff contenders this year won't have to pay bowling fees.

Men's tenpin qualifiers, listed in order:

1. Oke Anderson	212-222-225 — 659
2. Ron Hornby	221-245-191 — 657
3. Don Samuelson	235-211-189 — 635
4. Jim Soon	246-209-188 — 643

COMMONWEALTH GAMES OFFICIALS COME TO AN 'UNDERSTANDING'

EDMONTON (CP) — The general manager of the Commonwealth Games said he will stay in his job after resolving differences with Dr. Maury Van Vliet, president of the Commonwealth Games Foundation. Don McColl, who had threatened to resign last week, said after a closed meeting Wednesday with the foundation's executive committee that he would stay on in the post. "Nobody spoke against me. There was a great deal of understanding," he said. He said the meeting agreed there had been "a blowup" between himself and Van Vliet

'Clown Prince' Leaves Hospital

Lemon, clown prince of the touring troupe, suffered superficial wounds of the back, hospital spokesman James Walsh said. He said Lemon checked out at 7:30 a.m.

Mrs. Willye Lemon, 40, of Fairfield, Conn., pleaded not guilty to the charge of first-degree assault when she was arraigned Wednesday afternoon in Manhattan's criminal court. She was released on her own recognizance for an appearance May 16.

Lemon, 45, told police his wife had been driving behind him and ramming her auto into the rear of his car, so he pulled up to the patrol car parked at the corner of Second Avenue and 53rd Street to ask for help.

As he approached the patrol car, Mrs. Lemon got out of her car, ran up behind him and stabbed him with a five-inch steak knife, police said. The two officers subdued Mrs. Lemon.

OPEC Grow Weak, Says A Founder

WASHINGTON (AP) — Abdullah Tariki, a founder the oil-exporting cartel that organized the 1973-74 Arab oil boycott, says differences are weakening the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) and may kill it.

OPEC was organized when Tariki was Saudi Arabian oil minister. He now serves as an oil consultant to Kuwait, and was interviewed here while taking part in a five-city U.S. tour by 100 Arab businessmen.

OPEC was formed in September 1960 because of frustration over unilateral cuts in oil prices by international oil companies and the resultant drop in income for producing countries.

But Tariki, a 58-year-old who was exiled from his country in 1963 for views that were considered radical, believes OPEC has hit upon hard times.

He noted that OPEC grew out of a realization that the international oil companies enjoyed control over the oil markets and were thus able to play Venezuela off against the Middle East producers.

When the companies in 1960 reduced the price of a barrel of oil to $1.84 from $2, the first official action of the new organization was to refuse the price reduction. It didn't work.

"The companies were too strong; but since then they never dared lower the price again," Tariki said, talking glowingly of OPEC's heyday.

The organization soon realized it had the power to raise the price of oil exported to industrialized countries in the West.

Tariki said he remains convinced that the international oil companies are working against the interest of the OPEC members, but that the producing countries aren't doing enough about it.

He said consuming countries, such as the United States, are using their own reservoir estimates to justify the current high rate of production needed to satisfy the thirst for oil in the West.

Trouble is, Tariki said, the OPEC members are not unified in determining the best response to these challenges.

The OPEC members want production quotas, while only Saudi Arabia among them is opposed, he said. Tariki added that Saudi Arabia, by maintaining its freedom to produce as much or as little as it wants, can control the price of oil.

Saudi Arabian oil production has ensured a comfortable supply for the West and kept price increases to 10 per cent in the last two years, Tariki noted.

"It is against our future interests to produce this oil which is more valuable left in the ground," he said.

20,000 Flee

DACCA, Bangladesh (AP) — The Burmese army has forced more than 20,000 people to abandon their homes in northwest Burma and flee into Bangladesh in the past week, observers report. There was speculation that the mass expulsion is part of a new drive against rebellious Moslem hill tribes in northern Burma.

ROASTERS CUT COFFEE PRICES

NEW YORK (UPI) — With coffee consumption dropping 26 per cent in the United States, two roasters announced Tuesday they were cutting prices.

The Folger Coffee Co., the No. 2 roaster, said it was reducing wholesale prices on its regular ground coffee by 10 cents to $2.93 a pound.

The roaster, a division of Procter £ Gamble Co. in Cincinnati, also cut its 13-ounce can of Folger's flaked coffee by 8 cents to $2.36 and a 10-ounce jar of instant Folger's by 2 cents to $4.25.

In San Francisco, MJB Co., a smaller roaster, also cut its list price for ground coffee by 10 cents to $2.93 a pound, effective Tuesday. A 10-ounce jar of MJB's instant moved down to $3.57 from $3.77.

A devastating July 1975 frost in Brazil, the largest coffee producing nation, had pushed grocery prices for a one-pound can of coffee from $1.29 a pound to well above the $4 mark before Folger became the first major roaster last May to roll back wholesale prices.

Horsey Path Of Protest

FORDYCE, Neb. (AP) — Jimmy Boeckman will work a 30-acre field with horses only this year, a personal protest against the path he says the United States is walking.

"Farms are getting too big, machinery costs are too high, and the government is too willing to pay people for not working," said the 49-year-old Boeckman.

"I'm not saying we should go backward. But I think people today are living too fast, with no concern for the future. I'm going to show young people that compared to a spade, a walking plow is pretty modern.

"I want to do it before I get too old," said Boeckman of his project. "I'm not saying we should all go back to farming with horses, but we need to get smaller to get prices down."

Boeckman is a product of the land. He grew up on the 160-acre farm his grandfather homesteaded. His first eight years of education came in a one-room country schoolhouse—the school his father attended—on that same farm.

Boeckman's whole life has centred on horses and cattle. But he got out of the beef business because "there just isn't any money in it anymore."

Boeckman raised nine children but didn't encourage any of them to go into farming because of the economic conditions. So far, all have pursued other walks of life.

"Our young people are leaving the ranch and farm at an alarming rate, and who can blame them?" he said. "A few are left fighting under the old belief that tomorrow will be better. Who knows?"

FISH BACK IN THAMES

LONDON (Reuter) — The River Thames has become so clean that it is teeming with fish, City of London authorities announced today.

During an annual test in the lower London reaches of the river, anglers caught 200 fish, including cod, flounder, bass, eel, bib, sole and whiting.

Measures to clean the once-filthy river have been in progress for several years.

THESE CROOKS BORN LOSERS

NOVARA, Italy (AP) — Police said today they have four youths in custody because:

—The four could not crash through the window of a shop in their alleged burglary attempt;

—Their two getaway cars were both involved in accidents and were abandoned;

—Two of them were caught by police while trying to steal another car;

—The fourth hitched a ride, from police.

All were united in the jail of this northern Italian city and charged with attempted theft.

Floods in Russia

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet television broadcast an unusual filmed report Wednesday on serious flooding in the Caucasus Mountains republic of Georgia. The report said heavy rains Tuesday and Wednesday had swollen rivers in western Georgia, which then burst a dam and flooded scores of homes near the town of Van. There was no mention of casualties.

Fly-In Voters Pull a Switch

People living in the Cook Islands voted the government out and the opposition in. But fly-in voters from abroad reversed the result and gave the government an increased majority.

Almost all the fly-in voters stayed only long enough to vote and immediately returned to their New Zealand homes.

The Cook Islands is a ministate in the Pacific 1,900 miles northeast of New Zealand. For 13 years it has been self-governing in "free association" with New Zealand.

Among other things this means that the islands receive a substantial annual subsidy from New Zealand and the people enjoy dual citizenship.

Ever since self-government the islands have been ruled by the Cook Islands party, which in large degree means 70-year-old Premier Sir Albert Henry. An old-style demagogue, he seems to have a finger in every aspect of island life.

He faced his strongest challenge yet from the Democratic party, led by Dr. Tom Davis, 60, who returned to his native islands some years ago after advanced work in space medicine in the United States.

The odd thing about Cook Islands politics is that about half of all Cook Islanders live abroad.

Brown-skinned Polynesians, the Cook Islanders might seem to live an idyllic life at home. The islands are exceptionally beautiful, the nearest thing to the south sea islands of romance.

But jobs are hard to get, wages low and opportunities for advancement rare. So islanders save money to pay the fare to New Zealand, where laboring and factory jobs may seem a rat race after the carefree tropical life but wages are princely compared with those at home.

By the Cook Islands constitution, people can vote only in the islands themselves and not by mail.

And that is where the fly-in vote becomes vital.

In the last election the Democratic party chartered an airliner to make two trips from New Zealand with its supporters, at a round-trip fare of $245.

The premier responded dramatically. He chartered and paid for an Australian airliner to make six return flights from New Zealand to the islands — at a total cost of $300,000.

But he charged passengers, vetted to be sure they were Cook Islands party supporters, only $20 round trip.

Where did the rest of the money come from?

The prime minister of New Zealand, R. D. Muldoon, has set up an inquiry to find whether any New Zealand aid money, grants or subsidies were involved. Prime Minister Henry denied that one cent of New Zealand money was used but refused to say where he got the money.

Without fly-in voters, voting was 12 seats for the Democrats and 10 for the government.

When fly-in votes were included, however, the result gave 15 seats to the Cook Islands party and seven to the Democrats, who had previously held nine. And Democratic party leader Davis lost his seat.

But that is far from the end of the matter.

The Democrats contended that provision of $245 passages for $20 amounted to bribery and alleged other irregularities.

The Cook Islands party replied that taking voters to polling places is an age-old electoral custom and that fly-in votes are no different in principle from offering a voter a ride down the street.

Litigation may take a long time. It is understood that several hundred witnesses want to give evidence.

BABY GIRL SMOTHERED BY HER DOG

NORTH KETTLE FALLS, Wash. (AP) — A baby girl was smothered by her dog as she slept in a camper, Stevens County police said Wednesday.

They said the family's Doberman pinscher climbed into bed with the child during the night, and lay across the toddler's face.

ORGANIC GAS PROVES KILLER

BRASILIA (Reuter) — A poisonous gas which destroyed thousands of fish and sea birds off southern Brazil this month was caused by the death of countless micro-organisms at sea, the health ministry said Wednesday.

The government has lifted a ban on fishing off Rio Grande do Sul state where the disaster occurred but advised residents not to eat shellfish for two weeks.

The gas emanated from toxic substances which were swept ashore by the tides, the ministry added.

Domestic animals that went near the beaches were killed by the gas. People suffered eye irritation and choking.

Many scientists, including a representative of the World Health Organization, visited the area, but could not agree what caused the gas.

Janitor Murdered After Spanking

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — A 56-year-old grandmother allegedly shot a school janitor to death Wednesday, apparently because he had spanked her grandson, police said.

The victim was identified as Woodrow Porter, 38. Police said he died at the scene from .38-calibre bullet wounds in his neck and chest.

Police said that school officials said the woman came to the school about 3 p.m. and asked to speak to Porter. She had been told by her granddaughter that the man had spanked her six-year-old grandson.

Porter was called to the administration office and admitted spanking the woman's grandson after he caught the boy bending the antenna on his car at his home Wednesday morning, police said.

Vesco's Fraud Charge Thrown Out by Judge

SAN JOSE (AP) — A Costa Rican judge Wednesday dismissed fraud charges against fugitive U.S. financier Robert Vesco and six associates accused of bilking an investor of $135,000.

The judge also granted Vesco's request to leave the country.

The decision allows Vesco to be out of the Central American country for up to 75 days and removes the last legal hurdle to his gaining Costa Rican citizenship.

Judge Juan Jose Quiros ruled there was no evidence to support the charges against Vesco and associates Norman le Blanc, Uirich Strikler, Milton Meisner, Stanley Graze, Richard Clay and Gilbert Straub.

The seven were indicted in May, 1976, after Hungarian-born Costa Rican Carlos Reichnitzer claimed Vesco sold him worthless stock in Europe several years ago in the Investors Overseas Service mutual fund. Vesco was head of the fund.

The U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission has charged Vesco with stealing $224 million from the fund. He is also wanted in connection with alleged illegal contributions to former president Richard Nixon's election campaign fund.

HOMETOWN BUYS GUTENBERG BIBLE

MAINZ, West Germany (AP) — A $1.8-million Gutenberg Bible was returned under heavy police escort to its 15th-century master printer's birthplace Wednesday after a flight from New York.

It was the second Gutenberg to return to Germany from the United States this month.

"The city is proud and very glad," Mayor Jockel Fuchs said. "A Gutenberg Bible has returned to Mainz, where it was printed five centuries ago in Johann Gutenberg's workshop."

The Bible will be kept at the Gutenberg Museum here and put on display in a May 23 ceremony to be attended by Queen Elizabeth.

Mainz used tax money and public donations to buy the Bible from New York book dealer Hans Kraus.

City spokesman Vera Daniel said the Bible is particularly valuable because it is one of the earliest printed by Gutenberg.

It is known as the Shuckburgh Bible because the first recorded owner was 18th-century English nobleman Sir George Shuckburgh, who willed it to his women descendants. The family did not realize its value until about 1950.

A complete Gutenberg Bible was sold in New York to the West German city of Stuttgart earlier this month for a record $2 million.

Airline Hijacker Given 20 Years

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — A Somali court has sentenced a woman terrorist to 20 years imprisonment for hijacking a West German airliner to Mogadishu and killing its pilot. Somali officials said there could be no appeal.

The terrorist, Soraya Ansari, was the sole survivor from a band of four hijackers shot when West German commandos stormed aboard the Lufthansa Boeing 737 jet and freed 86 hostages after it was commandeered to Somalia last October.

An announcement by the Sonna news agency Wednesday said the national security court in Mogadishu Tuesday night convicted Miss Ansari of air piracy and sentenced her to 20 years imprisonment.

A Somali official reached from Nairobi said the sentence could not be appealed and that it was likely that Miss Ansari, a Palestinian in her early 20s, had begun serving her sentence at Mogadishu's central prison.

The hijacking in which she took part began Oct. 13, when the four terrorists comandeered the Lufthansa jet over the French Riveria and forced it on a terror-filled journey to Cyprus, Italy, southern Yemen, Dubai and finally, the Somali capital of Mogadishu.

They demanded a $15 million ransom and the release of 13 convicted terrorists including Andreas Baader, leader of West Germany's Baader-Meinhof gang. In Dubai, they murdered the plane's West German pilot.

The drama ended when West German commandos flown to Mogadishu stormed the plane, killing three hijackers and wounding Miss Ansari, who Somali officials said escaped death by hiding in a toilet when the shooting started.

Miss Ansari, who achieved a grim notoriety by raising a bloodied hand in a victory salute to photogaphers as she was being carried away from the plane, was not heard from for several months after the hijacking, sparking speculation that the Somalis had secretly freed her.

Somali officials said later that she had been badly wounded and had required intensive hospital care before she was fit to stand trial.

SMALL DOLLAR COIN FOR U.S.?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans may soon have a new coin to jingle in their pockets — a dollar of manageable size.

Walter Fauntroy, chairman of the House of Representatives subcommittee on coinage, said Wednesday he has introduced legislation for a new dollar coin and expects to open hearings on the proposal next week.

The treasury department wants a coin between the size of a quarter and half-dollar and made of the copper-nickel material that replaced silver in U.S. coinage 13 years ago.

The proposed new coin may also be the first U.S. coin to carry the portrait of a woman. The model prepared as a suggestion by the treasury department has a female figure representing liberty.

Producing a dollar coin would cost two to three cents compared to the 1.7 cents for printing a dollar bill. But the treasury deparment said the dollar coins would save money since coins last about 15 years while dollar bills usually wear out in less than a year.

Slimmer Puka Glad he's Back

GLASSPORT, Pa. (AP) — After too many months in the Soviet Union, 87-year-old Charley Puka took a two-hour nap and rejoined old friends at American Legion Post 443.

"I don't go no place no more," grumbled the retired coal miner and First World War veteran, who was thrust into the international spotlight by his efforts to get back to this southwestern Pennsylvania town.

"I didn't like nothin' in Russia," said Puka. "That country's no damn good. I didn't eat nothin' but beans and bread over there."

Puka lost a pot belly and 36 pounds from his normal weight of 170 while in the Soviet Union. At the Legion post he enjoyed ginger ale, cold cuts, cake, a hand of poker and lots of kisses from women friends.

Just what kept Puka in the Soviet Union is uncertain. Published reports here said he applied at the Soviet embassy in Washington for a travel visa but instead was issued a Russian passport. When he arrived in the Soviet Union, his U.S. passport was taken from him and he was sent on to his village, Velyatino.

But a priest in nearby McKeesport says Puka wanted to live out his days in the Ukraine.

"Charley applied for permanent residency," said Rev. Dimitri Ermakov of St. Mary's Russian Orthodox Church. Ermakov said he helped Puka fill out residency papers and counselled him about his decision.

Puka himself won't say what happened that so soured him on Russian life. "I won't tell you," he said. "Go over and find out yourself."

In any case, Puka decided he wanted out. He got his wish after his letters and efforts by the American Legion led to intervention by State Secretary Cyrus Vance.

Diplomat Murder Charged

WASHINGTON (WP) — Michael Vernon Townley, a 35-year-old American identified in court as an agent of DINA, the Chilean secret police, was formally charged Wednesday with conspiring to murder Chilean diplomat Orlando Letelier.

Investigative sources said Townley is believed to have traveled to the United States from Chile about a month before the murder to contract out the bombing death of Letelier, an outspoken critic of the Chilean military regime.

The same sources have said the actual bombing was carried out by anti-Castro Cuban exiles in the United States.

Lance Cover-Up Charge

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Bert Lance, who received the seal of approval from President Carter during and after his fight to remain United States budget director, has been accused of covering up questionable loans to himself and his relatives made through two banks he once ran.

But spokesmen for Lance, who was reported to be in Australia and unavailable for comment, say he realized no "personal financial gain" from the transactions.

In addition to the civil action, filed here Wednesday, Lance is reported to be under investigation by a federal grand jury for possible criminal violations through his banking practices.

The Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) and the office of the comptroller of the currency filed their civil complaint in U.S. District Court.

The complaint, which also named as defendants the National Bank of Georgia in Atlanta and the First National Bank of Calhoun, Ga., charged that Lance manipulated the banks to get special loans and overdrafts for himself, his relatives and his 1974 governorship campaign fund.

Lance and the two banks were enjoined by the court from future violations of securities laws. The defendants signed a consent order agreeing to the decree but did not admit or deny the allegations. The order was signed on Lance's behalf by lawyer Robert Altman.

In a separate letter attached to the consent order, Lance agreed not to manage any bank for the next six months and thereafter to give the appropriate authorities 60 days' notice if he planned to do so.

A statement from Lance's office in Calhoun said he agreed to the settlement "in an effort to avoid protracted litigation which would be expensive, and) time-consuming."

GRANNIES GET THEIR DAY

BREMERTON, Wash. (UPI) — Grandparents will have their official day this Sunday in the state of Washington, thanks to an 11-year-old girl.

Anne Tillery of Bremerton began her effort last fall when she wrote to President Jimmy Carter asking him to declare by resolution the last Sunday in April as Grandparents' Day.

Such a resolution has been working its way slowly through Congress.

Arms Race In Space Seen N-War Threat

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — A Swedish arms research group said today the United States and Soviet Union have resumed an arms race in space after a 10-year gap and warned that unless they are controlled, satellite weapons could escalate limited conflicts into nuclear war.

The 1978 World Armaments and Disarmament Yearbook, published by the Stockholm International Peace Research Institute (SIPRI), said global military spending has doubled in the past 20 years and has now reached $400 billion. It also said a number of Third World countries have themselves begun to manufacture arms and joined in steadily growing sales to other nations.

"In our opinion the probability of a nuclear war is increasing," said SIPRI director Frank Barnaby. "The nuclear arms race is totally out of control. The politicians are not in control of their arsenals."

Noting that more than 75 per cent of all satellites launched last year had military uses, SIPRI listed a total of 82 such space vehicles for the Soviet Union compared with 12 for the United States.

It said U.S. development of anti-satellite missiles stopped in the 1960s and military space use was restrained for 10 years. But recent Soviet killer satellite tests and work on directed-energy weapons now "are being cited in the West as a reason for complementary efforts of its own."

SIPRI said the Soviet killer satellites appear to have altitude and other limitations. There are now no U.S. space weapons, but the yearbook said work is being done on types that would disable satellites by direct impact or explosives.

"Studies have shown that the U.S.A. could have a high-energy laser in orbit within six years," it added.

"It would be easy for an attack against satellites as a move in a limited war to be interpreted by the satellites' owners as the opening move in escalating a local conflict into a general and strategic conflict," SIPRI said.

"As satellite technology becomes more accessible to more nations and displaces ground-based technology in more fields, some way of controlling war in space will have to be found."

SIPRI said the 1967 outer space treaty would be little use as it bans only weapons of mass destruction.

"More than one half of the world's physicists and chemists are working on military projects. It is an obscene waste of talent," Barnaby said.

SIPRI, an independent institute funded by the Swedish Parliament, studies disarmament and arms regulations. The yearbook was published early this year to be available at U.N. disarmament negotiations, where it is considered an authoritative reference work.

U.S. Agency Plotting Children Ad Crackdown

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Federal Trade Commission today formally published its controversial plan to crack down on the $600 million worth of advertising poured onto children from the television tube each year.

The action — prompted by reports of an epidemic of tooth decay and the feeling that children are being unfairly manipulated by Madison Avenue — sets in motion a process which will not be completed until at least the fall of next year.

While no one approach was put forth by the FTC as the answer to the question, the agency said it wanted comment on a three-part proposal offered by its staff.

That would involve a ban on all advertising on programs where very young children make up most of the audience; a ban on ads for candy and other sugared snacks, possibly including some cereals, on programs where older children make up a significant part of those watching, and a suggestion that those who advertise sugared food products on television be required to counter those messages with nutritional or health advertising for which they must also pay.

The rule making proceeding, approved by the four commissioners Feb. 28, is one of the most controversial steps taken by the agency. Even before today's publication it was the subject of widespread editorial comment and public debate.

The notice in today's Federal Register said the agency needs many questions answered before it can decide what approach to take. These include: whether there is an age at which children can understand they are being "sold" to; whether any advertising directed at children is on the face of it unfair; and whether a ban would "adversely affect the quantity or quality of children's television programming."

U.S. Senate OKs $498.9B Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposed half-trillion-dollar U.S. federal budget that passed the Senate with ease is headed for the House of Representatives amid warnings from Speaker Thomas O'Neill that voters are fed up with inflation.

"I hope the members will use restraint," O'Neill said. "The No. 1 issue in the country today is inflation."

After rejecting a series of spending increases in the name of fighting inflation, the Senate passed its version of the $498.9-billion budget on a 64-to-27 vote and sent it to the House for debate.

The Senate measure was approved exactly as written by the Senate budget committee for the 1978-79 fiscal year.

By contrast, the plan proposed by the House budget committee recommends spending $501.4 billion in the 12 months starting Oct. 1.

The biggest differences between the two bills are on taxes.

The Senate voted to delay President Carter's proposed $24-billion income-tax cut until Jan. 1, three months after Carter wants it to take effect, for a net reduction of $19.4 billion.

PM Fuels Election Mill

OTTAWA (CP) — Election rumors ran wild on Parliament Hill Wednesday.

A large crowd of reporters and cameramen hovered for a time near Trudeau's office, after he had a lunch with his principal advisers.

The prime minister's press secretary said it was unlikely that the prime minister would seek dissolution of Parliament when he made his regular weekly visit to Goivernor-General Jules Leger Wednesday evening.

A prime ministerial spokesman said he asked Trudeau about the today's-the-day remark.

"The prime minister said 'I didn't say for what.'"

Liberal and Opposition MPs loitered outside the Commons following the daily question period and asked one another if there had been any news.

Neither Trudeau, Opposition leader Joe Clark or Ed Broadbent, leader of the New Democratic Party, were in the Commons Wednesday.

After a 45-minute stake out near the prime minister's office, reporters gradually returned to their desks and television cameras and lights were taken away.

Deputy Prime Minister Allan MacEachen, whose office is only several yards from the Commons entrance, told reporters at one point to "go upstairs and do some work."

EDC Termed Spur To Third World War

MP DRAWS NOOSE IN HOUSE DEBATE

OTTAWA (CP) - The retentionists and abolitionists were at each other's throats momentarily in the Commons Wednesday.

"Tell them about capital punishment," Cecil Smith (PC-Churchill) dared John Rodriguez (NDP-Nickel Belt) when the latter said he was going to Thompson, Man. in the evening.

"I'll tell them about capitalism, not capital punishment," Rodriguez shot back, prompting a round of scattered hoots in the chamber.

OTTAWA (CP) — The Export Development Corp. was the object of charges in the Commons Wednesday ranging from destroying Canada's manufacturing base to moving the world one step closer to a third world war.

"There seems to be a kind of confusion in the House about the objectives of the EDC," said Andrew Hogan (NDP—Cape Breton-East Richmond).

MPs were debating legislation to increase the financial ceiling of the EDC to $26 billion from the current $8.8 billion.

Industry Minister Jack Horner has urged quick passage of the bill, warning that the Crown corporation will run out of funds by June unless it has Parliament's authority to increase its financial capacity.

It would no longer be able to lend money to foreign buyers and provide insurance to cover the risk of Canadian companies with overseas contracts.

"By aiding nations such as Cuba, which is proliferating the danger of war, the EDC is moving the world one step closer to world war three," said Douglas Roche (Edmonton Strathcona), Conservative external affairs critic.

Other MPs were critical of EDC funds which have gone into pulp and paper plants in Poland and Iran, steel mills in Texas and New Jersey and low-interest loans to various nations.

Union Carbide Cuts Catalyst

TORONTO (CP) — Union Carbide of Canada Ltd., reacting to reports from the United States of a serious health hazard caused by one of its commercial chemicals, has removed a catalyst used in making polyurethane foam products.

In an interview Wednesday, Robert Wilkes, the company's general manager of plastics and chemicals in Toronto, said the catalyst is not used in any of Union Carbide's processes in Canada but is sold to manufacturers of polyurethane foam.

The catalyst, a chemical compound called Niax Catalyst ESN, is a registered trademark of Union Carbide Corp., the sole manufacturer.

Earlier this month, the U.S. labor department's occupational safety and health administration reported incidents of widespread employee illness caused by exposure to the catalyst.

The substance's first effects are on the nerves in the bladder, causing pain and difficulty in urination.

Workers have also complained of impotence, loss of balance and co-ordination, muscle weakness, numbness and loss of feeling in fingers and toes.

Wilkes said there have been no similar cases reported in Canada.

FIRM FINED ON ACCIDENT NON-REPORTS

QUEBEC (CP) — Canadian International Paper Co. (CIP) has been forced to pay the Workmen's Compensation Board a penalty of $53,805 for failing to report 854 job-related accidents that occurred at its La Tuque, Que. forestry division, the board announced Wednesday.

Besides failing to report 854 accidents, the company filed late reports in another 334 cases. Companies are required by law to notify the board in writing within two days of an accident, but CIP took an average of 103 days.

After seizing company records last year, the board determined that the victims in 795 of the 854 unreported cases were entitled to compensation.

Servant Debtors No Longer Safe

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliamentarians and federal public servants would no longer be protected from garnishment of their salaries under legislation introduced in the Commons Wednesday by Justice Minister Ron Basford.

The bill would allow the courts to attach the earnings of federal public servants for non-payment of debts.

In the past, courts have been unable to force federal public servants to pay family support in cases of desertion, separation or divorce, or to pay debts to creditors.

The proposed legislation would affect employees of federal departments and agencies, MPs, senators, federally-appointed judges, the RCMP and employees of Crown corporations.

Basford placed no priority on the legislation so it is not known whether the government will attempt to get passage before calling an election.

Starblanket May Enter Row

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Indian Brotherhood is considering intervening in the Yukon native land claim negotiations because of concern that Indian traditions are being ignored.

"We are watching the Yukon events very closely to determine if an intervention is necessary at this time," brotherhood president Noel Starblanket said through a spokesman Wednesday.

The brotherhood's executive council has instructed him to intervene if necessary. Also, both the Union of British Columbia Indian Chiefs and the Dene Nation organization group in the Northwest Territories have requested the national body step in.

The requests are based on reports that Yukon Indian chiefs are unhappy with the manner in which the Council for Yukon Indians (CYI) is handling the negotiations with the federal government. There have been complaints that the CYI is not following the Indian tradition of consulting closely with the chiefs and their people.

Starblanket said that about one month ago the Yukon chiefs requested that the national brotherhood's council of elders visit the territory to assess the situation. The elders reported that the CYI was bypassing traditional Indian forms of government.

Two years ago, George Manuel, then brotherhood president, quietly stepped into the Yukon negotiations. A restructuring of the CYI resulted and land claim talks were delayed for months.

The CYI and Ottawa are on the verge of negotiating new proposals, and intervention by the national brotherhood might result in another restructuring and further delays. Ottawa has had hopes of having the Yukon claim at least partially settled before Alaska Highway gas pipeline construction beings in 1981.

Starblanket said the CYI, formed by two Yukon native groups specifically for the negotiations, has a constitution that does not require it to be responsible to the chiefs or their councils. The chiefs found this unacceptable.

There also are rumors that the chiefs themselves are ready to take some action to change this.

Oil Companies Refuse Aid In Claims Row

CALGARY (CP) — Oil companies are not really in a position to help the Inuit people settle their land claims, says Roland Horsfield, corporate manager for Imperial Oil's northern operations.

The federal government might interpret oil industry pressure for settlements as interference in domestic affairs by multinational companies, he told a meeting of U.S. and Canadian oil company representatives and Inuit leaders from Canada, Alaska and Greenland.

The three-day meeting, which started Tuesday, is convened by U.S. church agencies at the request of the first Inuit Circumpolar Conference last June to improve communication between the oil companies and the 100,000 Inuit living above the Arctic Circle.

Horsfield basically stuck to the line taken by two other oil company executives who refused to attend the meeing on corporate responsibility in northern development because they believe Inuit land claims are the federal government's responsibility.

That was the opinion expressed by R. H. Carlyle, vice-preident of Gulf Oil Canada, who said his company had declined the invitation to the meeting because the problems of the Inuit are "problems to be dealt with by the federal government."

Police Body Pushes Law Reform Issue

CALGARY (CP) — The Canadian Police Association (CPA) is planning a country-wide media campaign to make "responsible law reform" an issue in the next federal election, association president, Frank McDonald, said Wednesday.

McDonald said the CPA will hold two board meetings to decide on a campaign strategy—one for western representatives in Calgary on May 1, and the other for eastern representatives, probably in Ottawa, on May 3.

Constable McDonald, also president of the city police association, said the CPA has been working on the proposed campaign for five months in anticipation of a federal election.

"The politicians are making the economy, unemployment and national unity the election issues," he said in an interview.

"While these are important issues, we feel there is another important issue—that is responsible law reform. We are going to insist that every candidate addresses himself to this issue in every riding across the nation."

The CPA also wants better protection for police officers in their work, improved police training, and adequate benefits for families of police officers killed or disabled in the line of duty.

McDonald described the fatal shooting of RCMP Constable Thomas King in Saskatoon Tuesday as tragic. He said since 1974, about 20 police officers in Canada have died in the line of duty—including three in Calgary—"but their families are not receiving adequate benefits."

He said the CPA has allocated substantial funds for the media campaign and noted "the time has come for the silent majority for their voice to be heard."

Landry Scorns Sun Life Move

Times News Services

CLEVELAND — Bernard Landry, Quebec economic development minister, says the decision by Sun Life Assurance Co. to move its head office to Toronto from Montreal will cost it so much business it will discourage other firms from doing the same.

"I don't think it will set a trend," Landry said at the start of a 10-ay visit to seven United States cities.

Asked about the general investment climate in Quebec, the Parti Quebecois minister said that "there is no catastrophy at all," and cited recent investments by General Motors, Alcan and C.I.L. in the province.

The minister conceded that some Quebecers had transferred bank accounts to U.S. border communities, but said they may be speculating in U.S. currency.

"An English-speaking commentator from Toronto cannot be objective about what is going on in French-speaking Quebec," Landry said.

Meanwhile, union leaders representing 10,000 Hydro-Quebec workers have called again for the Crown-owned utility to cancel group life insurance policies with Sun Life and place them with another company.

In a telegram sent Wednesday to Hydro president Robert Boyd, union representatives said Sun Life "insulted all Quebec workers by affirming that the promulgation of French as the official language of Quebec has prevented them recruiting sufficient anglophones in Montreal to manage their affairs."

Similar demands for cancellaion of the policies on Jan. 9 were met with "vague replies" from management, the telegram said.

The telegram said Hydro workers could no longer remain indifferent to the "draining" of Sun Life investments from Quebec to other provinces.

Workers are also being urged by their unions to cancel any personal insurance policies they have with Sun Life.

BOYCOTT OF AIR CANADA URGED

NEW YORK (CP) — Leaflets urging a boycott of Air Canada were being passed out on busy Manhattan street corners this week by American employees who were fired by the airline in an austerity move.

The workers are among 84 U.S. ramp service personnel fired by Air Canada on March 29.

Air Canada had used the workers at its terminals here, in Chicago and in Cleveland. In other U.S. cities, the work is done by sub-contractors. Ramp servicemen fuel and service aircraft and load and unload baggage.

"We did it to make it uniform throughout the U.S.," an Air Canada spokesman said of the move, adding it was done for purely economic reasons.

The workers also hint that the firings were a union-busting tactic.

"We began hearing rumors about the possible firing of all ramp servicemen at about the same time that many of us were expressing interest in joining a union," the leaflets say.

Was MD Frugal Or a Miser?

EDMONTON (CP) — Five judges have been urged to award a doctor's widow $207,000 to $950,000 because there was no warning label on the furnace in the couple's home.

Members of the Alberta Supreme Court appellate division deliberated two days before reserving decision on the case, involving the asphyxiation of Dr. George Chunkie Kwong, 36, in 1971.

The doctor, survived by a wife and five children, died of carbon monoxide emanating from the gas furnace in his house. Court was told his income was about $80,000 a year at his death.

Two years after his death, the widow sued the provincial government for negligence because a gas inspector allegedly failed to place a warning label on the furnace motor's compartment cover when the furnace was converted to gas from oil.

Mr. Justice Michael O'Byrne exonerated the gas inspector when a suit was launched two years ago but ruled the provincial government negligent and awarded Mrs. Kwong $450,000 in damages.

At the renewal of the hearing this week, lawyer Donald Ingram, appearing for Mrs. Kwong, asked for up to $950,000 on the basis Dr. Kwong was extremely frugal and invested most of his money in tax shelters that would have made him a millionaire in a few years.

Alberta Chief Justice William A. McGillivray suggested the doctor was more miserly than frugal. The judge noted Dr. Kwong made most of the investments in his own name.

Mandarin Shuffle Expected

HAMILTON (CP) — Joe Clark, federal leader of the Progressive Conservative party, said Wednesday that a change of senior civil servants is to be expected and welcomed with a change of government.

Clark said that if a Conservative government is elected, some senior government officials will be moved to other departments to ensure that new ministers have an opportunity to bring in new policy in those departments.

"I think that some of the people who now are in senior appointed positions will find themselves more comfortable outside of our government," he said.

Clark added that a Conservative government would reorganize the civil service with some middle-level officials.

Dredge Witness Changes Story

TORONTO (CP) — Horace Rindress, the only person to testify so far in a dredging conspiracy trial, said Wednesday he changed his testimony about the dates of a 1971 meeting at which bid-rigging for a Quebec City job was discussed.

The Quebec city job is the subject of one of seven counts at the Ontario Supreme Court trial of 11 businessmen and nine companies charged with conspiring to defraud public agencies of more than $4.27 million by rigging dredging bids.

Rindress, former president of The J. P. Porter Co. Ltd., Montreal, testified earlier that a meeting in the board room of Marine Industries Ltd. in Montreal took place five or six days before the tender date of the Quebec City job.

When Crown counsel Roderick McLeod reminded Rindress that the tender date had been set back to June 22 from June 17, 1971, Rindress agreed that the meeting of several firms to discuss a bid for the job probably began June 14.

Under cross-examination by John Sopinka, lawyer for Marine Industries Ltd., one of the accused companies, Rindress agreed he testified at the 1976 preliminary hearing that the meeting began June 7.

Sopinka suggested that Rindress changed his evidence after learning there had been testimony at the preliminary hearing that Gerard Filion, president of Marine Industries in 1971 and one of the accused, was not in Montreal when the meeting took place.

Rindress has testified that Filion was at the meeting.

Pressed by Sopinka, Rindress said that during a converstion with an RCMP officer named Corporal McGrath in the spring of 1977, he got a vague impression that Filion was away from Montreal at the time of the meeting.

But he said he did not find out anything definite from the conversation with the corporal.

Rindress, in his 21st day of testimony, was testifying under protection of the Canada Evidence Act which prevents what he says in court from being used against him in future court proceedings.

Lime Pie Whispers Of Tropics

There is a classic dessert known to connoisseurs throughout North America as Key Lime Pie. The delicacy is especially familiar to residents of the southeastern part of the United States.

There is some disagreement among natives of the region as to where the name came from. Some contend that the lime itself is found to best advantage on one or another of the Florida Keys. Others say that the name simply reflects the fact that the idea of making a lime-flavoured pie originated in the mind of some imaginative cook on the Keys.

One of the unique touches to this pie is the addition of Angostura bitters. It is significant that this flavouring and seasoning agent is made only on the island of Trinidad in the West Indies, almost adjacent to the Keys, and is particularly well-known in the region.

KEY LIME PIE

1 package (3 oz.) lime flavoured gelatine
1 cup boiling water
2 tsp. grated lime rind
½ cup lime juice
1 egg, separated
1 can (14 oz.) sweetened condensed milk
1 tsp. Angostura bitters
1 baked 9'' pastry shell, cooled

Dissolve gelatine in boiling water. Add rind and juice. Pour slowly into beaten egg yolk, stirring constantly. Add milk and Angostura bitters. Chill until slightly thickened. Beat egg white until stiff peaks form. Fold into gelatine mixture. Pour into pie shell. Chill until firm — about 3 hours. If desired, garnish with lime slices or whipped cream.

AROUSING BEST IN ASPARAGUS

24 Asparagus spears
Salt to taste
1½ teaspoons wine vinegar
1½ teaspoons imported mustard, preferably dijon or dusseldorf
Freshly ground pepper to taste
¼ cup peanut, vegetable or corn oil
1½ teaspoons finely chopped shallots or green onions
1½ teaspoons finely chopped parsley

1. Use a potato peeler and scrape the asparagus spears to within about two inches of the top. Cut off and discard the tough bottoms of the spears to make their lengths uniform. Place them in a skillet, add cold water to cover and salt. Bring to the boil and simmer until tender yet firm, al dente, so to speak.

2. Place the vinegar, mustard, salt and pepper in a mixing bowl and stir rapidly with a wire whisk. Gradually add the oil, stirring constantly. Stir in the shallots.

3. Drain the asparagus spears well while they are still hot. Arrange six spears on each of four serving dishes. Spoon the sauce over the tops of the asparagus, which should be lukewarm or at room temperature. Sprinkle the parsley over the tips and serve.

Leftovers Get Oriental Touch

Leftovers can often be a problem, but Oriental Beef Suey makes those around the dinner table hope the next roast will also supply enough leftovers for a repeat performance.

ORIENTAL BEEF SUEY

20 2-inch strips of rare roast beef
3 Tbsp. soya sauce
3 Tbsp. sherry
1 Tbsp. cornstarch
2 Tbsp. oil
2 medium carrots, thinly sliced
1 medium turnip, thinly sliced
1 red onion sliced
10 thinly sliced mushrooms
1 tsp. sugar
1 cup bean sprouts, drained
½ cup thinly sliced water chestnuts.

Combine soya sauce and sherry and pour over beef strips. Set aside. Mix 1 Tbsp. cornstarch with 2 tsp. water. Set aside. Stirfry carrots, turnip, onion and mushrooms in cooking oil for 2 minutes. Add sauce from beef. To this mixture, add 2 Tbsp. water, 1 tsp. sugar and ½ tsp. salt. Cover and simmer 2—3 minutes. Add beansprouts, water chestnuts, beef and cornstarch mixture. Stir and cook only until sauce thickens. Serve with hot white rice. Serves four.

GUACAMOLE

2 medium-size ripe avocados
4 teaspoons lemon juice
½ cup dairy sour cream
2 tablespoons minced onion
¾ teaspoon garlic salt

Peel avocados, remove pits, mash with a fork. Combine with remaining ingredients in a small bowl. Stir to mix well. Yields about 2 cups.

Sex Discrimination in Pension Payouts?

MONTREAL (CP) — If a man and woman each aged 65 took the same amount of money to an insurance company to buy a pension, the woman's pension would be less than the man's.

Is this discrimination?

Women's groups and some government officials and pension experts say it is and ought to be prohibited by law.

Insurance companies and actuaries — the people who calculate pension costs — say that it is merely a reflection of the average four to six years that a woman will live longer than a man.

They say that although the monthly pension might be less, the woman will collect the same total amount of money because she will live those extra years.

The matter affects thousands of women who purchase pensions with money saved in registered retirement savings plans (RRSPs) as well as those in pension plans which require purchase of a life annuity at retirement.

The issue was raised Tuesday during discussion of human rights legislation at a meeting of the Canadian Pension Conference, an organization representing pension industry experts.

It centred on the use of separate tables for males and females to calculate how long each might be expected to live, and thus the cost of the pension.

When an annuity — a monthly pension for life — is purchased from an insurance company, its cost varies with the amount of time the individual might be expected to live.

Those who say these "mortality tables" discriminate against women advocate the use of "unisex tables" which would calculate pension costs purely on the basis of age regardless of sex.

They say a woman should not be penalized because at age 65, the odds are that she'll live another 17-20 years while a man at age 65 will probably only live another 13-14 years.

But Erik Mieras, a benefit consultant with the firm of Tomenson-Alexander Associates, said that to change over to unisex tables for pensions, changes would have to be made in a whole range of insurance policies on which cost is based on risk.

For example, women pay less than men for car insurance because they tend to have fewer accidents and they pay less for life insurance because they live longer.

In the United States in the last decade, insurance companies were required by law to stop charging blacks more for life insurance because statistics showed they tended not to live as long as whites.

But some courts in the U.S. have also held that using separate tables for men and women is not sexual discrimination.

In Canada, the issues has apparently never been tested in the courts.

Most company pension plans in Canada are "defined benefit" plans-that is they state how much pension will be paid at retirement regardless of the sex of the employee.

Although there is extra cost to an employer for guaranteeing the same amount of pension to a woman as to a man, this cost is absorbed as part of over-all pension costs.

However, if a female employee leaves before retirement age, she would take her contributions with her and would purchase an annuity at retirement, thus running into the problem.

PENSION RULING

WASHINGTON (WP) — The U.S. Supreme Court ruled 6 to 2 Tuesday that a pension plan cannot make women pay more than men for the same retirement benefits simply because the average woman lives longer than the average man.

An employer-operated pension fund that requires unequal contributions from men and women violates the ban in the Civil Rights Act of 1964 on "treatment of individuals as simply components of a racial, religious, sexual or national class."

At least by implication, the court also struck down a much commoner type of plan in which the pay-in is equal but the pay-out for women is lower.

Ex-Reporter Now a Wilderness Nurse

From there she travels in a jeep equipped with survival gear and sleeping bag, to many small places in wilderness settings.

She also takes off regularly in the mail plane for little settlements on remote lakes and rivers where road travel is impossible.

Wherever she goes she quickly sets up a temporary clinic, perhaps in a church basement (if there is a church) or in the kitchen of a settler's home.

There she works, sometimes around the clock, to treat those who come to her for help and to prescribe remedies that will bring them back to health.

Last week Marge "came outside," as she calls it, for a brief visit with longtime friend Joan (Hutchison) Meek, at the Hutchison home on Rogers Road.

We had coffee together one morning while she was here and she talked enthusiastically about her work.

"There's a great satisfaction in going into those isolated places," she said, "and working with young families who are far from a doctor or medical care.

"Satisfaction also in spotting a problem, especially when it has to do with children, from babies to school age, and knowing there is a good chance, because of early diagnosis, to correct it."

"They usually leave the little settlements when they reach retirement age to live somewhere nearer a town."

Accidents have high priority in nearly every community she visits. Also post-natal care.

"So far I haven't actually been present for a home birth ... in those isolated places mothers and fathers take care of that themselves."

When Marge and husband Alan first went to Alaska they lived in Anchorage for a time and it was there she started her public health career.

Later, when they moved to Wasella, she opened her first clinic there.

"It was in the basement of an old log building," she said with a reminiscent smile, "then later it was in an old schoolhouse.

"Last summer the state government gave me a room for a properly equipped clinic and I'm well set up now."

When the Campbells went to Wasella there were "only about 500 people, one commercial store, one service station and the post office."

Now, because of a recent decision to move the capital of Alaska to a site a few miles north of it, Wasella has become a boom town.

"Already there's a population of around 6,000, a shopping mall and many other new buildings. People are coming in to Wasella and to Willow (the proposed new capital) from Anchorage. There is a definite influx of speculators too."

In fact, the place is so busy, she is now opening her Wasella clinic once a week — and with another nurse as temporary help.

Entertainment?

There's theatre and symphony in Anchorage. Dog mushing is coming back "and we now have an annual race between Wasella and Nome."

People also do things together at home. "We get together for supper, rather than dinner. We ski together, hike together and we canoe together."

The majority are strong conservationists. "Many of them live in log houses, perhaps A-framed, but with coal and wood stoves inside."

Here Marge laughed and added, "Not the Campbells. We do have our fireplace but we also have a modern way of heating our home."

The summer season, with daylight from about 3 a.m. to midnight, makes for fast-growing vegetables and flowers.

"In fact the area is known as the land of the 75-pound cabbage and at the yearly state fair there are any number of huge vegetables in all varieties."

Darkest time is December when average daylight is from 10 in the morning until 3 in the afternoon.

MARGE CAMPBELL

April is a restless month.

At the some time "it's the month when you get the urge to move on, farther and farther into the northland."

Right now they are opening up homestead land north of Wasella and young families are preparing to pioneer in there.

"They tell you it's a good life in those faraway places and they have no wish to live any other way."

Here Marge laughed again and confessed, "I sometimes become fascinated with the idea, too, and wonder if I'm still young enough to go homesteading in the wilderness."

Postscript — Marge Gilroy graduated as a nurse from Ottawa Civic Hospital. She came west to Victoria and worked for a while in the Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Then, in her own words, she decided she wanted to try "something different."

So, in the 1960s, she became a reporter with the Victoria Daily Times.

That ended when she married Alan Campbell, a Colonist reporter, and they moved on, first to Okanagan and then to Montana.

It was from Montana that they went north to Alaska where Alan began to write for the Anchorage Times and Marge went back to university to gain her public health degree.

Today they seem quite happy to live on the edge of civilization, where the wilderness still calls.

And if they do come "outside," it is only for a very brief moment (as Marge did last week) and on very rare occasions.

Dieters can Lose More than Fat

By Dr. JEAN MAYER and Dr. JOHANNA DWYER

While browsing in a bookstore the other day, we checked out the shelf in diet books, and found the usual assortment of fad diets — everything from high-protein, low-carbohydrate diets to low-fat, high-fibre schemes. The abundance of these books reminded us of the comment of an old friend, who once said, "The obese are a national resource; if they didn't exist, they would have to be invented."

All these books seem to have one common theme — if you follow their program, you can lose fat faster and with less aggravation than on any diet you've tried before. And you don't have to bother about counting calories.

You may lose weight, all right, but what else will you lose?

First, let's look at losing fat. Obviously, when you lose weight, you want it to be excess fat, not good lean body tissue. But the rate at which the body loses fat depends almost entirely on the difference between the energy (the calories) you consume and the calories (the energy) you expend.

About 3,500 calories equal one pound of body fat. Therefore, if you consume 500 fewer calories than you expend each day, you will lose about a pound of fat a week. And the fewer the number of calories taken in, the larger the weight lost.

So if a particular diet book provides menus that allow no deviation from the specified foods or portions, and you faithfully follow the plan, you will indeed lose weight. For example, if the menus add up to 1,000 calories a day, and you expend about 1,800 calories a day, you should lose just over a pound a week, and most if it will be fat.

But there is a significant difference between weight loss and fat loss, especially if you are on a crash diet. If, for example, the diet is low in carbohydrates and fairly low in salt, the body will lose a good deal of water in the first few days or week of the regimen. This fast weight loss may provide a psychological lift to the dieter, but in the next few weeks, the loss will be much slower.

At the same time, the body must draw upon its small store of carbohydrate energy from glycogen, which is stored in the liver and muscles. Since the glycogen is combined with water, several more pounds of fluid will usually be lost with it. Finally, in the early stages of any diet, the body draws on the protein in lean tissue as a source of glucose for energy. This lean tissue also is very high in water, so for every pound of protein that is broken down to burn as glucose, four pounds of water will be lost.

After a couple of weeks on the diet, the body adjusts and begins to conserve its precious protein. If fat is still being consumed at the usual rate, weight loss slows a bit, partly because less water is being lost.

Interestingly, the body of an obese person tends to be particularly efficient in conserving protein and water. In the long run, this is good because you do not lose excessive amounts of lean tissue. But this may also be discouraging because the big weight drops of the first few weeks are not repeated.

Why then do people turn to these unbalanced crash diets rather than adhering to a balanced, low-calorie regimen? It's usually because these schemes capitalize on changing usual eating habits. When people are told to eat all they want of some things, but to strictly limit things like fats or carbohydrates, several things happen. First, they have to make different food choices. For example, few people who like bread and butter will eat the bread alone, and even fewer will consume much butter without bread. As a result, less energy is consumed and, ergo, pounds are shed.

But this factor is also one of the big drawbacks of fad diets.

QUESTION:

ANSWER:

Untreated vegetable oils have been cold pressed and bottled with no additives or preservaties; hence they are highly perishable. There is no evidence that commercially processed oils have any harmful effects on the body.

QUESTION:

I am unable to eat raw fruits and vegetables. Is there any nourishment in cooked fruits and vegetables?

ANSWER:

Yes, there are nutrients in cooked fruits and vegetables. However, the method you use to cook them will determine the amount of nutrients they contain. To retain nutrients, cook your vegetables until just tender crisp by steaming, boiling in a very small amount of water or stir frying. If you do use some liquid in vegetable preparation, be sure to save it for use in soups, stews, or gravies. The water soluble nutrients will be dissolved in this liquid. To prepare cooked fruit, use a little or no sugar. Sugar does not add any nutrients, only calories. If you buy canned fruit, buy fruit if possible, that is canned in its own juice, in pear juice, or at least pick one that is canned in light syrup.

QUESTION:

How does skim milk compare nutritionally with whole milk?

ANSWER:

When the fat is removed from whole milk to form skim milk, the fat soluble vitamin A is removed. The Food and Drugs Regulations of Health and Welfare Canada stipulate that vitamin A is to be added to all forms of skim milk. This amount is not to be less than 1200 I.U. and not more than 2500 I.U. per 30 fluid ounces. Vitamin D is added to all fluid milk, both skim and whole and also to powdered skim milk. The regulations for vitamin D allow for not less than 300 I.U. and not more than 400 I.U. per 30 ounces of milk. The upper limit is to prevent hypervitaminosis because the body stores these fat soluble vitamins. Skim milk, therefore, contains essentially the same nutrients as whole milk without the fat and, therefore, less calories. Nutritionists recommend that the Canadian public should consume less calories in the form of fat. The average Canadian now receives between 40-45% of his calories from fat, and the recommended per cent is 30-35. By drinking skim milk rather than whole milk, you can cut down on your fat intake.

Finnish scientists say: Baldness can be halted.

LONDON — Two Finnish scientists say they have designed a scalp treatment that can halt baldness and even start new hair growing in many cases.

The scientists, who are putting the treatment on sale in the form of a solution, say that among volunteers who applied it to their scalp for 28 weeks, hair growth resumed in 60 per cent of the cases and hair loss decreased within four weeks.

The product, called Bioscal, contains a synthetic detergent, which clears away dead hair and other dirt clogging the follicles — the tiny sacs in which hair grows.

Another ingredient, a compound, then sets in motion a process which allegedly results in the growth of new hair.

Pastor's Counsel Lunches Don't Sound Very Kosher

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a clergyman, but I'm not disclosing the denomination because this is a small town. a few months ago, he started counselling a young woman in an effort to save her marriage. (I'll call her "Mrs. J.")

Last week he phoned to say he wouldn't be home for lunch as usual because Mrs. J. was coming in for counselling and it might take his entire lunch hour.

I didn't think anything of it until a few days ago when he told me not to bother preparing lunch for the next few weeks because Mrs. J. needs a lot of counselling, and she always brings a nice lunch for both of them when she comes in. (She started with one session a week, now it's five!)

Yesterday when my husband came home, I noticed liquor on his breath. I was shocked because he seldom drinks, and I asked him if he had been drinking. He didn't try to hide it. He said Mrs. J. had brought along a small bottle of wine to have with their lunch.

Abby, I'm not the typical jealous wife, but I'm beginning to wonder what's going on at those sessions.

What do you think? HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: I hope he's not a rabbi, because those lunches sound anything but "kosher" to me.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter called us last month and announced that it was official — she and her boyfriend are living together.

We, her parents, are very unhappy about this arrangement. We like the young man very much. He is a college graduate (as is our daughter), attractive, suceessful and from a good family. We are friendly with his parents.)

Our daughter and her boyfriend are both 28, and there is no reason why they should not get married, but she made it plain that they have no such plans for the present.

The boy's parents don't like this setup any more than we do, but they are also helpless. People are asking us questions, and it is very embarrassing. What should we tell them? EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: Don't be embarrassed. Parents are not responsible for the actions of their 28-year-old children, which is what you should tell people.

DEAR ABBY: In response to the family with "a darling little 88-year-old Granny" who reads their mail, may I add a thought:

At her age, this dear woman probably doesn't receive much mail of her own. By now, most of her friends and probably many of her relatives have already passed on. And since she lives with her daughter, she probably doesn't even get bills of her own.

Reading the rest of the family's mail might be her way of feeling in the mainstream of life. Perhaps if the family saw to it that there was something at "mail call" each day for Granny, she wouldn't need to read someone else's mail to feel important.

DEAR B.: Bless you for your empathetic attitude.

Boeuf Bouilli: Great in Winter or in May craig claiborne

It has long been our contention that, in the ultimate sense, good food knows no calendar. On the other hand, there are certain dishes that are tailor-made for the vagaries of climate and temperature and equinoxes.

One of the great winter dishes, which is also perfect for a blustery day in May, is a traditional French boiled beef — boeuf bouilli — made with seasonal vegetables and rich-textured beef with bone. One of the best selections of beef for the venerable cold-weather creation is a sizable shin of beef.

In France, when this cut is used, the dish is sometimes referred to as as boeuf bouilli a la jambe de bois. When the meat is cooked, the bone is exposed and it does bear some resemblance to Long John Silver's artificial limb.

BOEUF BOUILLI A LA JAMBE DE BOIS
(Boiled beef)

- 7 pounds centre-section shin of beef (see note)
- 2½ pounds cabbage
- 8 quarts (32 cups) water
- 2 bay leaves
- Salt
- 1 teaspoon crushed peppercorns
- 2 sprigs fresh thyme (or 1 teaspoon dried)
- 4 sprigs fresh parsley
- 4 allspice
- 2 whole cloves
- 4 cloves garlic, peeled and left whole
- 2 leek tops, green part only, tied in a bundle
- 1 pound white turnips
- 1 pound potatoes
- ¾ pound carrots, trimmed
- 20 small white onions, peeled
- 4 leeks, trimmed, split and rinsed thoroughly
- 2 hearts of celery, trimmed but with ribs left intact at base

Garnishes:
- Cornichons (sour pickles), preferably imported
- Coarse salt such as kosher salt
- Imported French mustard
- Tomato sauce (see recipe)
- Horseradish sauce

1. Place the beef, including the end bones of beef, if used, in a large kettle. Add cold water to cover.

2. Pull off and discard any tough outer leaves of the cabbage. Cut the cabbage into quarters and add it to the kettle. Bring to the boil and simmer five minutes. Drain.

3. Run both the beef and cabbage under cold water and drain again. Set the cabbage aside. Return the beef to a clean kettle and add the eight quarts of water, bay leaves, salt, peppercorns, thyme, parsley, allspice, cloves, garlic and leek tops. Bring to the boil.

4. Boil the meat partly covered about one and one-half hours.

5. Meanwhile, as the beef cooks, peel the turnips and cut them into quarters or eighths, depending on size. Set aside.

6. Peel the potatoes. Quarter them or cut them into eighths. Drop into cold water and set aside.

7. Trim and scrape the carrots. Cut them into two-inch lengths. Tie the pieces in cheesecloth. Set aside.

8. Peel the onions and tie them in cheesecloth. Set aside.

9. Split the leeks down to the base, but do not cut through. Rinse between the leaves thoroughly. Tie the leeks together in a bundle. Set aside.

10. Tie each heart of celery with string. Set aside.

11. After the beef has cooked one and one-half hours altogether, add the packages of carrots, onions, leeks and celery. Let simmer 45 minutes.

12. Add the cabbage, potatoes and turnips. Let simmer 20 to 30 minutes or until all the vegetables and the beef are tender. The total cooking time is from about two hours and 45 minutes to three hours. When the meat and vegetables are removed, continue to cook down the broth to concentrate it.

13. Untie the various bundles of vegetables. Serve the vegetables with the sliced beef. Garnish with cornichons, coarse salt such as kosher salt, imported French mustard, tomato sauce, horseradish, caper sauce and so on.

14. Serve the broth now or on another occasion with croutons and grated parmesan cheese.

Yield: Twelve or more servings.

Note: If the shin of beef is available with the entire bone, have the butcher saw off the bone ends. Add the ends to the kettle when cooking the shin. These bones are not essential, however.

SAUCE TOMATE
(Fresh tomato sauce)

- 1½ pounds fresh, red, ripe tomatoes
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 1 cup finely chopped onion
- 1 clove garlic, finely minced
- ½ bay leaf
- 1 sprig fresh thyme (or ½ teaspoon dried)
- 1 hot, dried red chili pepper, optional
- Salt and freshly ground pepper.

1. Drop the tomatoes briefly into boiling water. Let stand about 12 seconds. Drain. Cut away and discard the cores. Peel the tomatoes and chop them. There should be about three cups.

2. Heat one tablespoon butter in a small skillet and add the onion. Cook until wilted and add the garlic. Add the tomatoes, bay leaf, thyme chili and salt and pepper to taste and cook, stirring occasionally, for about 15 minutes.

3. Swirl in the remaining two tablespoons of butter and serve.

Different Idea In Late Snacks

Late night snacks are not my dish of tea but I learn from my own young folks and from column young folks that they wish I would give some different ideas for midnight snacks. One girl said "We're tired of pizza and cinnamon toast while we watch the late movie."

Our present idea has the catchy title of Salmon Longboats. It is easy to make, crunchy and flavorful and filling.

(Irrelevant note: Tommy Longboat was an Indian long distance runner and won the annual road race around Hamilton Bay — about 19½ miles — and as you know Hamilton is my native city. He also won the Boston Marathon in 1907. So my Longboats may help you with your jogging.)

SALMON LONGBOATS

- 2 7¾-oz. cans salmon, drained
- 2 cups process or Cheddar cheese cut in ½" cubes
- ¼ cup finely chopped green onion, including stems
- 2 tbsp. sweet pickle relish
- ¼ cup mayonnaise
- 2 tsp. lemon juice
- ¼ tsp. salt
- ⅛ tsp.pepper
- 3 11" mini French loaves or submarine buns
- Parsley flakes

Drain salmon. In a bowl mash salmon, including bones. Add cheese, onion, relish, mayonnaise, lemon juice, salt and pepper and combine thoroughly.

Split and butter loaves or buns. Place on cookie sheets and toast under broiler burner until just tinged with gold. Remove from oven and spread on salmon mixture. Sprinkle with parsley. Return to oven to heat through at 350 deg. Fahr. with upper burner turned off.

FRENCH TOAST TRIANGLES

- 1 cup pancake mix
- 2 eggs
- ⅔ cup milk
- 8 slices day-old bread, cut in half diagonally

Place pancake mix, eggs and milk in bowl. Beat with rotary beater until fairly smooth. Dip slices of bread into batter. Drain off excess batter. Pan-fry in butter in frying pan until golden brown, turning only once. Serve immediately with confectioners' sugar and orange marmalade.

Makes 4 servings.

"We should be very kind to cats and dogs because they have no words."

The Bridge Expert

The trump echo is a play whereby a "high-low" signal is made within the trump suit. Whenever a defender plays high-low in trumps, he is stating: "Partner, I started with three trumps." The usefulness of this trump echo can be observed in today's deal.

Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Two of ♣.

East won the opening lead with the ace of clubs and returned a club, West ruffing with his four-spot. West came back with the diamond five and East's queen was captured by South's ace. South then laid down the king of spades, West followed suit with the three, and East won the trick with his ace.

Had East-West not been familiar with the trump echo, East would now have had a problem as to what to play back. If West possessed the diamond king, a diamond return would enable West to take the setting trick. But if West didn't have the king of diamonds, and had another trump, a club return would be ruffed by West, for the setting trick.

East had no problem. When West ruffed a club (at trick two), he did so with the four of trumps. When declarer subsequently led the king of trumps (at trick four), West followed suit with the three-spot. Thus West's "high-low" trump echo showed that he had been dealt three trumps originally. So, at trick five, East played back another club, which West ruffed with the eight-spot. Declarer was now down one.

It should be noted that if East had played back a diamond instead of a club at trick five, declarer would have fulfilled his contract. He would have won the diamond return with his king, picked up the two remaining trumps possessed by the defenders, and claimed his contract. But, unfortunately for declarer, the defenders were just too good.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Friday, April 28
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You get green light from authoritative source. You locate "escape hatch." You no longer are painted into untenable position. Aquarius, Taurus and Leo figure prominently — so does number 4. You "learn a secret." You are able to use it to advantage.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Cash flow resumes — your perception, long-range planning prove to be on target. Be ready for variety, change of scenery, the "heating up" of a relationship. Imprint your style. Don't sell yourself short.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): What appears a deception will be clarified. You'll benefit. Be wary where legalities are concerned. You have more in your favor than some care to admit. Accent on leases, hidden clauses, wills, documents which require clarification.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Go slow, use time to your advantage — check contracts, commitments. Someone recently promised you something. Now it's your move. Ask for your rights then demand them. If you are wishy-washy, you deserve the classical runaround.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Power play occurs without your knowledge, works in your favor. You are in favored position. Your bargaining points are strong. Stand tall. Refuse to be intimidated by threats — or flattery. One who claims to love you should put up — or shut up.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): One who seemed bent on pleasure now insists on security. This is decision time. Relationship put to test. You finish or begin anew. There is no in between. Aries, Libra figure in scenario.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): See with "new eyes." Past data was frayed, disjointed. Someone pulled the wool over your eyes. Now you have opportunity to redeem yourself. Leo, Aquarius could figure prominently. Older individual shares secret.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Hold tight to possessions, protect valuables. Follow through on hunch, trust inner feelings. Avoid speculation. Verify reports. You learn by teaching. Relative in transit provides valuable material. Request will be fulfilled.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Emphasis on ideas, illusions which can be transformed into solid gains, profits. Give full play to imagination, creativity. You need not be limited. Expand, write, travel, publish and communicate. In matters of speculation, stick with number 3.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Break through restrictions, red tape. You have chance to make known your views, to imprint your own personality, style. Take initiative. Make new starts, contacts, highlight originality and independence. Aquarius, Scorpio and Leo could be in picture.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Action replaces dull routine, fear, doubt. You gain glimpse behind scenes. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius individuals figure prominently. Romance, wishes that come true — these could be on your personal agenda. Money comes from unorthodox source.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Avoid direct confrontations. Take ring roads. Be subtle, diplomatic and discreet. Make amends to family member following recent dispute. If calm, considerate, you make progress on road to fulfillment. Taurus, Libra persons figure prominently.

IF APRIL 28 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are creative, original, independent, sensuous. Leo, Aquarius persons play important roles in your life. May could be your outstanding month of 1978, a year featuring accelerated social life, travel and removal of an emotional burden. You appreciate art, luxury and diamonds.

Trashy Robbins Formula Unsuited to Screen

Lorraine Locherty reviews three films: The Betsy, The Fury, and The Silver Bears

There should be a law against making Harold Robbins novels into movies, because paying $3.50 to see this kind of trash is a crime. The latest movie verson of one of his lurid tales, The Betsy, is all lust, greed and violence — the standard formula that has made Robbins the richest novelist in the world.

But Robbins' work doesn't adapt well to the screen, mainly because the characters are stereotypes that rarely transcend clichedom.

The Betsy, an orgasmic tribute to the American auto industry and those rich and powerful men who run it, is no different. The central characters are larger than life, one-dimensional and totally unrealistic.

They are only shallow vehicles for Robbins favorite subjects: sex and power. Everything else — including a few sprinklings of factual information about the car manufacturing business — is just window dressing.

Briefly, the plot centres around four generations of an automobile dynasty and the internal power struggles going on to control it. The title role of Loren Hardemen, founder of the Bethlehem Motor Corporation, is played lustily by Laurence Olivier. (He must have been offered a lot of money to appear in this piece of garbage.) Hardemen is an aging philanderer who is losing his grip on his company and the people in his life. As a parting shot at immortality, he decides to revolutionize the industry with a space-age economy car that will make all the gas-guzzlers on the road obsolete. Hardeman hires Angelo Perino, part-time race car driver and full-time stud, to build it for him.

Perino is played with total inadequacy by Tommy Lee Jones. Jones goes through the movie with the desperate look of a man who has no idea what he is supposed to be portraying. But it's not entirely his fault: Robbins' macho heroes are the strong, silent type, but Jones is so stiff he looks as if he has a bad case of lockjaw. Everybody spends a great deal of time trying to figure him out, but it's not worth the effort.

Perino's basic function, in addition to building the Betsy, is to seduce as many women as possible. The car, by the way, is named after Hardeman's luscious granddaughter, played by newcomer Kathleen Beller, and Perino gets her too. But even with the soft lights and violins, the love scenes are just plain tacky and even the actors seem to be grimacing with embarrassment.

Beller's freshness is a welcome relief from the decadence around her. As if the plot isn't shakey enough, a series of confusing flashbacks provide an excuse to cram more sordid details about Hardenman's past into the script. Robert Duval as Loren III and Katherine Ross as the wife of Loren II appear briefly and look just as miserable as everyone else. The only one who looks like he's having a good time is Olivier, whose meaty role lets him progress from a young man to a very old one, seduce lots of women, destroy men and build an empire in the process. Olivier gleefully meets this challenge, but he's the only one smiling.

* * *

One thing about The Fury: it's not boring. People with weak stomachs, however, should not go and see this movie. Director Brian De Palma, whose taste for the bizarre produced the Phantom of the Paradise, has taken the same theme he used to frighten audiences in Carrie — telekinesis — and intensified it a thousand times in The Fury. The result makes Carrie seem like a Sunday school picnic. DePalma starts the action right away and keeps the sequence of startling events moving as such a fast pace the audience doesn't have time to think about the absurd plot.

A U.S. government secret agency that is never identified (all we know is that it's not the CIA or the FBI), kidnaps the son of one of its agents because the boy has telekinetic powers — the ability to move objects by willpower alone. The agency wants to develop the boy's gift as a secret weapon against the Russians, but his father has other ideas. Kirk Douglas is great as the bereaved father and Andrew Stevens, son of Stella, does a good job as his son. On the whole, the casting is excellent; the problem is the plot's credibility, which disappears rapidly as DePalma gets more and more engrossed in scaring the wits out of people.

DePalma throws caution to the wind in this commercial thriller. He is so intent on spellbinding his audience with technical wizardry that realism is all but forgotten. It's dangerous, but it works because everything happens so fast there is no time to be skeptical until after it's all over.

During most of the movie Douglas plays a cat-and-mouse game with the villainous agency head played with glowering evil by John Cassavetes. Douglas dons a series of wily disguises as he tries to outwit Cassavetes and his omnipotent organization. On his side, Douglas has an old flame named Hester, who works at a government-sponsored psychic research institute and a young girl with untapped psychic powers. Carrie Snodgress, in her first screen role in eight years, plays Hester. She's terrific and so is the girl, played by Amy Irving.

The girl's telekinetic powers are so terrific they make people bleed from their mouths, ears, fingernails and eyes whenever she has a psychic vision. It's not a pretty sight, but neither is Douglas' son when they finally find him. Cassavetes and his crew have goaded the boy into a walking nuclear reactor who wreaks havoc in an amusement park by short-circuiting the rides. during one incredible scene. Most of this stuff is pretty hard to swallow if you're a non-believer, but for people who want a good scare, it's great, particularly the cataclysmic ending.

* * *

The Silver Bears is a cuddly little comedy about a group of lovable con artists. Everyone in this movie is cute, even the bad guys, who are hard to distinguish from the good guys because everyone is crooked. The only guy who isn't crooked ends up taking the rap because he isn't a rascal.The crime is fraud and its perpetrated with finesse by Michael Caine, an English hustler, and Louis Jordan, an impoverished member of the French aristocrasy.

The movie is full of delightful supporting actors, including Martin Balsam and comedian Jay Leno as a father and son team of American mafioso types. Even Cybill Shepard manages to be funny and cute, which is a real switch for her because she usually plays an all-American ice maiden. Shepard is the scatterbrained wife of Tommy Smothers, the innocent schmuck who gets nailed for the fraud.

The plot is rather tangled, and is further complicated because everyone is trying to cheat everybody else. It starts when Caine buys a Swiss Bank where his gangster employer Balsam can launder the mob's ill-gotten gains. The promise of a billion dollars lures him into financing a silver smuggling scheme, using the bank as a front. The richest man in the world, who also controls the international silver market, gets wind of the operation and trys to put an end to it by purchasing the bank through an American banking outfit looking for a European branch. Plenty of good-natured pot-shots are taken at the high finance world of banking, where scruples are sometimes left outside the board room. It gets harder and harder to sort things out as the movie progresses, but it's really not important.The main thing is, everyone has a good time, even Smothers, who gets stuck with the crime while Caine gets his wife.

HOSPITAL STAY OVER FOR WAYNE

BOSTON — John Wayne, wearing a wide-brimmed hat and saying, "I feel great; wonderful," left Massachusetts General Hospital today amid tight security. He underwent open-heart surgery three weeks ago.

Wayne, 70, rode in a limousine out of a basement service entrance of the hospital. Guards walked alongside the car.

At Logan International Airport, where a private jet waited to take him to California, Wayne told reporters: "I feel great, I couldn't feel better. I feel like a new man, that's all I know. It's a wonderful feeling."

Wayne said he was returning home and feels he has the strength to carry on the life he led before the surgery.

Sylvester Beat Death 3 Times

CANON CITY, Colo. — Three times, Sylvester Lee Garrison "took the walk," headed for the gas chamber of the Colorado state penitentiary.

But after 20 years in prison, he walked through the gates Wednesday a free man, 45 years old, with $100 in his pocket and a new suit of clothes.

"First, I'm going to sit on the porch and watch the people for a little while," he said shortly before his release. "Watch the cars go by. I'll need a little time to put things behind me."

Freedom Worth a Grin

SAFFORD, Ariz. — John Ehrlichman, grinning broadly, walked out of Swift Trail federal prison camp today, 18 months after he was imprisoned there for his role in the Watergate affair.

The former domestic affairs adviser to then-President Richard Nixon drove off for an unknown destination in a maroon Chevrolet with Phoenix Gazette reporter Lois Boyles, driven by her son, Lance.

Ehrlichman, 53, was followed by nearly 50 reporters and photographers as he walked from the front door of the minimum-security facilitiy. He posed for pictures, but declined to answer any questions.

Asked how he felt, Ehrlichman said: "Can't you see how I feel?"

Gazette city editor Vic Thornton had said prior to Ehrlichman's release that Mrs. Boyles would be on hand at the prison.

"I don't know if we'll get a story or not," Thornton said. "She's got this personal involvement. She's very sympathetic toward him."

Ehrlichman is separated from his wife, Jeanne, who lives in Seattle where he formerly practised law. Mrs. Boyles is reported to be separated from her husband.

Ehrlichman was convicted of conspiring to hide White House involvement in the Watergate burglary. He entered the prison in eastern Arizona on Oct. 28, 1976.

When not working the overnight shift in the power plant of the minimum-security prison, Ehrlichman spent much of his time writing. He has said his novel, The Company, will be followed by another book before he begins work on a book about Nixon.

Sandy Dies

LONDON — Sandy Denny, formerly a singer with the folk group Fairport Convention, has died after being injured in a fall, a spokesman for a London hospital said Wednesday.

Veil of Silence Over Ruling On Patty

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Defence lawyers and prosecutors in the Patricia Hearst case are under a gag order not to detail the results of an appeal seeking to keep her from returning to jail for her bank robbery conviction.

They emerged from a second court session in two days with U.S. District Judge William Orrick Wednesday but told waiting reporters they could not discuss the court sessions.

Miss Hearst's lawyer, Al Johnson, said he would tell Miss Hearst what had happened.

However, Johnson did say he was "not displeased" by the judge's gag order because of the "sensitive and publicized nature of the case."

Driving Test Ends With Bang

The department of public safety officers might remember her in Sherman.

Mrs. Parish, 72, had completed her driving examination and was about to receive her licence as she pulled into a parking spot at the DPS office. Officer Gene Hodge decided she was too close to another car and asked her to back up and try again.

He shouldn't have been so picky.

Mrs. Parish reversed, shifted to a forward gear and then apparently became confused about the functions and placement of the brake and the accelerator pedals. The car jumped the curve and lunged through the plate glass window of the licence office, leaving 30 feet of skidmarks on the waxed floor as it plowed through desks, chairs and office materials.

Quota On Kitties

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) — There'll soon be a kitty quota in this Miami suburb which has some of the toughest zoning laws in the state. The city commission this week passed an ordinance limiting families to four adult cats a residence. Some Coral Gables residents waggishly questioned the language of the ordinance, which outlaws ownership of more than four "carnivorous quadrupeds belonging to the feline family."

Park Volunteers Oppose Booth

Volunteer stream enhancement workers Wednesday protested a government proposal to construct a tourist office in Goldstream Provincial Park.

"A commercial proposal such as this has no place in the park," said Wilf Wilson of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers Association, spokesman for the group.

The volunteers, representing various organizations such as the Esquimalt Anglers Association, the Victoria Fish and Game Association, Victoria Canoe Club and others, feed the salmon fingerlings in Goldstream River.

For four years they have been working to upgrade Goldstream with a view of making it a major salmon producing river. This includes the operation of a salmon incubation box. They also assist the provincial parks branch in checking vandalism and pollution in the river.

The volunteers met at Goldstream park Wednesday.

The tourist promotion project was submitted to Conservation and Recreation Minister Sam Bawlf by Charles Danbrook, owner of the Westwind International Motor Inn at Langford.

Wilson said there is little green space on both sides of the highway and to cut into what there is would be a serious mistake.

"Instead of spending public funds on a structure like this, the government should use the money to upgrade its roadside stops," he said.

Coal Licence Deal Denied

A decision to change the method of issuing coal exploration licences was made by the cabinet coal committee alone, Mines Minister Jim Chabot said Wednesday.

Responding to question in the legislature, Chabot said representatives of the coal industry have never remained in meetings with the committee after civil service staff were excluded.

Liberal leader Gordon Gibson had asked Chabot why the policy of issuing coal exploration licences had changed from a bidding system to a priority or first-come-first-serve system.

Chabot said that a review of the bidding system showed there would be difficulties in implementing it so the cabinet committee decided to go to the priority system.

Gibson said he learned that during a critical point of a meeting of the cabinet committee, industry representatives and public servants discussing licence issuing, the public servants were asked to leave.

He said he understood the decision was made privately between the industry and cabinet.

"That statement is absolutely incorrect," Chabot said.

Outside the house, Gibson said he accepts the minister's statement but warned that he will ask further questions.

He said the priority system tends to favor small coal prospectors because the smaller companies cannot possibly hope to compete with the big oil companies in a bidding for exploration licences.

$352,112 Bid Wins Contract For Dura Firm

Dura Construction Ltd. of Saanichton, has been awarded a $352,112 contract to construct three bridges on the Island Highway north of Campbell River, Highways Minister Alex Fraser said Wednesday.

Fraser said in a news release that Dura submitted the lowest of nine bids for the contract. Construction will begin next week and should involve 12 workers, he said.

Nobody's got it like Pontiac's got it!

Acadian $3941.
Priced the imports lately?

If you have already, you'll know what we're talking about. If you haven't, we'd better prepare you for a shock.

Would you believe over five grand for a VW Rabbit?! And the other popular imported Hatchbacks are all up there over four grand!

Now you're probably thinking, "Okay, if that's the kind of money you have to put out to get the kind of standard features you want, well, what can you do?"

You can get down to your Pontiac dealer and check out the '78 Acadian. Not only does Acadian set you back less than the four leading imported Hatchbacks but you get a low-sill rear hatch and flat loading floor, a 1.6 litre 4-cylinder overhead-cam engine, four-on-the floor, centre console, reclining buckets, AM radio, carpeting, body side molding, whitewalls, wheel covers, and more, as standard equipment.

Pontiac Acadian: a cure for foreign shock.

PRICE THE HATCHBACKS*
Honda Civic	$4095.
Ford Fiesta	$4385.

Socred Gov't to Spend $90,000 On a Re-Hash of the B.C. Budget

The Socred government will spend more than $90,000 to distribute a news-style version of the 1978-79 budget presented in the legislature April 10.

The B.C. Government News, a tabloid compiled by Premier Bill Bennett's press secretary John Arnett and issued once a month to publicize the government, will be sent to each of the 975,945 households in the province, Dave Brown, Bennett's communications adviser, said in an interview Wednesday.

The BCGN normally has a press run of 160,000.

Arnett said he did not know the size of the press run for the budget issue, or how much it cost to print and mail, and referred all questions to Brown.

Brown said he did not know the costs of the augmented press run, but estimated it at $40,000.

A spokesman for the post office said distribution of the publication will be 4.2 cents a copy for a total of $40,989.69.

Brown confirmed that 53 students have been hired for a week to 10 days to fold the publication because it is not suitable for mailing as printed and folded by E.W. Bickle of Courtenay.

The students, working under the direction of a provincial government post office supervisor are being paid $175 a week, although some may be getting a few dollars more depending on what year they are in, Brown said.

Gary Lauk (NDP—Vancouver Centre) called on the government to provide the opposition with $50,000 to $60,000 to provide a reply to what he termed a completely one-sided document.

"In many cases it contains what I would categorize as fictional material. It is a pure Social Credit propoganda document paid for by the taxpayers of B.C."

Brown said spending authority for the BCGN is contained in the spending estimates of the provincial secretary.

The estimates show that government publications will be allotted $201,759 for the fiscal year while public information programs will get $205,054. There is no seperate listing for B.C. Government News.

Barrett Raps BCR Silence

Opposition members demanded to know Wednesday why Premier Bill Bennett hasn't contacted any of B.C.'s four federal cabinet ministers if he wants Ottawa to help keep the B.C. Rail link open to Fort Nelson.

Amid hoots of derision Bennett replied that he hasn't had time.

The issue was raised during question period Wednesday when NDP leader Dave Barrett asked Bennett if he had brought the issue up with Fitness and Amateur Sport Minister Iona Campagnolo, Justice Minister Ron Basford, Environment Minister Jean Marchand or Liberal House leader Sen. Ray Perrault.

Bennett said if any B.C. MPs had not yet been contacted, they will be.

Bennett said certain ministers have the responsibility for the negotiations and they will carry out their responsibilities on their own time tables.

"As the premier, I will be following up on my time table in trying to persuade those responsible for representing B.C. at the federal level to remember B.C. when they get to Ottawa."

Barrett wasn't impressed.

"I think the premier of this province is floundering in indecisiveness. He can't make up his mind on what he's going to do on the Fort Nelson extension, and as he comes under more and more pressure to make a decision, he strikes out in any direction that can deflect some of the heat he's feeling."

Strike by French

BESANCON, France (AP) — The 30 French workers at the Soviet-owned Slava Watch factory in Besancon are on strike, demanding more money, shorter hours and longer vacations. The 10 Russian employees are not on strike. The French workers went on strike last June and won a one-half-hour reduction in the work week.

Hydro, Drivers Settle

A tentative contract settlement was reached Wednesday between B.C. Hydro and the Amalgamated Transit Union.

Union spokesman Al Ashton said that all issues in the dispute had been resolved, but he would not reveal further details. It was not known when a ratification vote would be.

The two main issues in contract negotiations, covering about 3,500 bus drivers and maintenance workers in Vancouver and Victoria, had been hours of work and operation of the spareboard, a system of assigning drivers during peak periods.

The union held a week-long strike last month to back its contract demands.

Two other Hydro unions — the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and the Office and Technical Employees Union — earlier reached tentative agreements with the Crown corporation.

Waterfront Park Access To Expand

The Socred government will embark this year on a program to expand public access to water recreation, Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf said Wednesday.

"This recognizes that while we have 11 million acres of provincial parks in B.C. — approximately five acres for every man, woman and child that resides in the province — we have in fact a deficiency of waterfront-access-type parkland which is reasonably close to settled areas," Bawlf said during debate of his budgetary estimates.

He said that the expansion would involve, in many instances, buying land from private citizens.

Bawlf also announced that his ministry will initiate programs to assist municipalities and local governments in preserving their local heritage.

Lorne Nicolson (NDP—Nelson-Creston), the opposition recreation and conservation critic, called on the government to continue a moratorium on mining exploration in the East Kootenay region where 25 per cent of the California Big Horn sheep in B.C. are located.

"This is one of the great natural resources of the province," he told the legislature.

Nicolson said he fears that construction of roads in the area for coal exploration could have serious affects on the sheep population.

Nicolson also said that the current reorganization of the conservation ministry has all the attributes of a hatchet job.

Bawlf said that the reorganization is going according to a plan drawn up by consultants and endorsed by the agencies affected.

He said he has asked for a report on the big horn sheep situation, but did not expect it within the next day or two.

SPEAKER FEARS TV 'CLOWNS'

Speaker Harvey Schroeder said Wednesday he doubts whether the presence of television in the legislature would improve the quality of debate.

"I'm wondering whether or not it wouldn't accentuate the idiosyncracies of members — the clown, the loud speaker," he said in an interview.

The Manitoba legislature is planning television on an experimental basis this session. Regular proceedings of the House of Commons and the Ontario legislature are televised, while cameras are permitted in the Alberta legislature

The B.C. legislature currently allows the televising of only the throne and budget speeches, plus prorogation. Film without sound can be shot in the house at any time.

Schroeder said that if the members of the house want the debate and question period televised, they'll eventually get it, but it can't be forced on them.

Former speaker Gordon Dowding, who presided over the legislature during the term of the NDP government from 1972-75, commissioned a report on the subject which was tabled in late 1974.

The report, by Edward McWhinney, recommended that legislation dealing with parliamentary privilege first be passed before considering whether television should be allowed into the house. The report was not acted upon.

NDP leader Dave Barrett said Wednesday he opposes the televising of proceedings.

"People might be more concerned with make-up and hairdos and the nature of their clothes rather than the quality and quantity of the debate or the spontaneity of the debate," he said.

Jack Kempf (SC—Omineca), Socred caucus' deputy chairman, said he also is worried about members playing to the television cameras, however, he has no objection to televising the daily question period.

Kempf suggested that an all-party committee of the house should study the suggestion.

Shelford Out To Get Wolves

Provincial government game managers should be compelled to spent two winters in the woods as part of their education in order to see the true nature of the wolf, Cyril Shelford (SC—Skeena) said Wednesday.

Shelford told the legislature that university-educated game managers are most often the victim of what he called the Farley Mowat myth — that wolves only kill the weak and sick.

"We've educated a whole generation on a myth and until that is turned around, I would say that the chance of getting a proper game management progam is 100 per cent against," he said.

He said the northern caribou population is most adversely affected by a burgeoning wolf population in B.C.

Shelford said packs of marauding wolves have so depleted that caribou population that it is declining by an annual rate of 25 per cent.

He predicted that if something isn't done to control the wolf population, the guide industry in B.C. will die off in four or five years.

Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf admitted that Shelford had pinpointed the biggest problem faced by his ministry, that of game management.

Bawlf said there is a general misconception that wildlife will balance out if left on their own.

"There's no such thing as a natural, stable equilibrium," the minister said, adding that one hasn't existed since well before the arrival of the white man in North America.

Bawlf said his ministry is currently conducting a test program dealing with the caribou population. After the results are known this summer, he said, the ministry can then decide on a course of action.

He said the goal won't be to kill off the wolf population, but to find a proper balance. Wolf control will be carried out through the use of poison, he said.

Potato Hills Not a Benefit

At the close of last Saturday's column on potatoes it was stated that hilling potatoes is not necessary, or advisable, in our summer climate because the potato always makes its tubers in warm surface soil.

Each time soil is piled over the roots the plant ceases to feed the tubers already formed and turns its energy to producing more tubers nearer the surface, giving a crop of small immature tubers.

Mounding the soil each side of the rows is a practice that few home gardeners have questioned, and the reason so many no longer grow potatoes because of the work involved and the space required.

When the potato first reached the British Isles it was extensively grown in Ireland where it became a high priority export crop, as indicated by the disastrous effects of the potato famine around 1858.

Heavy rainfall is a characteristic of Ireland's weather, maintaining a high percentage of water in the soil even in summer, thus lowering the soil temperature and resulting in seveal potato diseases and the tendency of the tuber to rot while in storage.

Knowing this plant had been brought from semi-tropical regions and grew in dry warm soils, the idea of banking the soil for better drainage and thus increasing its temperature seemed reasonable, and was later found to be the answer to many of the problems.

The practice was followed throughout the British Isles as more areas were devoted to potato production, and the method is still carefully detailed in the English gardening books.

While the weather of the West Coast and northern Vancouver Island is similar to that of Ireland, the southern tip and part of the east coast has a modified Mediterranean climate with minimal summer rainfall.

Although the summer condition of local soils is good for potato growing, the clay base is slow to absorb the sun's warmth, the warmest portion being the top few inches.

It is here the first tubers are formed. If the gardener piles soil against the plants, the soil around the original tubers is cooled and a new set of tubers is formed under the surface of the soil pile. This happens every time the plants are hilled.

Since the plant's energy is frequently diverted to making new tubers, few reach the full size for the variety, or become properly matured by digging time.

When operating a market garden here in the 1940s, potatoes were planted in late October and covered with portable coldframes. We never climbed into these crowded frames to do hilling, nor was there sufficient help available, or the space to spare, for hilling of the main crops in the open ground.

Although one hilling was standard practice in Vancouver where the rainfall is considerably greater than in Victoria, I have never hilled a crop in my 48 years of gardening here.

We noticed the one-eye sets from the upper half of the seed tubers produced five equal sized tubers, and the two-eye sets from the lower part of the seed tubers gave seven equal sized tubers of slightly smaller dimensions but still good representatives of the variety being grown.

Since these tubers were formed in a circle just under the surface no digging was necessary when the crop was lifted.

The tubers swell rapidly as the tops begin to deteriorate, some poking an end out of the soil. We checked the rows regularly during the last few weeks and pushed a little soil over the protruding ends. This took far less time and energy than needed for hilling, and close planting gave a large crop from a small area of ground.

HOW TO WRITE

A GOOD

CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember. Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Friday; 8:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

RIDE WORTH $70,000

NEW YORK (AP) — The expense account submitted by Paul Revere for one of his famous rides was auctioned off Wednesday for $70,000 — believed to be the highest amount ever paid for any autograph or example of American handwriting.

It surpassed the $54,000 paid in 1949 for the final draft of Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, until Wednesday the most valuable piece of American handwriting.

SEAL HUNT 'BRUTAL', U.K. TOLD

LONDON (CP) — Richard Ryder, chairman of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, says the Canadian seal hunt is "a massacre, brutal, bloody and unnecessary."

Ryder told a news conference Wednesday that the RSPCA has decided to call for an immediate ban in Britain on imports of sealskins and other seal products to show British abhorrence of the hunt.

"Chances of this happening are quite reasonable," Ryder said. "Questions are already being tabled by members of Parliament."

William Jordan, RSPCA wildlife advisory officer, presented a report on the method of killing the seal pups in the Canadian hunt and suggested the pups are not killed outright with the first blow.

He had watched the hunt on the Magdalen Islands, in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and had examined 13 carcasses. Six had fractured skulls. On later inspections he found that the skulls had been crushed—"obviously so visitors would think they had been killed in the proper way."

He compared the clubs used in the Canadian hunt with the method used in the Farne Islands off the Northumberland coast where seals are shot in the head.

"It is abhorrent to see any animal die, let alone see the spectacle taking place in Canada," Jordan said.

Dr. Harry Rowsell of the University of Ottawa, executive director of the Canadian Council on Animal Care, and R. Noyes Roberts, public affairs counsellor at the Canadian high commission here, also attended the news conference.

U.S. Hopes Rise on Economy

By HOBART ROWEN
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — American officials are taking a more optimistic view of world economic prospects as they prepare for a high-level international meeting in Mexico City this weekend.

In terms of economic growth, inflation, and in narrowing the balance of payments gap between the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries and the rest of the world, "prospects are better than they have been for some time," Under Secretary of Treasury Anthony Solomon said Tuesday.

Behind the better tone — although American officials shy away from saying so publicly — is the expectation or at least the hope that the U.S. dollar has "bottomed out" after a long slide in 1977 and earlier this year.

At a minimum, many private market experts here and in Europe think that the dollar may have hit a psychological plateau. It has been remarkably steady against major currencies since hitting a low point early this year, despite U.S. resistance to European demands for massive market intervention to prop up the dollar.

The Mexico City meeting this weekend will bring together Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal, Federal Reserve Chairman G. William Miller, and their finance minister and central bank counterparts of other major nations.

They will attend meetings of the International Monetary Fund's poliy-managing Interim Committee, the Group of Ten rich developed nations, and the Group of Twenty-Four, representing the less developed world.

Solomon appeared to take a rather dim view of the principal new initiative to be discussed at Mexico City, a proposal by IMF Managing Director H. J. Witteveen to encourage a new issue of Special Drawing Rights (SDRs) which at the same time would soak up excess dollars.

SDRs are an asset created by the IMF and distributed in proportional amounts to all members. Witteveen's plan would in effect substitute SDRs for dollars held in reserves by many nations. The dollars would be "frozen", and not available to be drawn again, but the interest they earn would be credited to the nations that turned them in.

Witteveen believes that his scheme would offset the objections some nations have to an outright new issue of SDRs, because total world liquidity would not be increased.

Solomon said that "we do not feel the proposal is spelled out . . . it would need further study."

The Treasury official said that the U.S. would offer a proposal of its own involving procedures by which the IMF, under new rules recently adopted, inherits responsibility for surveillance of exchange rate changes.

He said they would be detailed in a presentation by Blumenthal in Mexico City. European sources, who note that the basic procedures for surveillance have already been set by the IMF, take the U.S. "procedural" suggestion as a psychological commitment by the U.S. to the importance of the IMF's surveillance function.

It may be seen, some Europeans think, as a further assurance by the U.S. it is abandoning "benign neglect" of the dollar. Other recent steps in support of the dollar, including last week's announcement of gold sales, have contributed to dollar stability.

The agendas for all three of the Mexico City sessions will cover the world economic outlook and the question of creating additional world reserves through a new allocation of (SDRs). In addition, the IMF Interim Committee will discuss the next, or seventh round of quota increases.

Solomon's optimistic appraisal of the world outlook was based, he said, on "somewhat better balanced growth (prospects) around the world." He cited a common market estimate that European growth might be at 4.5 percent rate by mid-1979.

He said that West German prospects were "somewhat less clear" and that "they may need more stimulus", but that the official Bonn forecast was for a 4.5 to 5 percent growth rate by the end of the year.

Europeans at Mexico City are expected to bring a somewhat less optimistic view of their growth prospects. Leading private institutions in West Germany have just published a pessimistic report, estimating growth during 1978 at only 2.5 percent, compared with the Bonn Government's 3.5 percent figure.

Solomon said that prospects look better for Japan to come closer to its 7 percent growth target for 1978; that the less developed countries over-all would show an additional .5 percent growth: and the U.S. will continue at a good clip, although slightly less than last year."

He said that "inflation is continuing to come down in more countries", and that the U.S., with a new anti-inflation drive "is determined to do better."

The greatest change in prospects, Solomon said, relates to the likelihood that the OPEC current account surplus will be shaved by at least $10 billion to a range of $20 to $25 billion this year, and that the Japanese current account surplus should decine "substantially" later in 1978.

That would mean, he pointed out, a reduction in the mirror-image deficits borne by many other countries. He said that the over-all U.S. current account deficit still would be around the $20 billion mark, although the rate toward the end of the year would be well under the staggering $28 billion annual rate of the final quarter of 1977.

Carter Agrees to Delay Mideast Arms Package

WASHINGTON (WP) — President Carter agreed Wednesday to delay briefly the submission of his controversial Middle East arms sale package to Congress, but reaffirmed his determination to wait only a few days and to fight attempts to block portions of the package.

White House press secretary Jody Powell announced the delay, saying the proposed sale of jets to Israel, Egypt and Saudi Arabia will be submitted to Congress " no later than early next week." Friday is considered the most likely day for submission of the proposals.

In a flurry of congressional and executive branch meetings on the topic, there was no sign of an impending compromise that might head off a legislative battle.

Several senators predicted, after a meeting with Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, that Congress will reject the sales to all three countries on procedural grounds if Carter continues to treat them as a package.

Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan is to meet Thursday morning with a group of senators at the Watergate Hotel. The arms package is likely to be a major topic. Israeli officials maintained it was not discussed Wednesday during Dayan's lengthy talks on Middle East negotiations with Vance. The Dayan-Vance talks are to be completed Thursday.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., Dem.-Mass., who declared Tuesday that the arms sale proposals would be disapproved by Congress, modified that prediction Wednesday. Told that Chairman Clement J. Zablocki, Dem.-Wis., of the House International Relations Committee believed that committee would narrowly fail to recommend that the sale be blocked, O'Neill confessed to making "a snap judgment" and said, "I guess Zablocki knows more about his committee than I do."

White House officials continued to predict that Carter will prevail on the issue. But Powell said the fight in Congress is bound to be "very close and very tough."

"The real issue, which Congress and the country must decide," he said, "is whether it is in the best interest of the United States to maintain, without deviation, its historic commitment to the security of Israel while at the same time we are seeking closer ties with the moderate Arab nations. The president feels strongly that it is."

The press secretary added: "The Congress and the country will have to decide what kind of Middle East we want in the 1980s — whether we want a Middle East where those who seek peace.

$50,000 Landscaping For Harbor

A $50,000 landscaping project is on tap for Victoria's Inner Harbor in preparation for the coming tourist season.

The funds, made available through the Provincial Capital Commission, will go to the construction of precast planters and benches along the waterfront, Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf said Tuesday.

The project is part of the harbor beautification in readiness for the arrival of the tall ships from Hawaii and the Captain Cook bicentennial festivities.

Embargo Urged

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Two Congressional subcommittees voted Wednesday to ask President Jimmy Carter to impose a trade embargo against Uganda because of violations of human rights by the government of Idi Amin.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Judge Blake Allan imposed a $450 drinking-driving fine on a 22-year-old man in provincial court Wednesday after noting that neither he nor police were willing to testify about charges of police brutality.

David Horner, 121 Elroy, made the accusations last Wednesday while pleading guilty to a charge of driving with a blood-alcohol content over .08 March 18 in Colwood.

Allan requested the presence of Cpl. Raymond Thorogood and Constable Glen Dales of the Colwood RCMP detachment before sentencing of Horner.

Horner had questioned how police could note any signs of impairment such as swaying when, he claimed, he was thrown to the ground and handcuffed as soon as he stepped out of his pickup truck.

Horner said his glasses were bent to the point of breaking when he tried to straighten them and said he suffered facial scratches in the assault.

Crown counsel Richard Law suggested the procedure taken by Horner was irregular and said Horner should lay a charge. Law said Horner's previous statements were unsworn and that it would not serve the administration of justice to have the officers, who were present, testify.

"I'm not sitting here in judgment of the police officer, of course," Allan said.

Allan then turned to Horner and said the officers were present and prepared to testify under oath and asked Horner if he was prepared to do so.

"I will if it's necessary," Horner replied.

Law then said he was not going to call Dales to the stand and insisted the judge do it. Allan refused, saying it was not his duty to force witnesses to take the stand against their will.

Dales then said that in view of the circumstances, he wished an adjournment to have further consultations with his superiors.

Law said the choices left were for Allan to strike the guilty plea entered by Horner and have a full hearing, or trial, into the charges of impaired driving and driving with a blood-alcohol content over .08, or the matter should be put under oath and Horner should be made to testify.

A short break was taken when the impasse was reached and Horner's father indicated his son may take up Law's suggestion that a complaint be made to the commanding officer of the Colwood detachment, where an internal investigation would be held and possible charges against the officer laid.

Following the recess, Horner maintained his guilty plea and Allan asked Law if he wanted to call any witnesses or to relate the circumstances of the offence.

Law opted for the circumstances and told the court the incident occurred at about 2.20 a.m. when Dales spotted a GM pickup truck driving over the curb at the Westwind shopping plaza and behind to a dirt road. He said the emergency equipment was turned on and Horner's truck was pursued — at moderate speeds — for four or five miles before it was stopped on Leigh Road.

Law said two cases of beer were found in the front seat and Horner, the lone occupant, then admitted he had been drinking. Horner got out on the driver's side, Law continued, and officers noted swaying while he was standing. He said Dales told Horner he was being arrested for dangerous driving and twice tried to take him by the arm, each time failing because Horner turned away.

Dales asked Horner to put his hands on the truck while the officer searched him and it was then that Horner turned away, was grabbed and both men fell to the ground. Horner was turned over on his stomach, Law continued, and handcuffed. He was held by another officer while Dales read the breath test demand.

Horner was taken to the Colwood detachment where readings of .16 were obtained in two tests, Law said.

Asked if he had anything to say, Horner said the chase was not four or five miles but may have been "two at the most."

"Did you see flashing lights behind you and not stop?" Allan asked.

"Uh-huh," Horner replied, indicating yes.

"Did you complain to anybody (about the assault)?" Allan inquired.

"I just told my father."

When asked by the judge if he didn't comply with the officer's request to put hands on the vehicle for a search, Horner said, "I don't think any of that happened, myself."

Before imposing the fine, Allan said both sides had been given an opportunity to testify and were reluctant and said: "Accordingly, I have to weigh what has been said to me in the form of statements not under oath."

Allan said he tended to believe the officers' version because they were sober while Horner had readings of .16.

"These days," Allan said, "quite a number of allegations of improper conduct are made, nearly all of which are unfounded."

He said it seemed to be customary for young people to abuse the police, adding quickly that this was not so in Horner's case.

"It is the duty of the public, in my view, to support the police," Allan concluded, "People who are sensible usually do."

Horner was asked after he paid the fine whether he was going to make the official complaint to Colwood RCMP."

"I don't know, I don't wish to say anything," he replied.

Two men and a woman were arrested after members of the Greater Victoria Joint Forces Operation of the Coordinated Law Enforcement Unit (CLEU) raided a Colwood home and seized motorcycles, chainsaws, a firearm, blasting caps and wiring.

Charles Gordon Watt, 2 Rocky Point Road, pleaded guilty to three counts of miscief causing wilful damage and was fined a total of $225 and ordered to pay $465 in restitution.

Crown counsel Don Laughton told the court Watt became angry after being evicted from the King John's Inn, 2668 Sooke Road, and threw a rock through a $400 window there, another rock through a $50 window at Little John's Pizza nearby, and damaged a rear-view mirror in the car belonging to William Creelman of King John's Inn. Laughton said Watt sat in Creelman's car and blew the horn until police arrived.

Fined for drinking-driving were: Gilbert Anthony Jimmie, 24, of 7671 Church, $450; Wendy Wynne Cottam, 32, of 947 Terlane, $400; Albert Pike, 61, of 825 Condor, $400; Clarke Fraser Patterson, 30, of 724 Sea Terrace, $350; Pamela Lee Hartnell, 26, of 1173 Munro, $350; and James Oliver Tufford, 30, of 2726 Sooke Road, $100.

In addition, Tufford was ordered to perform 100 hours of community service work and was fined an additional $35 for driving without a valid driver's licence.

Fined for drinking-driving Tuesday were: Emil Panzenboeck, 51, of 476 Lampson, $450, and Bernard Joseph Simonson, 23, of 1552 Lionel, $450.

2 New Terms Added

James Ronald Page, 27, was given two new jail terms but no additional sentence when he pleaded guilty in Victoria county court Wednesday to assaulting a man and woman on the Empress Hotel lawn last Oct. 27.

The offences occurred when he was on bail pending disposition of an earlier assault causing bodily harm and possession of a dangerous weapon, for which he was subsequently given four years and two years in jail, concurrently.

A new sentence of 30 days for common assault and six months for assault causing bodily harm will also be concurrent, Judge E.J.C. Stewart ruled.

Crown counsel Nicholas Lang said Page and a former co-accused, Allan Francis, approached Frank on the steps of the hotel about 11:37 p.m. after all had been drinking. Francis grabbed Frank to ask where his wife was. Page then seized her by the throat and used abusive language while she struggled, broke away and was again grabbed by both, bruising her arm.

Larsen, meanwhile, came out of the hotel looking for his girlfriend. Frank, seeing the struggle, went over to see was what was going on and tussled with Francis, falling to the ground with him. The accused then kicked him in the mouth, breaking a dental plate, and directed 10-15 more kicks at him before Larsen lost consciousness, Lang said.

Defence counsel Gordon Hayes noted Larsen did not seek medical attention and did not make a complaint to the police until three weeks later. He said the unpremeditated altercation on the Empress lawn was "a matter of tempers being lost."

Lang drew the court's attention to Page's record of convictions for possession of narcotics, causing a disturbance, possession of heroin for trafficking, assaulting police, impaired driving and an offence under the Wildlife Act.

Had he listened only to the Crown's submission, Stewart said, he would have had no hesitation in sentencing Page to a year in jail, considering the record and the "cowardly, brutal nature of such an attack."

Firemen Battle $8M Blaze

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — A spectacular chemical fire Tuesday which hurled aerosol cans hundreds of metres into the air, destroyed five warehouses and produced black smoke visible for 100 kilometres caused $8-million to $10-million damage, fire officials said.

Fire Chief Wes Miller said more than 60 firefighters and 10 trucks from the Oakville fire department battled the blaze, remaining at the scene throughout the night.

One fire department pumper had to be abandoned near the flames after it broke an axle driving along a railway spur line to get to the fire. A tow truck was unable to remove it and as heat increased, firefighters retreated, leaving the truck under a jet of water sprayed by a fixed hose.

Car Fire Fraud Charge Dismissed

A man illiterate in English was acquitted in Victoria county court Wednesday of a charge of defrauding Insurance Corp. of B.C. of about $3,500 using false fire damage claims three years ago.

Raymond Douglas Saulnier, 35, also known as Donald Louis Saulnier and Donald Raymond Saulnier, of Sidney, was discharged by Judge E.J.C. Stewart who said the Crown had failed to make a case of criminal fraud on the theory that a single fire had caused extensive damage to the interior of a car purchased by Saulnier in order to repair and resell at a profit.

It was suggested the accused tried to make it appear that a second fire had been responsible for the damage after he made repairs necessitated by the first fire.

Stewart said there may be suspicions of another kind of case the Crown may have had, such as arson, but no such evidence had been heard, the judge said.

On May 14 Saulnier bought a 1975 two-door Pontiac from Jim Pattison on Main, Vancouver, for $2,300. Its interior had fire damage and without damage the car would have brought $7,000, court was told.

The accused told witness John Dunsmuir, an accountant who then worked for Saulnier in a marine repair business, that he could make $5,000 by fixing the car.

James Dittomassi, bodyshop manager at Cornell Chev Olds Ltd., said the interior of the car was gutted when he saw it June 10, 1975, and estimated it would cost $3,688 to repair. The work was carried out.

Saulnier told the court when he and his wife Louise returned from a visit to Seattle in late May, the interior of the new car which he had repaired himself for about $75 worth of materials and $200 for special spraying, was "completely gutted out."

Defence counsel Larry Hill, referring to two fires, asked, "Did you set fire to the car in the second instance?"

"Of course not. Why would I set fire to a car after I had it all fixed up?" Saulnier replied. He later indicated he believed someone could have broken into the car and started the fire while he and his wife were away.

Hill said it seemed clear there was much more significant damage between the first and second instances and that there was no doubt a second fire had occurred. There was no evidence of fraud, he said.

Peter Birkett, for the Crown, said the car was far more extensively damaged from the outset than Saulnier would have the court believe, and it did not make sense that he could get a $7,000 car with $300 fire damage for $2,300.

At one point in the trial he referred to inconsistencies in a handwritten statement drawn up by insurance adjuster Frederick Mainwood and signed by Saulnier, which Birkett asked him to read. But the accused said he could neither read nor write, despite some attempts by his wife to teach him.

Mrs. Saulnier said she could not honestly say whether the car was damaged when she first saw it after her husband brought it to Victoria to surprise her.

But she did say she had not been pleased because she wanted a smaller car.

Refinery Remains Bankrupt

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada dismissed Wednesday an appeal against an order placing the huge Come-By-Chance, Nfld., oil refinery into bankruptcy.

The refinery, built by industrialist John M. Shaheen of New York, opened in December, 1973, and was to become a prime supplier of gasoline and jet fuel to Eastern Canada. It went into receivership February, 1976, owing about $600 million.

Newfoundland Refining Ltd. and Provincial Refining Ltd., Shaheen subsidiaries, challenged the receivership orders in the Newfoundland Court of Appeal. Their arguments were rejected last September.

The Supreme Court cut arguments short Wednesday and announced that the decision of the Newfoundland court was correct and that the appeal is dismissed.

Newfoundland Refining and Provincial Refining had asked that the bankruptcy be reversed and that their creditors be given an opportunity to study proposals to put the refinery back into operation.

ANDRE PIOLAT is not in the newspaper business to make money — he pays himself no wages — but swears to he'll continue affirming the French presence in B.C.

In the Defence of French

VANCOUVER (CP) — Andre Piolat, 65, knew nothing about the newspaper business when he founded Le Soleil, but British Columbia's only French-language paper marked its 10th anniversary Wednesday.

His desire to "affirm the French presence in B.C." prompted him to establish the paper soon after the CBC's French radio station went on the air here in 1968.

"The main purpose of the paper is to defend the French presence in B.C. and to affirm that we are here," he said in an interview. "We were here before, we're here now and we'll be here for a long time."

Piolat said the paper has a circulation of 3,400 and "with more people learing French, there will be more demand for the paper."

Born in Paris, Piolat emigrated to Canada at age six. Before founding Le Soleil, he owned a credit bureau.

The paper has a full-time staff of three, in addition to Piolat who does not collect any wages, and said he works as "editor, reporter, accountant and floor sweeper."

Through his paper, Piolat has fought for French television and French language education. Although French education is not classified as a right in this province, he said there is a growing number of French immersion programs.

"I'm trying to get it through to officialdom that French is not a foreign language," he said.

"All we have to do is change the climate and we'll have a Garden of Eden," he said.

Tel Hints At Rate Increase

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Telephone Co. says it may be forced to increase telephone rates for residential, small business and rural customers if CN-CP Telecommunications is allowed to interconnect its facilities with the Bell Canada telephone system.

In a submission to be presented today to the Canadian Radio-televison and Telecommunications Commission hearings in Ottawa, B.C. Tel urges that the CRTC withhold a decision on the CN-CP application until after the completion of parliamentary debate on a new telecommunications act.

The company alleges that CN-CP's ultimate intent is to obtain interconnection with the entire telecommunications network across Canada. CN-CP would win customers on high-density, profitable long-distance routes, leaving the responsibility for service to isolated areas and local exchanges to telephone companies, the submission says.

B.C. Tel also expresses concern that the Consumers Association of Canada has not intervened on the public behalf.

Paskin Pitch Draws Blast

DUNCAN — Mayor Ken Paskin has been accused of going behind council's back to Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis in order to force a vote on amalgamation with North Cowichan.

Ald. Martin Lukaitis accused Paskin of "ramming his views down the throats of the citizens of Duncan and going to the minister behind the backs of his council."

Paskin admitted he and North Cowichan Mayor George Whittaker had met with Curtis the day after Duncan's last council meeting.

"We discussed many topics, including amalagamation," Paskin said. "But the meeting had been arranged several weeks prior to council's meeting."

Ald. Mike Coleman expressed pleasure at the prospect of a vote, but complained that council's opinion was being ignored.

"The decision by the minister appears to have been influenced by your visit to him behind closed doors," Coleman told Paskin.

The mayor replied that he did not regard as a decision council's 3-3 tie vote last week on whether to hold an amalgamation referendum.

"It was an indecision," he said. "Personally, I fully endorse and compliment the minister on his courage in taking this action."

Ald. John Horner felt the taxpayers were being thrown to the wolves.

"This (an amalgamation vote) would mean that North Cowichan could swamp us out 3½ to one," he said.

Shuttle Delay?

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The first manned space shuttle launch, scheduled for June, 1979, might be delayed until September or December, 1979, because engineers still have problems with the main engines, a NASA official said Wednesday.

Pot-Smoking Teachers May Be Fired Says McGeer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Education Minister Pat McGeer said Wednesday that school trustees may be able to fire teachers who smoke marijuana — even those who have not been found guilty — by using an untested misconduct section of the Public Schools Act.

McGeer was commenting on the recent conditional discharge granted to Dennis Hilton, 29, an auto mechanics instructor in Coquitlam. The minister said he believes a court of law would uphold his contention that smoking marijuana, though not proved in court, is an act of misconduct and sufficient condition for dismissal.

"There is no question in my mind at all," he said. "Those who teach our young children should be of the highest moral character.

"People who tinker with drugs should not be tainting the minds of our youngsters. I am sure every parent in the province is behind me on this one."

The act has traditionally been interpreted to mean that teachers with court discharges must be reinstated, though Cliff Adkins, president of the B.C. School Trustees Association, admits that the attitude toward marijuana offences is different from the attitude toward alcohol offences.

"Unless the teacher comes to class drunk, impaired driving charges will have no effect on his students," he said. "Smoking or selling marijuana is a different situation. Students get to know about these things and might pick up the habit."

Adkins agreed that both possession of marijuana and impaired driving are violations of the Criminal Code.

"I guess a board is reaching a decision on moral grounds but you must remember that smoking pot is illegal. And until it's legal we shall do whatever possible to keep these teachers out of the classroom."

Greater Victoria school board vice-chairman Peter Dorazio said today he agrees with the McGeer's contention that pot-smoking should be sufficient grounds for teacher dismissal.

"I'm not in favor of teachers who break the law and thereby set an example for children," Dorazio said.

He said the board would have to seek legal advice on the matter, but would probably take action against any teacher who was guilty of the offence.

Plunge Kills 49

Times News Services

WILLOW ISLAND, W.Va. — At least 49 workmen were killed today when a scaffolding collapsed inside a huge power plant cooling tower, plunging the men between 150 and 200 feet to their deaths.

State police said as many as 60 others may have been injured.

The workers were buried under tons of bricks and debris inside the cement tower, which measures about 360 feet in diameter at its base.

"They just fell like dominoes," a witness said. "I looked up and men were screaming and hollering."

The Pleasants Power Station, under construction since 1973, had been scheduled to begin operations next year. One huge cement tower, about 430 feet high, had been completed and the second tower where the scaffolding collapsed had reached about the 200 foot level.

AirWest Strike Ends

A strike by employees of AirWest Airlines Ltd., which began Nov. 13, ended Wednesday night with the signing of a back-to-work agreement.

As a result, pickets have been removed from the company's facilities and the process of gearing up for normal operation has begun.

"I feel great," was the reaction of AirWest president Norm Gold to the settlement.

"I am extremely pleased with the back-to-work arrangements."

He said the 95 pilots, mechanics and clerical employees will be called back to work as the company gets more of its planes back in the air.

During the strike, AirWest only used five of its 23 planes, as management personnel flew a reduced schedule.

Gold said it will likely take three or four days to get the first of the out-of-service planes back in action.

Spokesmen for the Teamsters Union were not available for comment this morning nor were details of the agreement released.

The union and AirWest had agreed to some terms of a collective agreement earlier and other outstanding issues are to be subject to arbitration.

The final remaining problem in the dispute was the phasing-in of a return to work by the employees and an agreement was reached with the mediation efforts of the B.C. Labor Relations Board.

The airline would normally come under federal labor code jurisdiction but since the LRB was already investigating picketing activities by the Teamsters, the parties agreed to allow the board to assist in reaching a return-to-work formula.

Canadian Dollar Gaining

Times News Services

The price of gold, meanwhile, rose by more than $2 U.S. an ounce in London and by almost as much in Zurich, Europe's major bullion trading center.

Also at New York, profit takers sent prices skidding on the New York Stock Exchange today as the market's record-setting April rally showed signs of running out of gas.

Ferry Cancelled By Bomb Threat

Two youths were detained and later released by Delta police after a bomb threat cancelled the 9 a.m. sailing of the Queen of Esquimalt out of Tsawwassen today.

Police were called after two women riding on a Pacific Stage Line bus reported overhearing two youths talking about a bomb placed in the engine room.

They notified ship's personnel who ordered the vessel evacuated.

Delta police found a cup in the engine room which contained a substance they couldn't identify. They called in the RCMP bomb squad in Vancouver to remove the cup. The unidentified substance proved harmless.

It was the second time this week the Queen of Esquimalt has been delayed because of a bomb threat.

On Sunday a foot passenger turned back from boarding the 3 p.m. sailing out of Swartz Bay said something which a ferry official took to be a threat of a bomb being put aboard the ship.

The boat was searched although the delay in sailing was only seven minutes.

An RCMP spokesman said the man, a 28-year-old resident of Vancouver, was taken to the police station in Sidney where he said the whole thing had been a misunderstanding.

He said he had seen a girl get by the guards and make her way on board and wondered "how come they let a bum like that on."

A police investigation is continuing.

!FINNISH!

Team Canada blew it today.

The Canadian entry — highly touted at the World Hockey championships in Czechoslovakia — played its first game against unranked Finland and lost 6-4.

The stunning loss came after the Canadians beat Sweden twice and beat and tied the Czech national team during pre-tournament exhibition play.

Observers picked the Canadians to get at least a third-place medal in the tournament and perhaps even win the event.

Illness- Not Strikes Tops for Lost Time

MONTREAL (CP) - Canadian workers lost 93 million work days because of sickness and accidents in 1976, compared with only 11 million days because of strikes, a financial consultant said Wednesday.

He said 10-15 percent of the days lost were the result of injuries on and off the job. The rest were due to sickness—both real and "pretended."

Reasons for booking off unnecessarily included boredom with the job, protests against an employer for working conditions or unhappiness about shift scheduling.

Martel said employers have tried a variety of schemes in an attempt to reduce unnecessary absenteeism, but with little effect.

One U.S. company decided to give each employee one playing card a day, the one with the best poker hand getting a prize at the end of the week.

"But if you're a good poker player and you get a deuce, a queen and a jack on the first three days you don't bother showing up for the other two," he said.

Employers who notice a high frequency of short-duration absenteeism should try and find the reasons through group discussions with employees, possibly with a third party from outside the company, Martel said.

Often the complaint may be about working conditions, such as a piece of equipment that has not been repaired.

At one firm in suburban Toronto where he conducted a group session, Martel said employees complained that the bus stopped more than a mile away from the plant. Employees with car problems didn't come to work.

The company now is negotiating with public transit officials to have the bus come to the plant, he said.

Large companies should not use their medical staff to check up on employees who are off sick, because this causes resentment.

"The company nurse should not be the policemen," he said. "They shouldn't be investigators."

But a phone call to an ill employee to ask how he is often is appreciated. And supervisors should welcome an employee back after an illness.

AND HIS CHANCES OF ESCAPING . . . ?

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Penitentiary Service is prepared to tell all about one of its prisoners even though you won't find him in a cell.

He's the statistically typical prisoner.

Penitentiary service officials told the Commons committee Wednesday the typical prisoner is 29, is serving five years for robbery, and in two of three cases, is in a federal institution for the first time.

He's already served 16 months of his sentence.

If he's paroled he will have served two years, if not he'll be in for 3½ years.

If he receives parole, there is a one-in-three chance he'll return to jail. If he doesn't get parole he is released after serving three-quarters of his term under mandatory supervision. In that case, there's a 50-per-cent likelihood he will wind up back behind bars.

Blais Sidesteps On Surveillance

OTTAWA (CP) - Opposition MPs Wednesday expressed indignation after Solicitor-General Jean-Jacques Blais refused to confirm or deny that the RCMP was issued instructions in the early 1970s on political surveillance and reporting on election candidates.

Under questioning by former Conservative leader Robert Stanfield in the Commons, Blais refused to confirm the existence of political surveillance instructions said in a published report to be contained in an RCMP operations manual.

His refusal prompted a string of Progressive Conservative and New Democratic Party MPs to rise after the daily question period and criticize Blais for mishandling a serious question affecting politicians and using a royal commission into RCMP actities as a dumping ground for hot issues.

Blais had told the Commons the commission, headed by Mr. Justice David McDonald, has access to current and former RCMP operations manuals but their examination might take place behind closed doors.

Stanfield (PC-Halifax) said Blais had no right telling him or other MPs that RCMP surveillance of political candidates "is none of my business." He said it is the MP's business to know "what kind of surveillance is exercised on candidates for this House."

Davis Report Bouncing

The report which led to the dismissal of Jack Davis as minister of energy and transport is bouncing back and forth between Attorney-General Garde Gardom and outside counsel.

Gardom is expected to make a statement Friday at the latest.

An unidentified lawyer independent of the ministry was first asked to study an RCMP report into the airline ticket dealings of Davis on April 13 — 10 days after Davis was removed from the cabinet because of the investigation.

The lawyer returned the report likely containing his additional recommendations to Gardom Tuesday but the attorney-general sent it back to the lawyer because it was incomplete.

Apparently difficulties with an Air Canada computer in Winnipeg are holding up the last bit of information needed to complete the report.

Davis has admitted to keeping refunds he received after reducing first class airline tickets to offset out-of-pocket expenses on his numerous trips for the government.

The RCMP investigation began in mid-January after police got a tip from a private citizen who has never been identified.

Double-Cross Claim By Indian Lawyer

VANCOUVER (CP) — An assault charge laid against Myrtle Russ in a pre-dawn RCMP raid at the Indian village of Old Massett was stayed by the Crown Wednesday and Mrs. Russ's lawyer, Carey Linde, says he has been double-crossed.

"The defence admits the assault," said Linde in a telephone interview from Masset in the Queen Charlotte Islands. "But we don't admit that the officer in question was acting in the line of duty."

He said staying the charge is a tacit admission that the officer was not acting in the line of duty when he and nine other officers, carrying six shotguns and hand guns, raided five houses at Old Massett Feb. 17.

Linde said he received a commitment from a high official in the provincial attorney-general's office that the assault charge would go ahead "and if I wanted to make fools of the police I would have my opportunity."

But the official told him Tuesday that the charge would be stayed. Linde refused to name the man but said he was not Attorney-General Garde Gardom.

"I can only surmise that police pressure was brought to bear on the persons concerned and they stayed a charge which shouldn't have been laid in the first place."

Crown counsel Rick Miller, who stayed the charge, told Judge Robert Graham in provincial court that the British Columbia police commission would investigate police-community relations at Old Massett and a report would be filed.

Meanwhile, said Linde, Mrs. Russ' name has not been cleared and she has not been given a chance to be acquitted. The stayed charge could be revived any time in the next year.

"What this community demands is an apology from the attorney-general, not from the local police," said Linde.

RCMP Superintendent Howard Gillard of the Prince Rupert subdivision confirmed last week that the police—several of them auxiliary constables—were apparently searching for handguns when they carried out the raid. The only weapon seized was a starter's pistol.

Gillard said RCMP Sergeant Ken Buck, who led the raid, was later transferred.

He said the transfer was decided upon before the raid.

"That may be true," said Linde. "But from the community's point of view they see that he (Buck) is out, the charge is stayed, but there's no admission of wrongdoing on the part of the police."

"The thing is, there's no way those police would have done something like that in a white community. It was simply racist, the most blatant example of the racism that police have to Indians."

Now It's  a Divorce

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Divorce-Canadian style is only a phone call away.

The brainchild of Jack James, a 34-year-old lawyer and publisher of self-counsel books, dial-a-divorce is a new concept in legal services in Canada.

His company, International Self-Counsel Press Ltd., started the service, modelled in part after a similar operation in California, last month.

All a person has to do is phone the toll-free number 800-663-3007 and James and his team of legal secretaries and lawyers swing into action, completing all the paperwork necessary for anyone seeking an uncontested divorce.

They'll also handle over-the-phone requests to form companies and help prepare simple wills.

It's fast and easy, James said in an interview, and customers can even pay by Mastercharge or Chargex.

Despite widespread advertising (he was a guest on five radio and TV shows during a recent one-day visit to Victoria promoting the service), he hasn't received any flak yet from the Law Society.

"I understand they're looking pretty seriously at what we're doing," he says.

But he's all set to defend the operation.

"We're really not practising law in the strict sense of the word," he says. "We don't go into court, we don't handle the negotiations nor do we do anything that could result in irreconcilable harm.

"All we do is the paperwork. That's it.

"Sure there's a certain element of risk. But with anything worthwhile there's risk. And if it works, well, it'll give the people another option."

James, who graduated from University of B.C. with a law degree in 1970, says the majority of the 10,000-plus divorces in B.C. each year are uncontested and relatively simple to process from a legal standpoint.

Providing the person files the proper papers and is able to prove the grounds for divorce, a divorce application can't be refused by the court, he says. The actual court costs amount to only $30 in B.C., $20 in Alberta and $50 in Ontario.

His fee for over-the-phone incorporations is a flat $100, excluding registration costs which run about $130. It takes him only about an hour to complete the documentation. The normal tariff for incorporations is $250 or more.

And he provides a money-back guarantee.

"The worst thing that can happen in a divorce is it being turned down," he says. "If it's our fault we'll return the fee."

On an average day he gets about eight calls. In divorce matters, the majority are woman.

He says he's surprised by the number of callers who are still living in the same house as their spouses at the time of initiating the divorce.

The most frequently asked question is "Can we do the divorce ourselves?" The reply is, of course, "Yes."

He says the biggest problem, aside from people not knowing the permissable grounds for divorce, are people who have married under unusual circumstances and want the marriage annulled.

There are also situations where one spouse hasn't seen the other for years and wonders if it's okay to remarry.

Judging by the calls he's received, he says bigamy is probably far more widespread than people might think.

He won't touch complex cases involving property settlement and child custody matters. Those he refers to the person's own lawyer or a lawyer experienced in family law.

The types of calls reflect the social mix and mores in each community. For instance, there are more calls concerning divorces coming from Edmonton than, say, Toronto. Not surprising. Edmonton has the highest per capita divorce rate in Canada, while conservative Ontario has one of the lowest.

In Victoria, wills are always popular, he says. That's not surprising either. Senior citizens account for 15 per cent of Victoria's population compared with 10 per cent for the country as a whole.

James says people who make their own wills commonly make several kinds of mistakes — like having a beneficiary act as witness, or neglecting to state the reason for disinheriting a family member, or selecting as executor someone older who dies first.

Realtors Will Join In Qualified Study

The Victoria Real Estate Board will accept a challenge from Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf to organize a task force to study the need for a third department store downtown.

But there's a proviso — the study must include the need for a convention centre as well, board president Bev Highton said today.

"I understand Mr. Bawlf has asked businessmen to form a task force but nothing has been done. We would be pleased to get the ball rolling. All Mr. Bawlf has to do is ask."

This would be in line with a decision by the Victoria Real Estate board Wednesday to take a more active role in community affairs, Highton said.

He made the comments after releasing a statement from the board as a result of Wednesday's meeting. The board defended Highton's comments — which were cool to a third department store but urged a convention centre be constructed downtown — and added the board planned to make similar comments about Victoria's needs in the near future.

"It is our hope that personal slights will not be cast on each such occasion," the board said in its press release.

This was apparently a reference to a statement by Bawlf that Highton was ignorant of Victoria's needs if he opposed a third department store downtown. Highton had not specifically opposed it but had said it was a low priority.

The board said the top priorities for the district are:

—A convention, civic and arts centre;

—An industrial park in Saanich;

—The retention of present industries in the Victoria area.

"We believe that if these items are looked after and supported, then the rest will follow as a matter of course in response to a viable community," the board said.

"We know the minister (Bawlf) is interested in the revitalization of the downtown core. So is the Victoria Real Estate Board and so is everyone who has the best interest of the community at heart."

Controversy erupted after Bawlf told the annual meeting of the Victoria Downtown Business Association April 19 that businessmen should immediately form a task force to obtain a third department store or shopping complex in the downtown core or the city would wither while the suburbs grow.

No group has accepted the challenge until today when Highton said he was certain the Victoria Real Estate board would be willing to get the ball rolling if invited to do so by Bawlf.

Highton said the board's Industrial, Commercial and Investment committee would be the ideal group to begin the study.

"We would hope that the Victoria Downtown Business Association, the Victoria Chamber of Commerce and any other interested organization would participate in the study."

Highton stressed that the task force should deal with all the needs of the downtown core and not just the possibility of establishing a third department store.

He said the task force should gather together the many reports on a convention centre as a first step. Most of the studying has been done and all a committee would need to do is co-ordinate all the work, he said.

Highton said he hopes the debate with Bawlf will come to an end with the present statement by the board because there is little to be gained by prolonged argument.

FIRST STEP ON CENTRE

The argument over who should get the credit if a convention-civic centre is built cooled to some polite posturing Wednesday and Capital Regional District directors decided to take the first step.

Executive-director Dennis Young will prepare terms of reference for a proposed feasibility study on the centre.

The centre is still in the discussion stage but would include two halls, one to hold 1,500 delegates and another one suitable for the performing arts. This second hall in the building would mainly benefit Victorians, according to the concept.

In taking the step Wednesday, the directors ratified a recommendation by Murray Glazier's regional planning and economic development committee. They received and filed a recommendation by Shirley Dowell's regional grants committee.

Earlier this month Dowell and regional board chairman Jim Campbell had clashed over whether her committee or Glazier's should take the initiative.

At Wednesday's meeting a carefully-worded letter from Campbell was read, outlining the reason why he felt the matter should be brought to the board as quickly as possible and dealt with, basically, as an economic development matter.

Then Dowell quoted minutes of meetings held Jan. 26 and Feb. 26 which stated Campbell had considered changing the terms of reference of Dowell's committee to include work on the centre.

She also read a letter from Allan Purdy, president of the McPherson Playhouse Foundation, in which he said he thought the foundation could provide most of the information needed for a feasibility study. He suggested a joint committee be struck, chaired by Dowell.

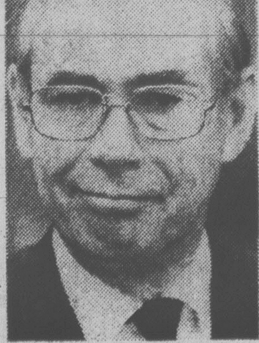
Nor did they take action on an announcement by Dowell that she had been told Tuesday night that the West Coast Savings Credit Union is willing to donate $20,000 for a feasibility study, providing a committee is struck with representatives from Victoria, the regional district and the provincial governent and including Purdy as an adviser.

Campbell said he presumed West Coast would make its offer in writing and, after the meeting, Dowell said she would ask that this be done.



YOUNG

Hallmark Society Unhappy

A vote of non-confidence in present heritage legislation and the city of Victoria's ability to interpret it was passed Wednesday night at a meeting of the Hallmark Society.

The move was promted by the lack of action both at city hall and from Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf's office to protect two houses on Belleville Street from possible demolition.

In a letter to city council last month Hallmark president Kandy Wyatt said: "These homes . . . are both over 100 years old and are fine examples of Italianate and Eclectic Italianate styles.

"We feel that it is imperative that these fine examples of architecture be preserved as part of Victoria's heritage . . . It seems contradictory that we could honor our heritage in the Captain Cook bicentennial year by spending millions of dollars to promote our history only to allow a considerable part of that history to be demolished before our very eyes."

Wyatt urged council to do everything in its power to have the homes designated Heritage and to prevent their destruction.

The houses in question operate as the Land of the Little People and Judge Hunter's Haunted House.

Council has taken no action to designate the building, but neither has it issued any demolition permits.

The matter was last brought up at city hall in a land use planning committee meeting April 4 but no decisions were made.

The province has taken no action either.

Hallmark vice-president Carolyn Smyly said: "Each one is saying it's the other's responsibility, but when the buck passing is finished the houses will be in splinters."

Ald. Bob Wright, head of council's heritage advisory committee, was out of town today and could not be reached for comment.

Ask The Times

Q. Does the word Pasha mean military commander? T.R.M.

A. Yes. It applied to commanders of high rank in the Turkish Empire, but at one time it was limited to the princes of blood. The title is derived from the Persian.

Tall Ships Too Much For the Inner Harbor

There won't be any shortage of sail in the Inner Harbor this summer but the towering masts of the Tall Ships won't be among them.

Every inch of wharf space will be jammed with sailing vessels July 20-24, with eight of them measuring over 100 feet in length, but the Tall Ships will be berthed at Ogden Point.

At a press conference called by the Greater Victoria Captain Cook Bicentenary Committee Wednesday, city archivist Ainslie Helmcken explained that since sailing vessels began to call on the port of Victoria the shallow water at Shoal Point has kept the big ones from entering the Inner Harbor.

Helmcken said when Fort Victoria was built in 1843 ships had to drop anchor outside the harbor.

That wasn't the only bad news released by the committee. It was also revealed that the Tall Ships race from Honolulu to Victoria will end well out at sea, off Cape Flattery, as it would be hazardous to mix the sailing vessels with commercial traffic in Juan de Fuca Strait.

And as the race from Hawaii is a long one, it's unlikely that the ships will arrive together July 20, but will probably be widely separated.

The only time Victorians will get to see the biggest vessels together, other than when they are berthed at Ogden Point, will be when they leave for Vancouver at 6 a.m. July 24.

It is not known whether or not the ships will unfurl their sails for their departure, or merely leave under power.

The two largest sailing ships to visit Victoria, the Japanese Nippon Maru and Kaiwo Maru, will be here June 16-20, well ahead of the main fleet. The vessels are both 318 feet in length and draw 22 feet of water.

The mass of sailing and naval vessels participating in the city's Captain Cook festivities will be manned by 5,000 sailors, but the number of visitors the ships will attract is anybody's guess.

City deputy manager Collin Crisp said that the bicentennial committee is working on a number of contingency plans that would provide emergency accommodation if it is needed.

He said additional space for recreational vehicles, covered areas for camping and possible hostel locations have all been identified.

Crisp also urged any members of the public interested in providing supplemental accommodations to come forward.

He said the city cannot make any accurate projections on the likely number of visitors but is planning for a massive influx.

Crisp added that the Victoria police department will be brought up to maximum strength for the summer and would be assisted by RCMP craft in the Inner Harbor.

Military police are also gearing up for the summer.

Other preparations being made by the city include:

—Plans to drape the flags of all participating nations from standards along the harbor;

—Placing banners depicting Capt. Cook themes on 200 street lights throughout Victoria, on the highway at Royal Oak and at ferry terminals;

-Reservation of all Inner Harbor floats for vessels taking part in the Hawaii-Victoria race. (Some 40 Class B ships, which measure from 100 to 150 feet, are expected to require accommodation in the harbor.) Private visiting ships will have to berth at Fisherman's Wharf, West Bay Marina or other locations;

—Plans for an extensive fireworks display, including rockets and flares, to be fired from a barge in the harbor;

—Competitions between the crews of visiting ships and local sports teams;

Trees Down the Drain? Never, Vows Gorge Group

More than 100 stately trees will be destroyed along the Gorge if the city approves installation of sewers along the bank of the waterway.

But area residents say they won't let it happen.

Mrs. Ivy Upton, chairman of a Lotus Street property owners group, said Wednesday members have submitted a petition to city council demanding that no action be taken until property owners have been heard and aldermen have viewed the area.

The sewer line would run through private property between the Gorge and Lotus street and the Gorge Hospital property, connecting up with the Saanich system.

The city would have to expropriate the properties .

A 30-foot swath of trees would have to be cut for the trench and to provide room for equipment, city engineers say.

The trees include large arbutus, Garry Oak and Douglas firs.

Mrs. Upton said tree experts have informed property owners the remaining trees left standing will die within seven to 10 years, mainly due to changes in the water table caused by the sewer trench.

"Soil experts also won't guarantee there won't be bank erosion after the trees are cut," Mrs. Upton said.

"This certainly could happen. A resident across the Gorge lost 30 feet of waterfrontage after cutting down some trees."

Bank slides have occurred in two other areas due to tree cutting, she added.

Mrs. Upton said the same sewer line proposal was submitted to city council last year.

It was turned down then because of the damage it would cause to the privately-owned scenic area of the Gorge.

"I don't know why it is suddenly being revived," she said.

"We were informed the matter is again scheduledto come up before council."

She said there are alternatives to running the sewer line along the waterway. One is to install the sewers along Gorge Road.

"It may be more costly but it's worth the extra cost to preserve the beauty of the Gorge."

HOW TO WRITE

A GOOD

CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room etc., for rent, or property for sale: start your ad with the location.

2—BE, CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your adveertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word your Classified Action Ad for the most complete coverage. Telephones are open from 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday; 8:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't leave the reader to speculate.

SEAL HUNT 'BRUTAL', U.K. TOLD

LONDON (CP) — Richard Ryder, chairman of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, says the Canadian seal hunt is "a massacre, brutal, bloody and unnecessary."

Ryder told a news conference Wednesday that the RSPCA has decided to call for an immediate ban in Britain on imports of sealskins and other seal products to show British abhorrence of the hunt.

"Chances of this happening are quite reasonable," Ryder said. "Questions are already being tabled by members of Parliament."

William Jordan, RSPCA wildlife advisory officer, presented a report on the method of killing the seal pups in the Canadian hunt and suggested the pups are not killed outright with the first blow.

He had watched the hunt on the Magdalen Islands, in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and had examined 13 carcasses. Six had fractured skulls. On later inspections he found that the skulls had been crushed—"obviously so visitors would think they had been killed in the proper way."

He compared the clubs used in the Canadian hunt with the method used in the Farne Islands off the Northumberland coast where seals are shot in the head.

"It is abhorrent to see any animal die, let alone see the spectacle taking place in Canada," Jordan said.

Dr. Harry Rowsell of the University of Ottawa, executive director of the Canadian Council on Animal Care, and R. Noyes Roberts, public affairs counsellor at the Canadian high commission here, also attended the news conference.

U.S. Hopes Rise on Economy

By HOBART ROWEN
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — American officials are taking a more optimistic view of world economic prospects as they prepare for a high-level international meeting in Mexico City this weekend.

In terms of economic growth, inflation, and in narrowing the balance of payments gap between the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries and the rest of the world, "prospects are better than they have been for some time," Under Secretary of Treasury Anthony Solomon said Tuesday.

Behind the better tone — although American officials shy away from saying so publicly — is the expectation or at least the hope that the U.S. dollar has "bottomed out" after a long slide in 1977 and earlier this year.

At a minimum, many private market experts here and in Europe think that the dollar may have hit a psychological plateau. It has been remarkably steady against major currencies since hitting a low point early this year, despite U.S. resistance to European demands for massive market intervention to prop up the dollar.

The Mexico City meeting this weekend will bring together Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal, Federal Reserve Chairman G. William Miller, and their finance minister and central bank counterparts of other major nations.

They will attend meetings of the International Monetary Fund's poliy-managing Interim Committee, the Group of Ten rich developed nations, and the Group of Twenty-Four, representing the less developed world.

Solomon appeared to take a rather dim view of the principal new initiative to be discussed at Mexico City, a proposal by IMF Managing Director H. J. Witteveen to encourage a new issue of Special Drawing Rights (SDRs) which at the same time would soak up excess dollars.

SDRs are an asset created by the IMF and distributed in proportional amounts to all members. Witteveen's plan would in effect substitute SDRs for dollars held in reserves by many nations. The dollars would be "frozen", and not available to be drawn again, but the interest they earn would be credited to the nations that turned them in.

Witteveen believes that his scheme would offset the objections some nations have to an outright new issue of SDRs, because total world liquidity would not be increased.

Solomon said that "we do not feel the proposal is spelled out . . . it would need further study."

The Treasury official said that the U.S. would offer a proposal of its own involving procedures by which the IMF, under new rules recently adopted, inherits responsibility for surveillance of exchange rate changes.

He said they would be detailed in a presentation by Blumenthal in Mexico City. European sources, who note that the basic procedures for surveillance have already been set by the IMF, take the U.S. "procedural" suggestion as a psychological commitment by the U.S. to the importance of the IMF's surveillance function.

It may be seen, some Europeans think, as a further assurance by the U.S. it is abandoning "benign neglect" of the dollar. Other recent steps in support of the dollar, including last week's announcement of gold sales, have contributed to dollar stability.

The agendas for all three of the Mexico City sessions will cover the world economic outlook and the question of creating additional world reserves through a new allocation of (SDRs). In addition, the IMF Interim Committee will discuss the next, or seventh round of quota increases.

Solomon's optimistic appraisal of the world outlook was based, he said, on "somewhat better balanced growth (prospects) around the world." He cited a common market estimate that European growth might be at 4.5 percent rate by mid-1979.

He said that West German prospects were "somewhat less clear" and that "they may need more stimulus", but that the official Bonn forecast was for a 4.5 to 5 percent growth rate by the end of the year.

Europeans at Mexico City are expected to bring a somewhat less optimistic view of their growth prospects. Leading private institutions in West Germany have just published a pessimistic report, estimating growth during 1978 at only 2.5 percent, compared with the Bonn Government's 3.5 percent figure.

Solomon said that prospects look better for Japan to come closer to its 7 percent growth target for 1978; that the less developed countries over-all would show an additional .5 percent growth: and the U.S. will continue at a good clip, although slightly less than last year."

He said that "inflation is continuing to come down in more countries", and that the U.S., with a new anti-inflation drive "is determined to do better."

The greatest change in prospects, Solomon said, relates to the likelihood that the OPEC current account surplus will be shaved by at least $10 billion to a range of $20 to $25 billion this year, and that the Japanese current account surplus should decine "substantially" later in 1978.

That would mean, he pointed out, a reduction in the mirror-image deficits borne by many other countries. He said that the over-all U.S. current account deficit still would be around the $20 billion mark, although the rate toward the end of the year would be well under the staggering $28 billion annual rate of the final quarter of 1977.

Carter Agrees to Delay Mideast Arms Package

WASHINGTON (WP) — President Carter agreed Wednesday to delay briefly the submission of his controversial Middle East arms sale package to Congress, but reaffirmed his determination to wait only a few days and to fight attempts to block portions of the package.

White House press secretary Jody Powell announced the delay, saying the proposed sale of jets to Israel, Egypt and Saudi Arabia will be submitted to Congress "no later than early next week." Friday is considered the most likely day for submission of the proposals.

In a flurry of congressional and executive branch meetings on the topic, there was no sign of an impending compromise that might head off a legislative battle.

Several senators predicted, after a meeting with Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, that Congress will reject the sales to all three countries on procedural grounds if Carter continues to treat them as a package.

Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan is to meet Thursday morning with a group of senators at the Watergate Hotel. The arms package is likely to be a major topic. Israeli officials maintained it was not discussed Wednesday during Dayan's lengthy talks on Middle East negotiations with Vance. The Dayan-Vance talks are to be completed Thursday.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., Dem.-Mass., who declared Tuesday that the arms sale proposals would be disapproved by Congress, modified that prediction Wednesday. Told that Chairman Clement J. Zablocki, Dem.-Wis., of the House International Relations Committee believed that committee would narrowly fail to recommend that the sale be blocked, O'Neill confessed to making "a snap judgment" and said, "I guess Zablocki knows more about his committee than I do."

White House officials continued to predict that Carter will prevail on the issue. But Powell said the fight in Congress is bound to be "very close and very tough."

"The real issue, which Congress and the country must decide," he said, "is whether it is in the best interest of the United States to maintain, without deviation, its historic commitment to the security of Israel while at the same time we are seeking closer ties with the moderate Arab nations. The president feels strongly that it is."

The press secretary added: "The Congress and the country will have to decide what kind of Middle East we want in the 1980s — whether we want a Middle East where those who seek peace.

$50,000 Landscaping For Harbor

A $50,000 landscaping project is on tap for Victoria's Inner Harbor in preparation for the coming tourist season.

The funds, made available through the Provincial Capital Commission, will go to the construction of precast planters and benches along the waterfront, Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf said Tuesday.

The project is part of the harbor beautification in readiness for the arrival of the tall ships from Hawaii and the Captain Cook bicentennial festivities.

Embargo Urged

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Two Congressional subcommittees voted Wednesday to ask President Jimmy Carter to impose a trade embargo against Uganda because of violations of human rights by the government of Idi Amin.

today's markets

Toronto

Westeel-Rosco Ltd. climbed 5⅝ to $21⅝ a share on the sale of 10,638 shares following its resumption at the opening after Jannock Ltd. reported its offer of all remaining shares at $21¾ a share.

Y and R Properties Ltd. was untraded following a one-hour opening delay for dissemination of news that Oxford Development Group Ltd. will offer $25 a share for all outstanding Y and ½ shares beyond the 52 per cent it now holds.

Among other industrials, Pacific Petroleums declined 1¼ to $37¼, Imperial General Properties 1 to $19, Home Oil A ¾ to $39¾, Canadian Imperial Bank ¼ to $28 and Northern Telecom ⅝ to $30¼.

D. H. Howden gained 1⅛ to $11, Argus Corp. 1 to $35, Alcan ⅛ to $31½, Dome Petroleum ⅝ to $63¼ and Alberta Energy ¼ to $16⅛.

Rio Algom dropped ⅝ to $30⅛, Roman Corp. ⅜ to $26¾ and Orchan Mines A 15 cents to $2.65.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were generally lower in moderate trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange. Pancanadian Petroleum lost ¼ at $32¾, Imperial Oil A ⅜ at $18⅞, Alcan ⅜ at $31¼, Simpson's Ltd. ⅛ at $5¼, Oshawa A ⅛ at $5⅝ and Inco A ⅛ at $18. B.C. Telephone gained ⅛ at $15⅛ and Cominco ½ at $27. Among speculative issues, Mount Pleasant Mines Ltd. advanced 1½ cents to 23½ cents on a volume of 15,000 shares traded.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market ran into some selling today and pulled back a bit after the explosive rally of the past two weeks.

That downturn seemed to encourage further selling by traders who believed the market had reached at least a short-term peak.

Brokers also noted that the dollar declined in foreign-exchange trading, helping to diminish buying interest among overseas investors.

British Petroleum topped the active list, up ¼ to $14½. A 105,500-share block traded at $14⅜.

Blue chip issues losing ground in active trading included General Motors, down ⅞ to $65⅝; Exxon, off ⅜ to $47¾, and Sears Roebuck, ⅜ lower to $25⅜.

London

LONDON (CP) — The London stock market was sharply higher near the close of light trading. The Financial Times index was up 8.4 to 466.2 an hour before the close. Leading equities climbed, while oils slipped back from earlier highs. Mining issues gained.
